A. PROJECT TARGET

The project target is to enhance the effectiveness of the internal security forces of Pakistan by assisting in (1) improving their transport and communications capabilities; (2) modernizing police training and training institutions and improving administrative and operational practices.

B. BACKGROUND

Project activity started modestly in FY 1960 but was expanded greatly during FY 1963 to meet an anticipated increase in internal security problems. In October 1964, a Mission review of the project adopted an emergency force concept as the essential basis for the operational planning of Public Safety assistance to the internal security forces of Pakistan. This concept is based on the requirements of the reserve and emergency forces in selected areas whose mission is to combat civil disturbances. It provides priority to East Pakistan and larger metropolitan areas and districts in both East and West Pakistan. Emphasis was placed on improving the transport and communications capabilities of the internal security forces as well as improving their training and their administrative and operational practices. Achievement of project targets was scheduled through a combination of advisory assistance, participant training and commodity support.

C. 1. COURSE OF ACTION

a. Transport

(1) Achieve target of 50% mobility of the reserve and emergency forces of the Provincial Police and for corresponding units of the Civil Armed Forces in selected areas of West Pakistan and 75% mobility of similar forces in East Pakistan.

(2) Develop adequate transport maintenance and repair facilities.

b. Communications

(1) Establish VHF networks in five major cities of West Pakistan and modernize existing systems.

(2) Develop in East Pakistan a province-wide police communications network.

(3) Improve the communications capabilities of the Central Government agencies and the Civil Armed Forces.

(4) Develop communications maintenance and repair capabilities of all project participating agencies.

c. Training, Administrative and Operational Practices

Develop an efficient system embodying modern methods of research, planning, administration, organization, operations, supervision, personnel management, training and public relations.

2. IMPLEMENTATION RESPONSIBILITIES

a. U. S. Government

(1) Provide project advisory staff commensurate with stated objectives.

(2) Provide training in the United States for selected personnel of the participating agencies as determined by project requirements.

(3) Subject to availability of funds, provide those commodities required to meet project objectives.

b. Government of Pakistan

(1) Provide local currency to satisfy customs duties, sales taxes and other costs related to AID-procured commodities.

(2) Provide personnel necessary for effective utilization of AID-procured commodities to include vehicle drivers and mechanics, radio operators and technicians and such other individuals as may be required.

(3) Provide physical facilities for motorpools, workshops, communications centers, maintenance operations, classrooms, munitions storage and other operations as required.

(4) Budget adequate funds for the procurement of locally available spare parts, tools, fuel, batteries, tires and other equipment and supplies required to support AID procured commodities.

(5) Designate a suitable counterpart of appropriate rank, experience and responsibility for each member of the Public Safety advisory staff.

(6) Nominate candidates of appropriate rank, experience and responsibility for participant training in the United States as offered and assume responsibility for payment of international air travel of same.

(7) Assign returned participants for a period of three years to a field of activity compatible with the training received.

D. PROGRESS TO DATE

1. Transport

a. The phased procurement of motor transport for all cooperating agencies has proceeded on schedule.

b. The development of motor transport workshops is on schedule. In West Pakistan the principal workshops at Lahore and Karachi are in full operation. Six smaller shops with the capability of performing general servicing and minor repairs are also in operation. In East Pakistan the principal repair shop at Dacca is in operation as are minor shops at four other locations. AID-provided equipment at all locations in East and West Pakistan has been installed and is in use. Adequate trained maintenance personnel are available and on-the-job training is conducted to provide necessary additions or replacements. Three participants, all from East Pakistan, have received training in the United States and are assigned responsibilities for workshop operations.

c. Because of the many waterways in East Pakistan there has been a requirement for police water transport. Of 16 boats which had been ordered under project funding, only 6 arrived in country. Of the balance, 7 were damaged beyond economical repair while enroute and the remaining 3 were confiscated by India during the Pak-Indo War of 1965. The 6 boats which were provided were of questionable quality and gave a generally unsatisfactory performance. As a result, importation of boats to solve the police water transport problem was abandoned in favor of a joint undertaking in which the cooperating agencies agreed to provide hulls from their own resources and Public Safety to provide the motors and engines to power them. Five inspection/patrol launches have been already placed in operation by the East Pakistan Police and one by the East Pakistan Rifles under this joint effort. One other launch for the East Pakistan Rifles is under construction and one for the West Pakistan Police is being remodeled. Engines for these two vessels are already on hand.

