INTRODUCTION

EURASIA FOUNDATION

Introduction

Overview

In FY11, Eurasia Foundation (EF) deepened its collaboration with Eurasia Foundation Network partners by initiating several new joint programs. The new programs EF launched in the spring – the US-Russia Civil Society Partnership Program and the Finnish-funded Equal Before the Law: Access to Justice in Central Asia – made a brisk start and are progressing well. Both of these programs fit squarely in EF’s mission and advantageously position both the Foundation and our network partners for future program impact and growth. These sizeable awards are being implemented by teams consisting of EF and partner foundation staff, who are forging a promising new model for collaboration within the network.

FY11 was a record fundraising year for the Eurasia Foundation Network. Eurasia Foundation raised and leveraged $12 million and collectively network foundations raised and leveraged almost $39 million.

In the coming fiscal year we aim to secure anchor programs with East Europe Foundation and Eurasia Partnership Foundation – as we currently have with our partners in Russia and Central Asia. We also want to respond to program gaps identified by our network partners – for instance, the need for more resources for small business development – and explore new programs in these areas.

Program Highlights

As we have said many times before, none of these awards would be possible without the core investment by the US government that enables the Foundation and its partners to leverage that investment several times over with financial support from other donors.

The US-Russia Civil Society Partnership Program (CSPP)

In May 2011, EF signed a $3 million cooperative agreement with USAID to implement the US-Russia Civil Society Program, a program parallel in design to the Bilateral Presidential Commission but independent from it and focused solely on thematic spheres covered by civil society actors. The CSPP will create opportunities for non-governmental players from both countries to exchange and crystallize viewpoints and establish coordinated action agendas for advocacy before their respective policy makers. Along with USAID, New Eurasia Foundation is EF’s partner in the program.

The Eurasia Foundation Network is a partnership of autonomous foundations promoting prosperity and stability throughout the former Soviet Union. The Network partners consist of Eurasia Foundation (United States), New Eurasia Foundation (Russia), Eurasia Foundation of Central Asia, Eurasia Partnership Foundation (South Caucasus), East Europe Foundation Ukraine and Moldova.

Equal Before the Law: Access to Justice in Central Asia

EF won a $6.7 million access to justice program from the Finnish Government. Phase II of this program, which launched in July, is based on the research conducted during Phase I of the program by EF and its partners, EFCA and the Caucasus Research Resource Centers, a program associated with Eurasia Partnership Foundation in the Caucasus. This research provided both a macro-view and specific examples of how citizens experience barriers to justice in the five countries of Central Asia. Phase II introduces interventions designed to increase access to justice for vulnerable populations in Central Asia, in particular for rural women, at-risk children and persons with disabilities. This program is being managed by a senior consultant to EF working in close cooperation with EFCA.

Bill Maynes Fund for Future Leaders of Eurasia

This fellowship program, funded entirely by individual and corporate donors, honors and supports outstanding individuals from the countries where Eurasia Foundation operates and who share Bill's vision for stable, inclusive and prosperous societies. The fund builds personal and professional bridges between emerging leaders in the Eurasia region and their counterparts in the United States. This past fiscal year, five fellows were honored. The 2010 Bill Maynes Fellows were Erkingul Karakozueva, a conflict resolution expert from Osh, Kyrgyzstan; Shahla Ismayilova, chair of a women's rights organization in Baku, Azerbaijan; and Nouneh Sarkissian, a journalist and free media advocate from Yerevan, Armenia. Erkingul, Shahla and Nouneh participated in a fellowship in Washington in January 2011, culminating in a large public event at the Finnish Embassy in Washington. The 2011 Bill Maynes Fellows visited Washington in the fall of 2011. They were Valeria Klitsounova from Belarus and Matluba Uljabaeva from Tajikistan. Both of these women are advocates for small business development in their countries and have worked to improve the environment for entrepreneurs and business owners. While in the US, they met with small business associations, EF Trustees and US government and Congressional representatives.

Independent Media in Russia

With funding from the USAID Mission in Moscow and the Bureau of Democracy, Human Rights and Labor at the State Department, EF has been running the Russian Independent Print Media program for seven years. The goal of this program is to increase significantly the number and quality of independent newspapers in Russia's regions. In addition to the assistance EF and FNE provide to the media outlets, the program produces a number of documentaries about local elections and the role independent press has played in the electoral process. In October 2011, FNE staff travelled to Washington for a public screening of the program's latest documentary, "Made in Berdsk."

Turkmenistan Business and Artisanal Products Development

With funding from a corporate donor, EF and EFCA recently implemented two pilot projects in Turkmenistan. The first involved the modernization of business training programs for Turkmen entrepreneurs and the second extended support to Turkmen artisans. The Business Development Project assessed the educational needs of Turkmen entrepreneurs, developed new business courses, and modernized the curriculum based on existing market needs at the School of Economics and Business in Turkmenistan. The new business courses are based on the recommendations of international and local experts and are aligned with Turkmenistan's educational legislation.

The Crafts Development Project assessed the needs of Turkmen artisans, based on which a series of business trainings and master classes were conducted for 109 artisans. The grantee under this project, Chapak, opened a crafts information center and launched an artisan website to provide informational support to artisans in Turkmenistan. This project has been completed; discussions with the donor regarding extension of the program are ongoing.

DEVELOPMENT UPDATE

Development Update

This report summarizes the financial commitments made to the Eurasia Foundation Network partners for FY11. Together the Network raised and leveraged nearly $39 million this fiscal year. More than $14 million was raised through competitive proposals for US government funding.

The $38.8 million raised this fiscal year is substantially more than the $26.4 million raised in FY10 and the $10.8 million raised in FY09. Of funds committed in FY11, 91% will flow through EF Network accounts; 9% are leveraged funds.<sup>1</sup>

EF Network Funds Raised and Leveraged FY11

Foundation	USG	Non-USG	Leveraged	Total
Eurasia Partnership Foundation	$3,910,590	$6,687,992	$68,318	$10,666,900
Eurasia Foundation of Central Asia	$636,283	$1,269,930	$0	$1,906,213
East Europe Foundation - Ukraine	$642,135	$209,138	$108,387	$959,660
East Europe Foundation - Moldova	$38,865	$548,567	$70,848	$658,280
New Eurasia Foundation	$6,038,222	$5,174,826	$1,422,407	$12,635,455
Eurasia Foundation DC	$3,243,750	$6,917,211	$1,847,515	$12,008,476
TOTAL	$14,509,845	$20,807,664	$3,517,475	$38,834,984

<sup>1</sup> Funding is considered leveraged when a donor contributes to one of our grantees or partners and the contribution is directly contingent EF Network funding or was made possible by direct EF Network involvement. Leveraged funds are counted in totals only when documentation demonstrates that these conditions have been met.

Highlights by Region

Eurasia Partnership Foundation

EPF was awarded more than $5.4 million in core funds from the Swedish International Development Agency (Sida). $3.3 million was allocated to the Georgia office for another three years of core support and $1 million of core support was allocated to both the Azerbaijan and Armenia offices.

Eurasia Foundation of Central Asia

In Kazakhstan, EFCA was awarded $250,000 from Tengizchevroil to carry out the second phase of its Community Engagement program in Atyrau.

East Europe Foundation of Ukraine

EEF-Ukraine was awarded a subcontract of nearly $600,000 from PACT to contribute to the USAID-funded Ukraine National Initiatives to Enhance Reforms (UNITER) program. UNITER supports the development of democratic governance in Ukraine by strengthening leading NGOs.

East Europe Foundation of Moldova

EEF-Moldova was awarded more than $430,000 from Sida to support its Free and Fair Elections program.

New Eurasia Foundation

FNE was awarded $5.2 million by USAID for the next four-year phase of the Russian Independent Print Media Program. FNE also received nearly $1 million from the US-Russia Foundation for Economic Advancement and Rule of Law to implement the Enhancing Research and Entrepreneurial Capacity of Russian Research Universities program.

Eurasia Foundation

EF was awarded $3 million from USAID to carry out the three-year US-Russia Civil Society Partnership Program. EF was also awarded more than $6.5 million from Finland's Ministry for Foreign Affairs to implement the Equal Before the Law: Access to Justice in Central Asia program. EF held a successful fundraising event at the Embassy of Finland to support the Bill Maynes Fund for Future Leaders. More than $100,000 was raised at the event, bringing total funds raised since inception of the program to more than $250,000.

Progress Toward Sustainability Plan Targets

EF's sustainability plan was developed in collaboration with USAID and the State Department.

For the fundraising reporting period of June 2010 through May 2011 - the benchmark period agreed in the sustainability plan - EF raised nearly $9.5 million, or 118% of our $8 million target.

EF awaits decisions on six proposals totaling $7.4 million.

PROGRAM ACTIVITIES

EURASIA FOUNDATION Program Activities

The highlights below are samples of programs being implemented throughout the EF Network.

East Europe Foundation - Moldova (EEF-Moldova)

Supporting Independent Press. In order to strengthen the quality of journalism in Moldova, EEF-Moldova, with funding from USAID and Sida, supports the Independent Press Council (IPC) to promote best practices in responsible journalism. Specifically, IPC is pushing respect for ethical and deontological norms by developing the capacities and abilities of people working in the field of media to produce quality work and to engage them in an active dialogue with citizens. This year, a journalist Code of Ethics was developed by IPC and signed by 86 national and local media outlets, representing almost 60% of all active media outlets in the country. While the IPC is focusing on the journalistic standards of Moldova's media outlets, EEF-Moldova's other grantee, the Audit Bureau of Circulation, is supporting the development of sustainable media in Moldova's regions through grants and technical assistance to emerging media outlets. Ten grants to media outlets were awarded in June 2011.

East Europe Foundation - Ukraine (EEF-Ukraine)

Youth employment counseling

The Everyone Has a Right to Work project is assisting orphans in their integration into society. To assist meeting the employment needs of vulnerable children and youth, EEF – Ukraine developed a training program for social service providers. 31 representatives from educational and social institutions of the Zhytomyr oblast (vocational schools, the oblast social dormitory, representatives of the local employment center, etc.) improved their knowledge on how to run life and employment skills training and how to prepare young people for independent living. The project is funded by USAID, the World Childhood Foundation, and Phillip Morris International.