2. Telecommunications

a. Progress towards achieving all telecommunications objectives, as modified by funding limitations, is essentially on schedule. In West Pakistan the VHF networks in Lahore, Rawalpindi, Peshawar and Hyderabad have been installed and give excellent performance. The installation of the final phase of the Karachi City network is nearing completion. In East Pakistan the Provincial Police communications system is gradually becoming a reality. The Headquarters-Range network is in operation and thirty-two fixed stations have been established within the various districts. Work continues on the preparation of the sites where additional stations will be activiated upon arrival of equipment. Two participants from the East Pakistan Police and one from the West Pakistan have received participant training in the United States in telecommunications management.

b. Telecommunications maintenance facilities in West Pakistan are centered mostly in Lahore and Karachi although minor repairs can be accomplished at other locations. The West Pakistan Telecommunications School at Bahawalpur, equipped with AID-supplied instructional materials, is the principal source of operators, mechanics and other technicians. On the job training is also given. Three participants from the West Pakistan Police have received training in the United States in the field of Police Radio Communications.

The East Pakistan Police have developed an operational and maintenance capability which is keeping pace with the growth of the police communications network. Three participants from the East Pakistan Police have received training in the United States in the field of police radio communications and they are actively engaged in conducting appropriate training courses in operations and maintenance for selected members of the East Pakistan Police.

c. The communications targets of the Civil Armed Forces have been satisfied substantially although there remains a need for some limited additional supplies and equipment to complete the basic networks. In addition, some operational problems with previously supplied AID equipment have necessitated the procurement of modification equipment to correct the deficiencies. The arrival of those modification kits is still awaited.

d. Each of the Civil Armed Forces possesses an independent communications maintenance and repair capability which has been developed through the Public Safety project by the provision of essential commodities and participant training. One communications supervisor in both the East Pakistan Rifles and the West Pakistan Rangers has received participant training in the United States in the field of Police Radio Communications and another officer of the West Pakistan Rangers is expected to depart in FY 1970 for similar training.

3. Modernization of Police Training and Training Institutions

a. West Pakistan

(1) The quality of instruction at police training institutions has improved considerably. Instructor training courses are offered regularly at the Police Training College, Sihala, which also provides a mobile team of instructors to visit other police training institutions periodically to present short courses in instructor techniques. The use of training aids in the presentation of instruction is now almost routine and the development of an audio-visual depot and library at the College has made considerable progress. Over 2000 charts and graphs, transparencies and 35-mm slides have been prepared for the use of the instructional staff. Visual aids are also prepared here for the other police training institutions.

(2) The Detective Training School at Lahore is fully operational. Its curriculum was developed with Public Safety assistance and includes modern methods of investigation. The instructor staff is competent and classroom instruction is in accordance with accepted teaching techniques and the employment of audio-visual materials. USAID/Pakistan has authorized 300,000 rupees (approximately $63,000) for the construction of a new facility to house this institution. It had been planned that the new building would be completed by June 1969 but, as a result of delays in developing and executing the architectural plans and engineering details of the building, it is now estimated that completion will be in late 1970.

b. East Pakistan

(1) Efforts to improve training operations in East Pakistan have not been as successful as they have been in West Pakistan. In recent weeks, however, a comprehensive course in Instructor Training was conducted by the Institution of Education and Research, Dacca, for a selected group of instructors from police training institutions in East Pakistan. The course was well received by those attending who have now returned to their instructor assignments and are applying their newly learned techniques to their classroom presentations. Responsible officers of the East Pakistan Police and the Public Safety staff are jointly concerned with monitoring the efforts of these instructors and it is expected that the end result will be a significant improvement in the quality of instruction and in the receptiveness of the student.