The Improving the Quality of Vocational School Education project is in its final stage. The initiative is equipping teachers of selected educational institutions with the necessary skills to work with young people. Through this program, EEF-Ukraine trained 16 trainers on life and employment skills. The training course consisted of several modules: “Communication Skills,” “Financial and Time Management,” “Family,” “Human Rights,” “Healthy Way of Life,” and “Professional Orientation and Employment.” As of June 2011, 48 students of two target vocational schools had participated in the trainings, which will be a part of the schools' formal curricula in 2012. In addition, EEF provided the vocational schools with computers other necessary equipment, including overhead projectors and multimedia equipment; installed Internet connections and the required educational and vocational software. To provide access to educational services for young people with disabilities, one of the vocational schools has renovated its facilities with ramps, adapted restrooms, and a specially equipped classroom on the ground floor. The project is funded by USAID, the World Childhood Foundation, and Phillip Morris International.

Eurasia Foundation of Central Asia (EFCA)

Kazakhstan

Sustainability for the handicraft industry. Since 2006, EFCA, with funding from USAID and Chevron Corporation, has supported the Kazakhstan Artisan Business Development Program (KABDP), with the goal of reinvigorating the handicrafts industry in Kazakhstan and promoting an improved operating environment for artisans. In 2010, the main efforts of the program were concentrated around further developing the capacity of resource centers, art managers, and artisans. In 2011, EFCA's program focused on creating the conditions for nationwide cooperation among resource centers, craft support NGOs, and art managers and artisans after the program's close. Towards this end, EFCA supported the networking initiatives of Craft Support Agents and artisans, and securing the support of the Ministry of Culture for KABDP products.

Kyrgyzstan

PWD meeting

People with disabilities claim their entitlements. EFCA, with funding from USAID and SDC, has been working with People with Disabilities (PWDs) affected by the violence of June 2010 and its social and economic aftermath in Osh and Jalalabad, to help them access services provided by government, humanitarian agencies and other actors. Mobile teams in Osh and Jalalabad were deployed to collect data on the needs of 800 PWDs. As a result, 197 PWDs have been provided assistance by local government or other actors, including accessing benefits, legal assistance, the provision of wheelchairs, employment opportunities, and computer courses.

Eight self-help groups are also in operation, bringing together people with disabilities through playing chess and other social activities. EFCA will also open a resource center shortly in Osh where PWDs can meet and get information, earn incomes, and children with or without disabilities can play together.

Tajikistan

NGOs receive practical support. EFCA's project to develop the institutional capacity of NGOs in Tajikistan trained nine consultants who have since begun work advising NGOs in the different regions of Tajikistan, and helping to improve the results of the work of a total of 45 community organizations. In addition, the project prepared and published for the first time in Tajikistan a "Code of Ethics and Professional Conduct for management consultants," which has also assisted the work of the project. The project has yielded significant results. 45 community organizations received training in fundraising, sustainable management practices, working with a council of experts and the Board of Trustees, and adherence of businesses to corporate social responsibility through the financing of humanitarian and development projects. To date, these NGOs have implemented projects totalling more than $500,000, thanks in part to the training received under this program. As a result of these projects, more than 150 people have secured jobs. In more than ten districts of Tajikistan civil society organizations have become more involved in improving people's lives. In September 2011, within the framework of the project EFCA will organize a Forum of NGOs of Tajikistan, at which organizations will discuss ways of achieving results and will have additional opportunities for further development. The project is funded by USAID and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Norway.

South Caucasus – Eurasia Partnership Foundation (EPF)

Armenia

ARM training completion

As part of the Alternative Resources in Media (ARM) program 14 individuals, NGOs, and media production outlets received grant support to implement innovative projects that enhance alternative channels of information flow in Armenia. The Embarrassing Bad Governance project received the best presentation award at the annual Armenian Bar Camp non-conference event in June 2011. The Social Innovation Camp in Sarajevo, Bosnia, recognized the "Badu" social newswire project as a model innovative project to be discussed by the international audience of innovators and media professionals at the Camp in July 2011. Five telecommunication centers (InfoTuns) established in the regions of Armenia contributed to increased media literacy among more than 1,000 rural residents via improved opportunities to access and create alternative media content. So far, InfoTuns registered about 500 visits by local users of high and low tech media services, which might soon result in the establishment of a new generation of active citizen journalists and bloggers in the regions of Armenia. The project is funded by USAID, Internews Network, and Sida.

Azerbaijan

Citizen Journalism New Media supports blogging in Azerbaijan.

EPF, with funding from USAID and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Norway, trained young people from five regions of Azerbaijan in citizen journalism and blogging. EPF also created the regiondan.info website, which allows program participants to write on issues concerning their regions and create joint spaces for participants. In order to inspire youth to develop interesting blogs, EPF selected and published the articles of the most popular articles on the collective blog website.

Strengthening Public Policy and Administration.

The Caucasus Research Resource Centers program (CRRC) is a network of resource, research and training centers established in 2003 in the capital cities of Armenia, Azerbaijan and Georgia with the goal of strengthening social science research and public policy analysis in the South Caucasus. A partnership between the Carnegie Corporation of New York, the Eurasia Partnership Foundation, USAID and local universities, the CRRC network offers scholars and practitioners stable opportunities for integrated research, training and collaboration in the region. Since the opening of the Center in 2003, the CRRC-Georgia office has become a nexus of activity for the South Caucasus social science community by providing open access to fundamental literature, data, and professional training for social science researchers. The centers make it easier for researchers to pursue original work, to base their research on actual transition data, and to participate in the growing domestic policy research community. In 2011, as a result of the Caucasus Barometer report writing competition project, the Online Data Analysis (ODA) software was developed and funded.

New Eurasia Foundation (FNE)

Russian Federation

Program Innovation Fund for Community Development. FNE, with funding from USAID and the Mott Foundation, has selected Russian communities to model the interaction and development mechanisms of local NGOs. The Innovation Fund is organizing meetings with local and regional governments, businesses, and donor organizations, to address problems concerning different population groups. FNE is taking an active part in several meetings and conferences designed to analyze the situation in the Northern Caucasus. As a result of this work, FNE has formed an alliance with several NGOs to promote citizen involvement in local decision making. The program has facilitated the networking and exchange of best practices among Northern Caucasus NGOs, improved the organizational capacity of the local NGOs, enabled them to create participatory mechanisms to influence local decision-making, and supported the integration of North-Caucasian civil society organizations into the broader community of Russian civil society organizations.

Bill Maynes Fellows Program

Bill Maynes Fund for Future Leaders of Eurasia. This fellowship program honors and supports outstanding individuals from the countries where Eurasia Foundation operates and who share Bill Maynes’s vision for stable, inclusive and prosperous societies. The fund builds personal and professional bridges between emerging leaders in the Eurasia region and their counterparts in the United States. This past fiscal year, five fellows were honored. The 2010 Bill Maynes Fellows were Erkingul Karakozueva, a conflict resolution expert from Osh, Kyrgyzstan; Shahla Ismayilova, chair of a women’s rights organization in Baku, Azerbaijan; and Nounch Sarkissian, a journalist and free media advocate from Yerevan, Armenia. Erkingul, Shahla and Nounch participated in a fellowship in Washington in January 2011, culminating in a large public event at the Finnish Embassy in Washington. DC. The 2011 Bill Maynes Fellows visited Washington DC in the fall of 2011. Both of these women are advocates for small business development in their countries and have worked to improve the environment for entrepreneurs and business owners. While in the US, they met with small business associations, EF Trustees and US government and Congressional representatives.

EVALUATION

Highlights in Evaluating EF Network Programs

In FY11, the EF Network foundations completed 14 formal evaluations, including 4 baseline evaluations, 1 process evaluation and 9 summative evaluations. For a complete list of evaluations completed in the second half of FY11 and those planned for the first half of FY12, please refer to the final pages of this evaluation report

Two illustrative evaluations from the EF Network are highlighted below.

Summative Evaluation of the Community Centers for Senior Citizens

The Community Centers for Senior Citizens Project was launched by the East Europe Foundation in 2008. During 2008 – 2010 grants were provided to 8 NGOs to support projects in 3 oblasts of Ukraine: Poltava, Zaporizhya and Sumy. The goal of this project was to create opportunities for social engagement and activities for elderly citizens and to provide them with quality social, legal and community services. This project aimed to increase access to social services for elderly people in newly established community centers; and to replicate experience of the project in other regions of Ukraine.

The summative internal evaluation was conducted by EF/EEF Evaluation Officer Viktor Karpenko with the help of Program Officer Kristina Bagramyan and implementing organizations in the period of April – June 2011. The goal of this project evaluation was to help elaborate EEF's strategy for future program development and evaluate the on-going relevance of the program model for all stakeholders, including local partners and donors. Therefore, the main objectives were to assess overall results of the project and provide recommendations on how such interventions in the area of the social support of the elderly citizens can be improved in the current and future projects.

The evaluation main findings included:

All Centers of Social Activities continue provision of services for their clients in the format of Departments of Social Rehabilitation of the appropriate (City or Raion) Territorial Center of Social Services. Majority of these Departments increased number of their clients (for example, Zaporizhiya City Department – from about 350 in 2009 to 750 in 2010) and services (for example, medical services provided by Khortytsia Raion Department – from about 720 in 2009 to 9 300 in 2010; total number of services provided by the Avtozavodskiy Raion Department – from about 300 in 2009 to about 900 in 2010).

All equipment purchased by EEF was transferred to the Territorial Centers, is available and actively used by the Departments of Social Rehabilitation.

Many clients of the Departments of Social Rehabilitation started to use Information and Computer Technologies for the first time in their life. This is especially important for the rural areas (Dykanka, Nedrygailiv, Lypova Dolyna) and small cities (Pyriatyn) where few families have computers at home.

Results of the focus group interviews with the clients of the Departments of Social Rehabilitation demonstrate their very positive assessment of the services provided and staff of the Departments.

After the end of the project one of the grantees - Red Cross of Ukraine, Zaporizhyya Oblast – received a grant from the German Foundation EVZ. Under this grant they established in 2010 three new Centers of Social Activities for Elderly in the Zhovtneviy Raion of the City of Zaporizhyya and two cities of the Zaporizhyya Oblast – Tokmak and Orekhove.

In 2010-2011 EEF continued to implement the project in the Cherkassy Oblast.

The impact of this project can be defined as sustainability of provision of quality social, legal and community services for elderly citizens. Results of the evaluation conducted indicate that this declared impact was achieved. The following facts can be used as an evidence of this.

All Centers of Social Activities were transformed into Departments of Social Rehabilitation and included in the structure of the appropriate (City or Raion) Territorial Center of Social Services. This means that all expenses of these departments are now covered by appropriate (City or Raion) local budget.

All grantees continue cooperation with the Departments of Social Rehabilitation providing additional financial and technical assistance for them.

Management of the Territorial Centers of Social Services is actively fundraising additional financing for the Departments of Social Rehabilitation both from the local budgets and businesses.

Recommendations formulated on the basis of the evaluation findings are provided below.

Success of the majority of the local projects can be explained by good working relations established by the implementing partners with the local authorities and/or business. These relations provided not only the possibility to achieve planned results of the projects, but to sustain these results in the future. Due to this fact it can be recommended in the possible future projects to select those implementing partners, who can demonstrate not only organizational capacity and experience, but good links and relations with local governments, business and media. This model demonstrated its effectiveness in terms of future sustainability, but it can be used only in the settlements where such Territorial Centers are available. For possible implementation of this approach at the sites without Territorial Center (for example, in the rural areas) it could be recommended to establish CSA on the basis, for example, a club, library or another available local entity.

Unbiased Media Coverage of Armenia-Azerbaijan Relations

EPF conducted evaluation that covers two stages of the Unbiased Media Coverage of Armenia-Azerbaijan Relations project supported by the UK Foreign and Commonwealth Office in Armenia and Azerbaijan. The project was implemented by Eurasia Partnership Foundation offices in Armenia and Azerbaijan in close collaboration with four core partners: Yeni Nesil (Azerbaijan), Yerevan Press Club (Armenia), Internews-Armenia, and Internews-Azerbaijan.

The evaluation assessed the effectiveness of the approaches used by the project, the quality of the products developed by the project, and the effects of the project. The evaluation was conducted in March–April 2011 by Alexei Kuzmin, independent evaluation consultant.

The evaluation’s main findings included:

Both stages of the project were implemented in accordance with their respective implementation plans. The environment for implementation of this project was more favorable in Armenia than in Azerbaijan. Implementation of the project in Azerbaijan involved numerous risks for both implementing partners and participants. Hence, project results will most likely be more visible in Armenia than in Azerbaijan.

The evaluation thoroughly analyzed a variety of creative project outcomes such as documentary films, research reports, media monitoring reports, Media Bias Glossary, cartoons, articles, blogs, and a fictional book. These products constitute a valuable asset that can be used in future activities and as a foundation for future projects. In this respect, the project worked as a highly effective creative laboratory for joint cross-border, media-related activities.

The trainings for journalists were effective and participant reactions to the trainings were very positive. Most likely, participants acquired new knowledge and skills and in many cases the training also affected their attitudes. Training is not a relevant tool for influencing the most prominent and active journalists. The majority of training participants were not the most prominent and active journalists and it seems likely that changes in their behavior will make only minor contributions to “unbiased media coverage of the conflict,” the project’s intended impact. In the longer term, the project’s effects may become more visible.

Key recommendations include:

Differences in the country contexts and the related risks should be carefully explored and considered at the design stage of any cross-border project that involves Armenia and Azerbaijan. If the cross-border project is touching upon sensitive issues, contradictions between the parties involved should be expected. A process for resolving contradictions should be considered an important part of the project that needs skillful facilitation.

Explore opportunities for using assets created in the current project. Note that some products such as the films or glossary are not yet final results in terms of the project intent. They need to be embedded in carefully constructed events whose purposeful contexts insure a positive contribution to the achievement of the project’s expected goal and impact.

The project partners should develop strategies and toolkits for using such products as films purposefully, with consideration of the overall project logic and hierarchy of goals. This work could become a natural follow-up for this project. It will be important to use focus groups, for example, to explore audience reactions to the products.

EPF offices in Armenia and Azerbaijan need to foster dialogue and look for new joint opportunities that take into consideration their experiences and capacities, their strategic priorities and interests, the visions of their leaders, and their local contexts. When it comes to cross-border projects, the organization should operate as “One EPF.” The new joint project could be used effectively to ‘reboot’ and further develop relations between the two offices.

Small Grant Evaluation Statistics, FY11

EF and its network partners collect data on a variety of shared indicators for each grant-funded project. The EF Network foundations closed 41 grants in the second half FY11. The data for the shared indicators for these closed grants are the following:

Changes occurred on individual level

Number of direct individual beneficiaries	5,134
Number of trainees	2,923

Changes occurred on organizational level

Number of organizational beneficiaries	1,854
Number of new partnerships formed by grantees	55
Resources leveraged (in-kind) from counterparts	$113,788

Changes occurred on societal level

Media products disseminated	819
Grantee innovations replicated by others	24
New jobs created	5
New businesses formed	5

Armenia

Artur Ghazaryan

$3,062

Dilijan, Armenia

10/15/2009 - 7/31/2010

The grantee, Dilijan Youth Bank, selected and funded five projects to promote youth involvement in local decision-making. Through the Lessons on Batique project, initiative members, in cooperation with the local arts school, equipped a room for carrying out the batique technique and added the technique to the local arts school's curriculum. Through the Specifics of Sustainable Development in Education project, the initiative group implemented two trainings on non-formal educational tools and methods for 199 school children and 25 teachers from five communities of the Noyemberyan sub-region. Through the Classes on Handcrafting project, 16 women, ages 15-35, participated in training on needlework, knitting, and beadwork. Through the Garbage Removal and Renovation of the House of Culture Garden projects, the initiative groups renovated parks, cleaned local public spaces, and placed garbage cans in the communities of Voskevan and Gandzasar.

Atom Mkhitaryan

$3,078

Yerevan, Armenia

11/18/2009 - 6/30/2010

The grantee, Yerevan Youth Bank, selected and funded five projects to address youth involvement in local decision-making. Through the Healthy Children for a Healthy Society project, initiative members, in cooperation with the Armenian PR Association, were able to organize a one-day campaign for 20 children. Through the Green Light project, members organized two-day trainings in Yerevan for 30 youth with seminars on how to write CVs and motivation letters. Through the New Faces project, members developed a bilingual public youth website, which provides information for student exchange and scholarship opportunities. Through the Miracles of Fairy Tales project, initiative members staged a Yezid fairy tale, highlighting ethnic minority integration issues. Through the Clean Yerevan Clean Hrazdan River project, members organized a one-day campaign to clean parts of the Hrazdan River. Through the Yereqnuk project, initiative members supported the purchase of colorful threads for children with special needs at Yerevan School N2. Organizers will sell the hand-made carpets made by the children to sustain the project.

International Center for Human Development (ICHD) NGO

$75,687

Yerevan, Armenia

9/28/2009 - 6/25/2010

The grantee, with the support of the International Center for Human Development (ICHD), conducted 14 Town Hall Meetings (THMs) in order to promote informed political dialogue between Armenia and Turkey. 1,400 citizens expressed their opinions on five relationship scenarios between Armenia and Turkey. The grantee summarized and analyzed feedback gathered at the THMs and distributed the findings among key Armenian political figures engaged in the Armenia-Turkey rapprochement process. The project informed decision-makers about the attitudes and perceptions of Armenian citizens regarding the Armenia-Turkey rapprochement process, and increased the public's understanding of dialogues taking place between the two countries.

Investigative Journalists NGO

$45,153

Yerevan, Armenia

1/1/2009 - 9/30/2010

The grantee improved community council governance in 60 communities of the Lori, Kotayk, Shirak, Gegharkunik, Tavush, and Syunik regions, in order to increase citizen involvement and transparency of decision-making at the community level. The grantee recruited and trained eight journalists from target regions, produced two TV talk shows, and conducted three roundtable discussions with local residents, civil society organizations, and local government representatives. The grantee produced approximately 200 articles on corruption-related issues in the communities, and made them available online (www.hetq.am), and in the weekly newspaper Hetq. The grantee also produced ten topical inserts for the AZG Daily newspaper, five of which featured material from the targeted regions.

Lala Avetisyan

$3,112

Sisian, Armenia

10/15/2009 - 6/30/2010

The grantee, Sisian Youth Bank, selected and funded four projects to address youth involvement in local decision-making. Through the Eco-club project, initiative members organized a three-day excursion for 28 students to the Sisian Forest Reserve. Through the Beehive project, the initiative group established a beehive farm and purchased six beehives. Through the Youth for the Protection of Schools and Nature project, initiative members purchased 22 rabbits, 16 of which were given to the school eco-club. Through the Children's Playground project, initiative members reconstructed a playground for 130 special needs school children in a yard of the Sisian Local School N1. Through the Chairs project, initiative members built four benches and litter boxes in the Karen Demirchyan Park.

Luiza Petrosyan

$3,345

Gyumri, Armenia

10/15/2009 - 7/31/2010

The grantee, Gyumri Youth Bank, selected and funded four projects to address youth involvement in local decision-making. Through the Open Forum for the Shirak Youth project, initiative members organized regular meetings and discussions with a total of 270 NGO leaders, singers, and civil society representatives. Through the Problems in the Focus of the Camera project, the initiative members organized and implemented four photo exhibition discussions. Through the Los Originales project, initiative members organized four party-club style evenings for 312 local youth. Through the Let's Reconstruct our Village project, initiative members raised AMD 100,000 to reconstruct the Amasia village fountain and its surrounding area, to ensure the green scenery of the park.