(2) The Detective Training School, Dacca, was developed under the project auspices with the complete cooperation of the East Pakistan Police. The school has been handicapped by inadequate facilities but, nevertheless, continues to provide essential services within the limits of its resources and is fully operational. USAID/Pakistan has authorized 300,000 rupees (approximately $63,000) for the construction of a new facility to house this institution which now occupies rented quarters. It had been planned that the new building would be completed by June 1969 but, because of delays encountered in developing and executing the architectural plans and engineering details of the building, it is now estimated that completion will be in late 1970.

4. Improvement of Administrative and Operational Practices

This target has been approached by a combination of participant training and advisory services. Training in modern police administration and operations is provided to Deputy Inspectors General of Police and Superintendents of Police at the International Police Academy, Washington. Other police personnel are offered training in such specializations as traffic, communications management, training methodology, questioned documents examination, ballistics, police records management, automotive repair, radio operations/maintenance, riot control and special operations. Through FY 1969 there were 152 participants who had already received training or were scheduled for training under the project. Participants, upon return to Pakistan, have been placed in assignments in which they have been able to employ their training gainfully, many in key positions within the internal security establishment.

A. PROJECT TARGET

In addition to the retention of those goals described in paragraph A, Project Agreement 70-20, dated February 24, 1970, the project will begin in FY 1971 to address itself to the much broader objective of developing the police as contributors to orderly development. Contemplated actions under this Project Agreement are designed to establish a firm foundation for the development of professional performance and leadership that will 1) inspire public confidence; 2) stimulate respect for the law and compliance with it; 3) motivate and encourage the community to discharge its obligations to cooperate in the maintenance of civil peace; and 4) enhance the indigenous capability for maintaining internal security conducive to orderly economic and social development.

B. BACKGROUND

The circumstances described in paragraph B, Project Agreement 70-20, dated February 24, 1970 have been affected somewhat by the dissolution of the province of West Pakistan into four individual provinces. The transition from centralization and the resultant distribution of human and material resources have produced operational and administrative traumata which require remedial action. The recommendations of the Police Commission, which was appointed to propose measures to improve police effectiveness, are the basis of a joint project survey to be conducted during FY 1971.

D. PROGRESS TO DATE

Actions towards achieving stated project objectives are essentially on schedule as indicated in paragraph D, Project Agreement 70-20, dated February 24, 1970 except as follows:

1. The construction of the Detective Training Schools in East and West Pakistan was postponed because of certain delays encountered in processing required documentation through Government of Pakistan channels. It is expected now that construction of these schools will be completed by the end of FY 1971.

E. CURRENT FISCAL YEAR ACTIONS

1. Continue actions to improve motor transport, telecommunications and maintenance capabilities.

2. Continue actions to improve police training, training institutions and administrative and operational practices.

3. Complete construction of the Detective Training School.

4. Initiate and complete, insofar as possible, joint surveys based on the recommendations of the Police Commission.

5. Develop jointly reorganization proposals according to modern administrative and management concepts and consistent with local requirements and influences.

6. Revise training policies, practices and procedures to provide viable programs for the development of professional skills, initiative and leadership. All training is to reflect accurately the role of the police in a changing modern society and to be oriented towards developing the police to function as a vital community service and towards establishing a sympathetic identification with the citizenry.

7. Establish a comprehensive police public relations program designed to improve the police image.

8. Establish pilot program to ascertain ways and means to provide effective police service to remote, isolated and accessibly difficult areas.

9. Explore the feasibility and possibility of establishing a central police agency which will have jurisdiction over inter-province police operations as well as to establish policies for matters of mutual concern, such as traffic regulation and control.

F. GOVERNMENT OF PAKISTAN CONTRIBUTIONS

1. Provide facilities and personnel as determined mutually to satisfy project objectives.

2. Provide qualified candidates for participant training and guarantee that such participants upon completion of training will serve a minimum of three (3) years in the field for which trained.

3. Conduct necessary in-service and on-the-job training with USAID assistance to provide qualified staff to function as vehicle operators, motor mechanics, telecommunications specialists, radio operators and maintenance personnel etc.

4. Designate qualified counterparts of appropriate rank of each member of the Public Safety advisory staff.

5. Provide local currency and foreign exchange to satisfy support requirements and recurring costs associated with project activities which includes travel costs of the participants under this project.