Naira Arakelyan

$3,526

Armavir, Armenia

10/15/2009 - 6/30/2010

The grantee, Armavir Youth Bank, selected and funded five projects to address youth involvement in local decision-making. Through the Know Your Rights project, initiative members selected eight students from six participating schools to complete human rights training. Through the Renovation of the Sports Ground project, initiative members supported the reconstruction of athletic fields next to the Armavir First Secondary School, benefiting approximately 2,000 students. Through the Assistance to Socially Vulnerable Children project, 50 socially vulnerable children from St. Ghazar School received stationery and sports goods, and visited the Marz historical monument. Through the Exhibition-sales/Armavir State College project, initiative members purchased painting materials for 45 arts college students. Through the Renovation of the Aygevan Village Park project, initiative members purchased trashcans for the Aygevan Park. Through the Renovation of the Classroom of Norapat Secondary School project, ten school staff members and 18 students assisted in classroom reconstruction. The school management additionally allocated AMD 45,000 to the project for the renovations. The project benefited 500 school children and 40 teaching staff members.

Naira Muradyan

$3,134

Ararat, Armenia

10/16/2009 - 6/30/2010

The grantee, Ararat Youth Bank, selected and funded five projects to address youth involvement in local decision-making. Through the Computer Literacy project, initiative members selected 30 school children from the Yeraskh community to participate in computer literacy trainings. Through the Let's Be Aware project, initiative members increased the number of local youth-led Veratsnund newspaper leaflets from 15 to 99. Through the Film Festival project, initiative members organized a series of film sessions for 242 youth on human right issues, national values, traditions, and conflicts in 11 selected communities of the Ararat region. Through the Trainings project, initiative members organized trainings for 30 youth from the Araqsavan community on basic computer literacy, foreign language, and needlework skills. Through the Treasures of our Homeland project, initiative members organized a pilgrimage for 32 young people from the Surenavan village to Lori.

Yerevan Press Club

$11,744

Yerevan, Armenia

2/1/2008 - 8/16/2010

The grantee improved mutual coverage of issues pertinent to Armenian-Turkish relationships, in order to promote improved dialogue and cooperation between Armenian and Turkish communities. In particular, the grantee produced a compact survey titled, "Armenian-Turkish Civil Initiatives: Press Coverage," to provide media professionals with background information on the major trends in the Armenian-Turkish relationships. The grantee used the survey at the training for an Armenian-Turkish group of eight selected journalists, held in Istanbul in January 2008. Participating journalists had a chance to make exchange visits to create a series of investigative reports. The grantee-published brochure entitled, "Armenian-Turkish Team Reporting Project," which included all articles produced by the participating journalists. Journalists discussed the analytical material, investigative reports, and feedback from major stakeholders at a two-day conference in Yerevan in July 2009.

Yeva Haroyan

$3,124

Martuni, Armenia

12/23/2009 - 7/20/2010

The grantee, Martuni Youth Bank, selected and funded five projects to address youth involvement in local decision-making. Through the Bee Farming Household project, initiative members established a beehive colony breeding and sales group. Initiative members used the funds generated from the sales to purchase bee colonies, hives, and frames. Through the A Mini Theatre project, 130 project team members acquired clothing for the children's theatrical circle at the Sevan Youth Club. The circle mostly includes children from vulnerable families. Initiative members provided approximately 110 meters of fabric to the circle for theatrical clothes. Through the Frames for the Pupils of the Arts School project, 230 project team members purchased 60 frames for an student exhibition. Through the Equipment for the Musical School project, initiative members furnished a school with 15 music literature pieces, 37 classical music CDs, and a mini center with a DVD player and loudspeakers.

Azerbaijan

Agshin Asgarov Getting Involved Competition

$169

Astara, Azerbaijan

8/11/2009 - 12/15/2009

The grantee encouraged young people to participate in democratic processes, and generate awareness about the value of civic engagement. Two initiative groups from Azerbaijan and Georgia jointly collaborated on this project, in order to educate young leaders from Azerbaijan and Georgia about transparent decision-making and active citizenship. The project promoted greater transparency and accountability of local government institutions, and increased young peoples' involvement in decision-making processes. Through interactive discussions and youth meetings, the project increased citizen involvement among secondary school children. The grantee informed participating school children about civic rights, local and international organizations working in Azerbaijan, and human rights.

Azerbaijan National Committee of Helsinki Citizen's Assembly

$10,600

Baku, Azerbaijan

12/30/2008 - 5/31/2009

The grantee organized a pre-simulation workshop for 45 youth participants from Azerbaijan, Armenia, and Georgia, at Bilgi University in Turkey, on parliamentary democracy and democratic processes. The grantee established cross-border partnerships and networks among emerging young leaders in the South Caucasus, and turned project participants into active proponents of parliamentary democracy for reconciling conflicting interests and expectations of different groups through communication and compromise.

Jeyhun Heydarov Getting Involved Competition

$265

Baku, Azerbaijan

8/11/2009 - 11/10/2009

The grantee enabled students to learn how to find jobs in Azerbaijan through a series of meetings between young people and businessmen. Unemployment is one of the biggest challenges for youth in Azerbaijan. Undergraduates do not acquire work experience through internships, and upon graduation they find it difficult to find jobs. The grantee informed businessmen about existing youth unemployment problems, informed young people about possible ways to find employment, and fostered future cooperation between young people and businessmen.

Murad Mammadov Getting Involved Competition

$334

Baku, Azerbaijan

8/11/2009 - 11/10/2009

The grantee promoted healthy lifestyles among school children, and encouraged them to give up smoking. The grantee organized simulation games, held interactive discussions with experts in three secondary schools near Baku, and disseminated booklets and leaflets among young people. Smoking is a widespread habit among youth in Azerbaijan. Many young people, including school children, engage in this destructive habit. The high rate of young smokers has a negative impact on community health and has disastrous consequences on the health of youth.

Nurlan Bilalov

$2,300

Baku, Azerbaijan

4/29/2009 - 6/10/2009

The grantee, Sahil Youth Fund, selected and funded four projects. Through the Youth Cinema Club project, initiative members established a youth cinema club in School No. 319 of the Sahil settlement. The club meets weekly and screens domestic and international movies. Through the Training for Youth on NGO Management, Volunteerism and Community Development project, initiative members trained youth from Sahil on volunteerism, leadership, and NGO management. Through the Ecological Youth Campaign project, initiative members engaged with youth from Sahil about environmental protection. Over a three day period, more than 30 young people from Sahil planted approximately 120 trees in the garden and surroundings of School No. 319. Through the "Youth Internet Portal" (www.gencsahil.com) project, initiative members will provide information with a discussion forum to discuss problems in Sahil.

Qurban Ahmedov

$560

Bilasuvar, Azerbaijan

5/19/2009 - 5/31/2009

The grantee, Bilasuvar Youth Fund, selected and funded the implementation of two projects. Through the Visit to Historical Monuments project, initiative members introduced youth to Azerbaijani historical monuments. Initiative members organized an excursion for 26 young people to Gobustan and to the Palace of Shirvan Shakhs. Through the Intellectual Competition project, initiative members organized an intellectual competition for 63 boys and girls, and the winners received special monetary prizes.

Tural Abdullayev

$738

Yevlakh, Azerbaijan

5/20/2009 - 5/31/2009

The grantee, Mingachevir Youth Fund, selected and funded two projects. Through the Healthy Life project, initiative members conducted educational courses on ecological problems for youth ages 16-19, and organized a painting competition on the issue. The finalists were honored with special prizes. Through the Against Drug Abuse project, initiative members conducted trainings for youth ages 16-19 about the perils of drugs, and distributed 50 booklets on the topic.

Youth for Development NGO

$23,816

Baku, Azerbaijan

2/1/2008 - 9/29/2008

The grantee developed multi-language support for the computer-based elements of the Town Hall Meeting (THM) system, and trained participants on system facilitation and implementation. Upon completion of the skills and system transfer, the grantee successfully implemented a pilot demonstration of the THM system in Georgia on the issue of high school violence, resulting in an analytical paper featuring alternative policy recommendations. The grantee also elaborated a trilateral concept paper to address Kura-Araks river basin issues through regional THMs. As a direct result of the knowledge transfer facilitated by this project, the Armenian and Azerbaijani partners won GBP 200,000 from the UK's Global Conflict Prevention Pool to conduct a series of THMs in Armenia and Azerbaijan about the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict.

Belarus

Business Union of Entrepreneurs and Employers

$67,358

Minsk, Belarus

12/1/2008 - 12/24/2010

The grantee increased the professional capacity of SMEs in the country's regions by providing training and individual consultations to existing and prospective entrepreneurs. The project also facilitated dialogue between businesses and various local authorities by organizing public discussions and roundtables with representatives of stakeholders, and advocating for a more efficient regulatory environment. The project was additionally supported by the Royal Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Georgia

Akhaltzikhe Youth Bank

$1,397

Akhaltzikhe, Georgia

5/21/2010 - 2/15/2011

The grantee selected and awarded three local youth-led initiative groups, in order to increase the awareness of first-time voters about their electoral rights and responsibilities. Local youth-led initiatives produced flyers on various aspects of elections, cleaned up the surroundings of three polling stations in Akhaltsikhe to make the place appealing for the voters, and trained Akhaltsikhe University students on how to advocate for voting rights at the polling stations. Akhaltsikhe Youth Bank was able to raise the local community's interest in election-related issues, and provided opportunities for local youth to engage in community development.

Akhmeta Youth Bank

$1,986

Akhmeta, Georgia

1/18/2010 - 10/15/2011

The grantee increased the capacity and provided the opportunity for the local youth to engage as active citizens in the development of their communities. Akhmeta Youth Bank provided small grants to four local youth initiative groups to renovate sports grounds in the Kvemo Alvani Public School facility, buy new books for the Akhmeta Municipal Library, create a meeting and entertainment center for young people of four villages, and organize a song, dance, and poetry contest for young people of the Akhmeta municipality.

ALPE Foundation

$27,545

Tbilisi, Georgia

12/7/2009 - 6/15/2010

The grantee organized a public roundtable to discuss the most acceptable amendment package, in order to improve access to higher education for ethnic minority secondary school students. The grantee also conducted a study of barriers to higher education for domestic ethnic minority youth. Knowledge of the Georgian language among ethnic minorities remains a barrier to social, economic, and political integration. Additionally, mastery of the official language is a precondition to access higher education.

Association for Environment Protection and Sustainable Development "Mta-Bari"

$35,895

Batumi, Georgia

4/15/2009 - 11/20/2010

The grantee implemented an 18-month project to support ecologically, economically, and socially oriented sustainable use of resources, and to create an alternative means of income in villages near the Mtirala National Park. The grantee addressed problems connected to increased anthropogenic stress on economically important plants species. The grantee succeeded in involving 22 farmer families in the cultivation of economically important and endangered indigenous species of Adjara wild flora, the Galanthus woronowii and Cyclamen coum, controlled by the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES). This process was carried out under close control, as requested by CITES. The grantees provided farmers with special guideline brochures for the cultivation of bulbous plants, as well as information about marketing and exporting these species. The grantee also contributed to active dialogue among main players involved in the process, including the Ministry of Environment Protection and Natural Resources, the Ministry of Economic and Sustainable Development, and experts engaged in the project implementation.

Association "Green Alternative" (GA)

$13,584

Tbilisi, Georgia

2/1/2008 - 1/10/2009

The grantee conducted four trainings in the underserved regions of Oni, Ambrolauri, and Lentekhi, to educate community representatives and local authorities on the basics of forest sector decentralization. 129 community leaders and local officials participated in the trainings. The grantee conducted 26 studies that included monitoring the state of forest, assessing the readiness of local authorities, and monitoring government policy in this field. The grantee posted findings on several websites (www.greenalt.org, www.forestgeo.net, and www.aarhus.dsl.ge) which were visited by almost 500 individuals. The grantee prepared two publications titled the "Manual on Decentralization of the Forestry Sector," and "Monitoring of the Georgian Forest Sector 2007-2008." At the December 2008 seminar, the grantee included the Minister of Environmental Protection and Natural Resources and other stakeholders in a discussion about forest management and local governance. The grantee gave the seminar recommendations to the Ministry of Environmental Protection and Natural Resources, and the Parliamentary Committee for Environmental Protection and Natural Resources. The Ministry of Economic Development abolished the previous controversial decree on granting special licenses for long-term logging, which had given an unfair advantage to companies, and deprived citizens of access to wood.

Association "Mkumali"

$15,936

Tbilisi, Georgia

9/10/2009 - 10/27/2010

The grantee provided free legal assistance to eight homeless children who needed criminal justice system assistance and representation. To support its beneficiaries, the project team also analyzed the current Georgian legislation on juvenile justice and contributed to the preparation of the "Report on Monitoring the Implementation of Criminal Justice Reform," which was developed under the auspices of the Criminal Justice Reform Inter-Agency Coordinating Council. The report describes gaps in the current legislation relevant to juvenile justice, and provides recommendations to better protect the interests of street children. Other sustainable project interventions include vocational training for 25 homeless children to expand the limited employment choices currently available to them and to make them more self-reliant.

Association "Sachino" for the Struggle against Corruption and for the Protection of Consumers'

$4,581

Kutaisi, Georgia

6/10/2010 - 10/2/2010

The grantee, Zurab Khurtsidze, trained ten representatives of Kutaisi-based CSOs, five representatives of CSOs from the municipalities of Khoni, Baghdati, Zestaponi, Vani, and Tskhaltubo, and 20 heads of apartment owners' associations. The grantee selected these individuals from 100 candidates who applied to take part in the training. The trainees learned advanced monitoring, advocacy, networking, and fundraising skills. The grantee provided an additional training on project writing at the request of the trainees. The grant was awarded within the limited grant competition that was a follow-up of the 2009 Training of Trainers project.

Aspindza Youth Bank

$2,309

Aspindza, Georgia

12/28/2009 - 2/3/2011

The grantee selected and funded four youth-led initiatives. Initiative members purchased 20 contemporary youth scientific-education books for the local school library, organized a football tournament for the local youth, and established a recreational mini park for local residents. Initiative members also equipped the Atskvita public school with needed sports supplies.

Batumi Youth Bank $692
Batumi, Georgia 5/25/2010 - 2/25/2011
The grantee selected and funded three local youth initiative groups, in order to inform first-time voters about their electoral rights and responsibilities. Initiative members created flyers and posters, held mock elections, raised the local community's interest in election issues, and provided opportunities for local youth to engage in the development of their own community.

Bolnisi Youth Bank $2,397
Bolnisi, Georgia 10/2/2009 - 4/2/2010
The grantee selected and funded five youth-led projects to address problems faced by local youth, including environmental pollution, outdated library books, a lack of entertainment opportunities, and a lack of opportunities for learning and practicing art. Initiative members planted 367 trees in the village of Kveshi. Another project team mobilized local communities to preserve the cultural and historical heritage of Bolnisi, by organizing local community members to clean up local historical monuments. Another initiative group improved the younger generation's access to contemporary literature by purchasing contemporary scholarly and literary textbooks. Initiative members also organized trainings for young people in the art of tapestry. Initiative members also organized a volunteer community action to clean up the village of Kianeti, and installed large garbage bins along village streets.

Centre for Training and Consultancy $26,572
Tbilisi, Georgia 12/1/2008 - 5/17/2010
The grantee trained 47 representatives of CSOs, mass media, state agencies, and academic institutions in Telavi and Rustavi, on how to identify and design solutions to relevant community problems. Participants developed policy papers on these issues in collaboration with the elected authorities of Telavi and Rustavi. Two participants submitted advocacy project proposals to donors and others initiated local watchdog activities. The grantee successfully carried out a two-tiered approach to developing local civic monitoring resources, by preparing cogent policy papers and successfully advocating for those policies within governmental bodies.

Daily Newspaper Rezonance $7,118
Tbilisi, Georgia 4/1/2010 - 10/31/2010
The grantee investigated and published articles about Georgia's forestry industry, focusing on the mechanisms, scale, and nature of illegal logging. As part of this research and analysis, the grantee provided information about the real and potential harmful effects of illegal logging. The project team investigated illegal logging on a national scale, and disseminated nine newspaper stories in print and online. The stories succeeded in providing the Georgian population and CSOs with in-depth analyses of illegal logging and deforestation.

Dedoplistskaro Youth Bank $2,261
Dedoplistskaro, Georgia 8/2/2010 - 12/1/2010
The grantee selected and funded five local youth-led initiative groups, which provided youth the opportunity to engage as active citizens in the democratic development of their communities. Initiative members organized a summer camp for 64 socially vulnerable youth, and offered trainings on elections related issues. Initiative members organized three-day trainings on elections-related issues for 22 young people residing in the villages of Zemo-Machkhaani, Gamarjveba, and Ozaani, and 21 young people residing in Kedebis-Zona. Through the Active Citizens project, initiative members organized intellectual games, enabling 64 young people to demonstrate their knowledge about election-related issues and civil society. Initiative members additionally implemented a project entitled Civic Education, which organized a three-day training on election-related issues for 21 Dedoplistskaro students.

Georgian Foundation for Strategic and International Studies (GFSIS) $33,032

Tbilisi, Georgia 12/2/2009 - 5/31/2010

The grantee implemented an integrated project composed of capacity building activities, policy development, and Training of Trainers (TOT) components for representatives of ethnic minority communities, in the region of Samtskhe-Javakheti. The grantee organized skills-oriented and awareness-raising training to promote the participation of ethnic minority community representatives in public policy decision-making for 24 representatives of civil society, media, and local government. The project will support the establishment of informal networks among regional civil society groups and Tbilisi-based CSOs.

Georgian Tourism Association (GTA) $44,090

Tbilisi, Georgia 3/23/2009 - 1/15/2010

The grantee conducted three participatory stakeholder workshops in the Lagodekhi, Algeti and Kintrishi Protected Areas (PAs), to increase the knowledge of local stakeholders about practical tourism needs, and set realistic approaches when offering tourism products and services. The grantee created a database for guesthouses in and around the PAs, which includes 45 accommodation facilities. The grantee uploaded information about guesthouses on the international booking website for sustainable tourism (www.travel-tbilisi.com). The grantee additionally created three promotional video clips about the selected PAs, and organized children's camps in the PAs, in cooperation with local schools. In order to develop the attractiveness and educational potential of the selected PAs, the grantee equipped an eco-educational path in the Algeti National Park, with a picnic area, restroom, garbage collection facility, and information boards. The grantee purchased five horse-riding saddles to increase the quality of horse-riding tours in Algeti National Park. More than 50 private and public sector stakeholders attended the final presentation of the project.

Gori Youth Bank $1,300

Gori, Georgia 5/25/2010 - 8/25/2010

The grantee selected and funded four youth-led initiative projects in order to allow the youth to participate in society as active citizens. Through the Green Life project, initiative members planted 500 trees in the name of those who were killed during the August 2008 Russia-Georgia War. Through the Youth for Youth project, initiative members renovated the sports area of Gori Public School No. 2, to support youth engagement in athletic activities. Through the Start with Small project, initiative members established a small flower and tree garden in the yard of Gori Public School No. 5. Through the Books and Future Generation project, initiative members bought 14 contemporary youth scientific books for the Gori Public School No. 4 library.

Guram Tikanadze Svaneti Youth Center $12,109

Mestia region, Georgia 4/1/2010 - 12/15/2010

The grantee conducted civic activism seminars for Latali residents. Out of 79 local participants of these seminars, the grantee selected 40 civic leaders for civic monitoring and advocacy skills training. The grantee distributed 1,200 information leaflets on civic responsibility and engagement. The grantee, in partnership with the Scientific-Information Association of Youth, carried out and submitted a report on the monitoring of problematic service areas by local government. Through monitoring, advocacy, and dialogue with the local government, the grantee helped resolve problems in Latali regarding waste management and the operation of sewage and drinking-water systems. 1,200 residents in eight villages of Latali community benefited from improvements initiated by the grantee. The grantee ultimately created sustainable civic resources for citizen-based advocacy and civic monitoring, by mobilizing and training local community members.

Guria Youth Resource Center

$22,475

Ozurgeti, Georgia

9/20/2009 - 6/30/2010

The grantee increased civic awareness of community members in Ozurgeti and the surrounding villages of Natanebi, Nasakirali, Laituri, and Shroma, and fostered their engagement in decision-making. The grantee applied innovative methods of participatory learning appraisal to gauge the communities' awareness of their rights, understanding of the local government, and the level of citizens' engagement in decision-making. 300 people participated in the survey and focus groups. About 150 community members, mostly young people, improved their monitoring and advocacy knowledge and skills, through trainings in participatory monitoring of the local budget. As a result of these trainings, the grantee identified 20 youth leaders, who consistently engage their community members in civic monitoring and advocacy. The grantee also developed a theatrical sketch, reenacting how citizens' engagement can resolve local issues. The grantee organized this performance twice for 600 attendees. As part of the project, Ozurgeti youth leaders monitored municipal programs, including the Department of Animal Welfare.

Human Rights Center

$8,817

Tbilisi, Georgia

4/1/2010 - 1/31/2011

The grantee investigated cases of recent Georgian citizen forced disappearances, raised awareness about the issue, and facilitated an investigation of these cases by law enforcement agencies. The grantee compiled information on existing disappearance cases, and prepared 11 newspaper stories and three TV documentaries that were uploaded to Georgian and international websites (www.humanrights.ge, www.presa.ge, www.hridc.tv, www.myvideo.ge, www.hub.witness.org, www.youtube.com). The grantee informed the public about the importance of conducting proper investigations, though law enforcement agencies did not officially react to the project. The grantees also did not produce policy-level recommendations. Lessons learned include the necessity to conduct a targeted training in investigative reporting to make sure that the standards used by the grantees conform to internationally-acknowledged ethical and professional standards. No specific developments are expected to continue after the end of the project implementation, although the grantee is active in the field of human rights protection in Georgia and continues the operation of human rights websites (humanrights.ge and www.hridc.tv).

Human Rights Priority

$18,479

Tbilisi, Georgia

9/5/2009 - 12/30/2010

The grantee provided pro bono legal assistance to 24 Georgian victims of the August 2008 Georgia-Russia War, conducted an advocacy skills training for ten lawyers, and trained eight interviewers in conducting legal needs assessments of 1,800 Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs) residing in IDP collective centers, and collective settlements in Tbilisi and Gori. Trained interviewers developed an inventory of financial damages inflicted on IDPs. The grantee also posted detailed information about the project online (www.hrp.ge) so that it is accessible to all parties concerned. The grantee conducted face-to-face meetings with IDPs and disseminated special brochures on IDP rights to increase the community's awareness of their rights. The grantee additionally delivered their needs assessment findings to government representatives in press conferences and special presentations. In response, government officials organized hearings on six IDP cases, including administrative appeals from IDPs receiving legal assistance from the grantee. The grantee joined the European Court of Human Rights (ECHR) litigation network, and prepared ECHR applications for war victims. The project was additionally supported by the Royal Norwegian Embassy's Small Grants Program in Georgia.

Human Rights Protection and Social Equity Research Center $7,895
Poti, Georgia 4/1/2010 - 10/31/2010

The grantee prepared investigative newspaper stories and informed the public about governmental activities in the region of Samegrelo. The grantee conducted six investigations on topics such as water supply rehabilitation in Poti, violations during the local self-government elections, and violations of property rights in Anaklia. As a result of investigations, the newspaper Tavisupali Sitkva published six news stories. The newspaper Rezonansi, the news website Presa.ge, and the NGO Human Rights Centre, additionally published news stories related to the investigations. The grantee did not receive official responses from governmental bodies, however the stories attracted the attention of the public, Georgian media outlets, and human rights organizations.

Independent TV Company Mega TV $7,032
Kutaisi, Georgia 9/1/2010 - 2/28/2011

The grantee coordinated with volunteers, local experts, and municipal authorities to produce and broadcast three investigative documentaries covering important issues impacting the population of Imereti. Mega TV introduced a new investigative program called Vector, and produced two talk shows that focused on project activities. Programs covered topics such as the social inclusion of IDPs, changes to health insurance schemes, and elevator renovation in Kutaisi. The grantee will continue producing investigative civic monitoring stories, and hopes to operate on a long-term basis in order to more permanently monitor local authorities.

Institute of Democracy $8,320
Batumi, Georgia 4/1/2010 - 12/24/2010

The grantee supported investigative journalism in Adjara by developing and launching a new website (www.adjaranews.ge), preparing 24 investigative journalism stories, producing four journalistic investigative documentaries, organizing public discussions with stakeholders, and creating incentives to stimulate investigative reporting in the region. The grantee produced one investigative documentary, which was broadcast on Channel 25 in Batumi. The grantee published the investigative journalism stories on the project website. The stories did not receive official responses from the governmental bodies, however they provided local civil society and the public with an in-depth investigation on salient issues facing Adjara.

Institute of Social Studies and Analysis (ISSA) $37,813
Tbilisi, Georgia 6/5/2009 - 9/30/2010

The grantee conducted a nationwide survey among 3,000 university students of 30 Georgian universities, to assess the knowledge, attitudes and behaviors of young people about sexual and reproductive health, and the risks of HIV/AIDS, in order to address the lack of data about attitudes and behaviors of young people about drug abuse, risks of unprotected sex, and reproductive biology. The results of this survey demonstrated that the current approaches to providing reproductive health information are not adequate in preparing youth for healthy sexual and reproductive lives in early adulthood.

Latali Youth Bank $1,676
Latali, Georgia 5/7/2010 - 11/5/2010

The grantee selected and funded three youth-led initiatives. Initiative members purchased 56 books to establish a youth center library of contemporary literature, trained 30 youth, organized an exhibition of the traditional art of Svanetian needlework, and organized sports games to promote healthy lifestyles.

LTD Center Imedi $7,766
Gurjaani, Georgia 4/1/2010 - 12/31/2010

The grantee investigated cases of human rights violations, corruption, and abuse of public office in the Kakheti region. The grantee conducted eight investigations on topics such as the reconstruction of the Tbilisi-Gombori-Telavi road, composition of election precinct boards during the local elections, cases of nepotism in Akhmeta municipality, and broadcasting violations by local TV stations. Local media produced eight stories as a result of grantee investigations, which were published on the Information Center Kakheti's website (www.ick.ge), in the newspaper Rezonansi, in the news magazine Liberali, on the Human Rights Center's website (www.humanrights.ge), and by other news agencies. Additionally, national TV stations, including Rustavi 2, Maestro, and the Georgian Public Broadcaster (GPB), ran stories as a result of grantee investigations. Several stories received official governmental responses, attracted the attention of national TV stations, and elicited lively public discussions.

LTD Liberali $6,661
Tbilisi, Georgia 4/1/2010 - 10/20/2010

The grantee investigated the Georgian government's reform management processes in social and economic life. The grantee conducted five investigations on topics such as the construction of a new building for the Georgian Parliament, violations in the health care system, the alleged pressure on a regional TV station in Gori, and violations of detainee rights. The grantee produced five stories as a result of its journalistic investigations, published the stories in Liberali magazine, and uploaded them on its web-site (www.liberali.ge). Some of the stories featured by the grantee received an official response from governmental bodies, attracted the attention of other media outlets, and elicited lively public discussions on Liberali's website and Facebook page.

LTD P.S. Newspaper $10,184
Kutaisi, Georgia 4/1/2010 - 7/31/2010

The grantee increased the capacity of journalists working at the newspaper P.S. to provide the public with high quality investigative reporting, and to involve the local population in the project through the creation of a hotline, where citizens are able to call and provide information on violations or problems they encounter. The newspaper produced five newspaper inserts, and conducted four investigative journalism workshops for P.S. journalists. An estimated 250 citizens called the hotline during the project. The grantee published 29 investigative stories and detected serious deficiencies in the implementation of the state countryside support program.

LTD Telecompany "Tanamgzavri" $5,466
Telavi, Georgia 9/1/2010 - 2/18/2011

The grantee developed a series of investigative journalism stories to cover the implementation of the governmental program Support the Countryside in the 28 villages of the Telavi municipality. The grantee conducted informal meetings with the public, provided residents with program information, investigated the quality of the projects completed, and monitored the level of public engagement in the decision-making process. The grantee produced and broadcast 28 investigative documentaries on the TV station Tanamgzavri. The stories did not receive official responses from governmental bodies, however, the grantee organized meetings with local communities to set plans for infrastructure projects. The grantee additionally provided program information to the public, increasing interest in the program.

M Publishing

$27,688

Tbilisi, Georgia

5/1/2009 - 6/15/2010

The grantee successfully developed an online version of the highly popular magazine Hot Chocolate, and contributed to the development of the online media-market in Georgia. During the project, the grantee e-published articles on 15 sensitive and largely culturally taboo topics, which led to wide public discussions and significantly contributed to the shaping of public attitudes toward various sensitive issues related to national culture and the modernization of society. The grantee also posted video podcasts of interviews and reports from cultural events, exclusively from contributors to the magazine. Along with improving Georgian online media, the project led to the creation of a very popular online discussion space, which will contribute to the promotion of a culture of tolerance, pluralism of opinions, civic awareness, and freedom of expression in Georgia.

Marneuli Youth Bank

$2,278

Marneuli, Georgia

2/24/2010 - 12/10/2010

The grantee selected and funded three youth-led initiatives to promote youth community participation. Initiative members organized a Taekwondo tournament to motivate sports involvement. Initiative members also formed three soccer teams and a tournament in the municipalities of Marneuli, Gardabani, and Rustavi. Initiative members also organized educational games for eight public schools in the municipality of Marneuli, targeting the villages of Algeti, Tazakandi, Sabirkande, and Khadjiknde. Initiative members also organized excursions to Tbilisi art museums, and supported local youth photo and drawing exhibitions.

Media Development Foundation

$24,183

Tbilisi, Georgia

12/1/2009 - 5/31/2010

The grantee confronted offensive language directed at ethnic, religious, and cultural minorities in Georgian press outlets through a three-month long media monitoring process, three focus group meetings, a roundtable discussion, and a journalist training session. The grantee identified potentially offensive media stereotypes, stigmas, insults, jokes, and expressions of intolerance towards ethnic, religious, and cultural minorities to help prevent potentially offensive content from being published in the future.

Medical Workers Initiative

$21,214

Kutaisi, Georgia

3/10/2009 - 5/19/2010

The grantee increased the capacity of 310 Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs) in Kutaisi collection centers to monitor state-funded medical services and to secure access to quality medical services. The grantee cooperated with the CSO Argusi, and local newspaper, radio, and television outlets. The grantee developed 16 reports and four informational brochures, which were disseminated to inform targeted groups about their advocacy and monitoring methods. The grantee also operated a hotline, through which the grantee rendered more than 100 consultations to concerned citizens. The Coordination Consultative Center for the Protection of Patients' Rights, which was created during the project cycle, continues to operate to this day, and supports advocacy efforts of local IDP patients and their families.

Newspaper "Akhali Gazeti" $8,219
Kutaisi, Georgia 9/1/2010 - 2/28/2011
The grantee produced six investigative journalism articles on topics such as investments in Kutaisi, violations of natural resources licensing, and rights of religious minorities to construct places of worship. Although there was no direct reaction from the local governmental bodies on the violations uncovered, the grantee disseminated investigations through the organization of two discussion meetings with participation of local NGOs and local self-government, in a TV show Forum on Mega TV, and participation in social media. There were no policy-level recommendations envisaged to be produced within this project. Lessons learned include a necessity to organize targeted trainings in investigative journalism before project implementation, in order to ensure a high quality of produced materials, and improve capacities of journalists in investigative reporting.

Newspaper "Kakhetis Khma" $6,736
Gurjaani, Georgia 9/1/2010 - 2/28/2011
The grantee provided the population of the Kakheti region with access to investigative journalism by providing the newspaper Kakhetis Khma with experienced investigative journalists to mentor its journalists in investigation design and implementation. The grantee produced seven investigative journalism articles on topics such as the energy distribution system in Kakheti, the implementation of river bank reinforcement projects, and the impact of low quality pesticides on Kakheti vineyards. Grantee investigations received responses from governmental bodies, local NGOs, and other media outlets.

Ozurgeti Youth Bank $2,849
Ozurgeti, Georgia 10/20/2009 - 11/1/2010
The grantee selected and funded five youth-led initiatives. Through the A Road to Healthy Life project, initiative members renovated the football stadium in the village of Nagobilevi, and organized a football tournament to promote active and healthy lifestyles among the youth. Through the English Language Library project, initiative members purchased 45 English language books for the Meria Village Public School in order to improve Meria youth access to English language literature. Through the Intellectual Games Tournament project, initiative members organized a tournament among the students attending five public schools located in the municipality of Ozurgeti in order to foster a culture of intellectualism among the youth. Initiative members also organized a conference on climate change, where 70 students from three Lanchkhuti public schools discussed global warming, and organized a protest rally in front of a local tarmac factory.

Peaceful and Business Caucasus $24,840
Kutaisi, Georgia 2/1/2010 - 7/31/2010
The grantee utilized the potential of public diplomacy in combination with healthy business aspirations of Abkhaz and Ossetian citizens, by stopping the alienation process between Georgians, Abkhazians, and Ossetians involved in the project. 100 Abkhazians, 100 Ossetians, and 200 Georgians participated in the project. The grantee implemented shop tours to Lilo and Gonio wholesale markets, and provided the Abkhaz and Ossetian participants with the opportunity to meet with prominent Georgian public figures and experts to discuss issues of mutual interest. According to participant feedback, these meetings further contributed to confidence-building. One of the positive outcomes of this project was a high-profile reception for Abkhaz and Ossetian participants by the Catholicos Patriarch of the Georgian Orthodox Church, who awarded the guests a small amount of cash for their future activities.

Public Union "The Young Scientists' Club of Ozurgeti" $4,069
Ozurgeti, Georgia 6/10/2010 - 9/9/2010
The grantee organized advocacy and civic monitoring trainings for 36 civic activists and journalists from Ozurgeti, Lanchkhuti, and Chokhatauri. The training participants prepared issues-based monitoring plans under the guidance of the grantee. The project increased the number of civic monitoring practitioners in Guria, who conducted civic monitoring and advocacy events in their communities.

TASO Foundation $29,664
Tbilisi, Georgia 5/10/2009 - 7/15/2010
The grantee fostered increased civic awareness and improved capacity of both IDPs and local villagers by providing hands on trainings on various topics. By creating a Women's Resource Center in the frontline village of Karaleti, 15 IDP women learned how to use a computer, and 35 received consultations on specific issues of their interest. 139 participants from Karaleti, and eight from adjacent villages participated in educational programs provided by the Women's Resource Center. Six project participants received training in conflict settlement and three were trained as trainers in community empowerment. 500 brochures and 300 posters served as valuable informational sources for the beneficiaries in Karaleti and other villages. The grantee equipped the Women's Resource Center with a library, internet, and telephone lines. The Center, which is managed by a ten-person initiative group, continues to provide consultations and assistance to local IDP community groups. The project was a part of TASO Foundation's larger program that aimed to support rural IDP women to engage in social and economic activities in the Shida Kartli region.

Tserovani Youth Bank $2,704
Tserovani, Georgia 2/24/2010 - 3/24/2010
The grantee selected and funded five youth led initiative groups to participate in society as active citizens. Initiative members taught a group of ten IDP youth how to make art out of natural materials such as leaves and flowers. Initiative members organized excursions to the nearby territories to de-stress and collect natural material for handicrafts. Initiative members also created the first youth community library in the community of Tserovani, purchasing 35 books and setting up a library book registry. The members established another small library in a different part of Tserovani to make sure that youth have access to books in two locations.

Union Southern Gates $9,509
Akhaltsikhe, Georgia 9/1/2010 - 2/28/2011
The grantee provided access to investigative Georgian and Armenian language journalism articles in the Samtskhe-Javakheti region. The grantee enlisted an experienced investigative journalist, Mr. Zviad Koridze, to mentor eight journalists in designing and implementing investigations. The trained journalists produced eight investigative journalism articles on topics such as potable water problems, forestry, ecological problems of Lake Khanchala, and the repatriation of Meskhetian Turks. The project did not receive an official response from governmental bodies, however, some investigations conducted by the grantee received attention from environmental NGOs.

Union Studio Monitor $36,252
Tbilisi, Georgia 10/1/2008 - 7/31/2009
The grantee recorded independent journalistic watchdog activities through nine documentaries based on journalistic investigations of abuses of power by central and local authorities and human rights violations in various spheres. The films covered the topics such as private property seizures, business takeovers, abuses of power by financial police and law enforcement bodies, spending of the presidential reserve fund and the Tbilisi mayor's reserve fund, abuse of administrative resources for pre-election activities, and IDP issues. A documentary film about 15,000 social workers hired by Tbilisi City Hall, who were accused of campaigning on behalf of the ruling United National Movement party before the parliamentary elections, had wide resonance and its transcript was reprinted by the popular magazine Liberali, provoking much public discussion. The project contributed to the development of the media and independent journalistic studios as watchdog organizations.

Union "Svaneti Tourism Center"

$20,679

Svaneti, Georgia

5/15/2009 - 2/28/2010

The grantee implemented a nine-month project to attract tourists to villages of the Upper Svaneti region, by facilitating sustainable and safe tourism development. The grantee conducted seminars and trainings for local guesthouse owners, and trained tour guides and rescuers. 17 local guesthouse owners, 11 guides, and eight rescuers participated in the seminar. The grantee also prepared a special guidebook for rescuers. The grantee disseminated information about guesthouse owners, guides, and rescuers trained during the project to tour operators. After the completion of the project, the Svaneti Tourism Center continued to update information and photos about available guesthouses on their webpage. The center will complete and place the guesthouse information on the Georgian Tourism Association's webpage.

Violence Protection and Civil Education Regional Center

$8,754

Gurjaani, Georgia

4/1/2010 - 12/31/2010

The grantee prepared investigative TV stories covering the governmental Support the Countryside programs in the municipalities of Gurjaani, Kvareli, Lagodekhi, and Signaghi. The grantee prepared four documentaries, requested public information from governmental bodies, and conducted onsite investigations in the villages. The project resulted in greater governmental program efficiency, prompted reactions from the relevant governmental bodies, and increased public access to information about the municipalities' activities, and improved public oversight. In some cases, the relevant governmental bodies took action and ensured public participation in decision-making processes.

Wild Plant Conservation Association (WPCA)

$29,477

Tbilisi, Georgia

3/25/2009 - 9/30/2010

The grantee developed ways to protect the economically important Cyclamen vernum Sweet and Galanthus woronowii Losinsk plants, as part of the 2009 Eco Awards Program. The grantee conserved the two species ex-situ by creating natural collections and a seed bank. The grantee evaluated the status of the target plant populations in eastern Georgia. In collaboration with representatives of Kew Royal Botanic Garden, the grantee elaborated and tested a special method of vegetative reproduction. This was especially important in the case of Cyclamen vernum Sweet, which does not reproduce naturally through vegetation. A portion of the seeds collected during the field visits were sown in laboratories, greenhouses, and natural conditions outside. The seeds were placed in a Caucasian Regional Seeds Bank located at the Tbilisi Botanical Gardens. This reserve will be used for further research and testing. The grantee additionally placed duplicates in the Millennium Seeds Bank, at the Kew Royal Botanic Garden in the United Kingdom. 50 samples of herbaria that the grantee collected during the field visits were sent to the Georgian National Herbarium.

Young Pedagogues Union

$23,205

Ozurgeti, Georgia

9/20/2009 - 10/5/2010

The grantee monitored the implementation of the Law of Georgia on General Education in 15 secondary schools in the municipalities of Ozurgeti, Lanchkhuti, and Chokhatauri. As a result of monitoring activities, the grantee better understood how various provisions of the law are implemented, and organized recommendations to deal with implementation issues revealed during the monitoring. The grantee organized four trainings on monitoring and advocacy, attended by 60 participants. Participants later established several internal and external monitoring groups to conduct public oversight of targeted schools, and coordinated with local communities and experts to take part in this process. The monitoring groups conducted 45 monitoring projects in target schools, and informed the relevant local and central authorities about detected shortcomings in school discipline, management, education, and curriculum.

Zugdidi Youth Bank

$2,242

Zugdidi, Georgia

2/1/2010 - 12/1/2010

The grantee selected and funded three youth-led initiatives to promote youth community participation. Initiative members formed a theatre group and staged a public performance in Zugdidi, enabling the local youth to display their acting talent. Initiative members also began a national dancing, singing, and poetry reading competition between public school students to preserve cultural traditions. Initiative members staged a performance about violence, smoking, alcohol, drug abuse, and gambling addiction. Initiative members also organized intellectual games to deepen members' knowledge in various fields of study.

Kazakhstan*East Kazakhstan Oblast Association of Museum Workers

$9,297

Ust-Kamenogorsk, Kazakhstan

3/9/2010 - 7/9/2010

The grantee trained 17 artisans how to market their crafts, in order to develop distribution channels for crafts in the Eastern-Kazakhstan oblast. The grantee organized the Young Craftsman of East Kazakhstan Oblast crafts fair for 61 artisans. Nine artisans participated in the II Inter-regional Fair of Traditional Kazakh Decorative and Applied Arts. Craftsmen gained access to new distribution channels by participating in fairs in Ust-Kamenogorsk and Semey. The grantee also introduced master classes for fair visitors as a new marketing approach. The crafts fair and three, two-day trainings on Kazakh traditional weaving, felt-making, and weaving with reed mace, were jointly held with the Eastern-Kazakhstan oblast's Akimat, within the Gender Policy in Kazakhstan: Authority and Society conference. UNDP-committed program funding came from the Chevron Corporation, in conjunction with the Kazakhstan Artisan Business Development Program.

Our Heritage Public Foundation

$21,220

Almaty, Kazakhstan

12/1/2009 - 6/30/2010

The grantee increased the share of Kazakhstan's crafts in local and regional markets, in order to reduce the costs of distributing crafts in Almaty and Astana. 67 artisans in central, southern, eastern Kazakhstan and Almaty oblasts were trained to market their crafts. For the trained artisans, art managers conducted a fair training in Almaty. By the project's end, artisans from central, southern, eastern Kazakhstan and Almaty oblasts improved their art marketing knowledge and skills. The grantee developed a manual and reference materials for art-manager, and a group of ten art-managers created and four points for craft production and distribution established. Finally, artisans changed their marketing approaches and increased their sales by an average of 30%. Funding came from the Chevron Corporation and the Kcell Company, within the framework of the Kazakhstan Artisan Business Development Program.

Russian Federation

Local Level Collaboration Center/Krasnoyarsk

Regional Community Organization

$14,600

Krasnoyarsk, Russia

5/12/2010 - 11/15/2010

The grantee facilitated the development of the Coordination Board for the Development of Community Education as part of the Monitoring and Evaluating the Development of Community Schools: Methods and Indicators meeting. The meeting participants took an active part in the roundtable events and workshops held within the framework of the Annual National Forum for the development of community schools. In addition, the meeting participants discussed the report, "Experiences in Testing Community School Development Methods." The grantee helped design a document describing a system of criteria used to assess the development of community schools and put together a plan of further actions to finalize the Russian version of the community school self-evaluation guidelines and self-evaluation instructions. Finally, the project helped design a number of training programs, incorporating self-evaluation into the regular community school practices, and assigning scopes of responsibility. All project-related information is available on the Russian community schools movement website.

NGO Civil Strategy

$11,896

Karachaevo-Cherkessia, Russia

1/11/2009 - 6/30/2010

The grantee improved the operating effectiveness of the secondary and boarding schools of the Republic of Karachaevo-Cherkessia in interethnic conflict prevention and resolution, and the promotion of tolerance among secondary school students.

Public Organization "Youth Problems Institute"

$13,264

Nalchik, Russia

12/01/2009 - 6/30/2010

The grantee designed a series of training seminars to develop productive interethnic communication skills in young people residing in the Baksansky, Prokhladnensky, and Chereksky districts of the Republic of Kabardino-Balkaria. As a result of the training, the grantee established experimental interethnic collaboration forums in three selected settlements. Additionally, executive bodies, local self-government bodies, youth parliaments, public associations, and organizations of the Republic of Kabardino-Balkaria have been involved in conflict prevention activities.

Resource Center of Community Schools

$14,540

Omsk, Russia

11/1/2010 - 2/28/2011

The grantee held a conference called The Future is in Our Hands, which helped introduce the leaders of community school resource centers to the practical experiences accumulated in the Omsk region to date, which may be found useful when determining the development strategy of the community schools movement, as well as the role of community school resource centers. Conference participants also attended training sessions on the development of effective collaboration between community school resource centers, bodies of power, and private businesses.

Southern Regional Resource Center

$12,412

Krasnodar, Russia

12/1/2009 - 12/31/2010

The grantee established a permanent institute of social moderators in the sphere of interethnic relations in the Krasnodar region and the Republic of Adygea. The grantee enabled the participants of the Social Facilitation School to act as social facilitators within their social organizations, and take an active part in the implementation of social projects designed to prevent xenophobia, and promote positive, conflict free interethnic relations. The social facilitation specialists took part in the Social Facilitation as an Interethnic Conflict Prevention Tool training seminar, implemented 10 initiatives designed to reduce the propensity for conflict among the youth of the Krasnodar region, obtained information about the methods that can be used to prevent interethnic conflict in the Northern Caucasus, and submitted analytical briefs detailing the pilot project results to four local self-government leaders in the Krasnodar region and the Republic of Adygea.

Ulyanovsk Local Youth Movement "Association of Learning Youth"

$14,735

Ulyanovsk, Russia

5/12/2010 - 9/15/2010

The grantee identified the motivational preferences of participants in the Russian community schools movement, and opportunities for the creation of a motivational field for the community schools network. The grantee organized a special conference of the Coordination Board for the Development of Community Education. Conference participants were presented with the report, "Motivational Field of the Community Schools Network," that was prepared specifically to be discussed at this meeting. As part of the educational component, the grantee trained conference participants in handling obstacles impeding innovation at learning institutions.

Lithuania*European Humanities University

$225,300

Vilnius, Lithuania

6/1/2009 - 4/29/2011

The grantee supported the institutional development of the European Humanities University (EHU). It solidified its development functions, and continued to provide access to exceptional higher education for Belarusian students by developing the "Communication Strategy," "Projects Design," and "Students' Projects Design" manuals. The project is an important step towards increased access to education among young Belarusians, and will promote the EHU as a prominent European university.

Ukraine*Agency for Economic Development, Voznesensk City

$13,235

Voznesensk, Ukraine

8/1/2009 - 7/31/2010

The grantee engaged citizens in energy efficiency policymaking, and provided residents with the capacity, resources, and incentives to improve energy efficiency. Project experts explored energy and resource savings related problems in heating, lighting, and waste management, and developed recommendations on improvements. The grantee raised more than $7,000 for the competition, from the city council and the International Renaissance Foundation. 60 individual consultations were provided to potential applicants. The competition produced eight projects that were implemented, each envisaging modernization of lighting in territories surrounding multi-dwelling apartment buildings or common spaces. Residents contributed more than $1,000 to the project budgets, which, in the first two months, resulted in energy savings ranging from 44.6%-50.3%. The estimated average yearly savings on the pilot sites totaled 75%. Publications included 35 media reports on these initiatives and a booklet on energy efficient technology. The grantee also developed an interactive presentation on energy saving for administrators and 227 students. Recommendations have been incorporated into the city's sustainable energy development program, approved by the city council on August 26, 2010.

All - Ukrainian Charitable Organization "Care for Elderly in Ukraine" $6,691
Cherkasy, Ukraine 12/15/2010 - 6/15/2011

The grantee founded a community center for elderly people on the premises of a municipal territory center in the city of Cherkasy. The grantee first identified activities that would be popular among center clients and created five hobby groups, including vocal, retro movie club, aromatherapy, crafts, and chess and checkers groups. As a result of the project, 126 people visited and actively participated in the center's five hobby groups. The center provided 841 aromatherapy sessions and organized two excursions for the elderly clients. The grantee also organized training for 20 volunteers that work with the elderly. The local media took interest in the center and highlighted its activities in two radio spots and two print articles. The project was additionally supported by Japan Tobacco International (JTI).

Association Lviv Tourist Board $14,916
Lviv, Ukraine 7/1/2009 - 3/31/2010

The grantee designed a tourism route, created documentation needed to establish such a route, and lobbied for local financial assistance to support its efforts. In order to increase the quality of tourism services for people with disabilities, the grantee developed a learning module on tourism for people with special needs that has been incorporated into general tour guide courses in Lviv. During a three-day seminar, the grantee acquainted 90 tour guides with the specifics of working with special - needs tourists. The grantee also published 500 copies of a tourism guide for professionals, and 1,000 copies of self-guided city tours for people with special needs. A total of 58 representatives from local NGOs discussed the existing situation, and ways to improve tourism opportunities for people with special needs at an international conference organized by the grantee.

Berdyansk City Committee of Movement
"Educators For Peace and Understanding" $10,236
Berdyansk, Ukraine 5/17/2010 - 12/1/2010

The grantee developed mechanisms for establishing partnerships between NGOs, small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), and governmental organizations to solve local problems. As part of the training program, 59 representatives of local NGOs and SMEs participated in workshops on social partnerships, proposal development, and presentation efficiency. The grantee consulted with 16 local NGOs to develop their proposals and present them during a community project fair. The grantee also published a brochure entitled, "Berdyansk NGO Initiatives" and presented its contents during the fair. The project received significant local media coverage, with 19 print and online articles, and 12 TV and radio news stories. Of the 12 initiatives developed by community and youth NGOs in various areas of community life, eight of those presented during the fair were supported by local businesses for a total sum of UAH 22,220. To increase the participation of local NGOs in community life and to make their activities more sustainable, the grantee partnered with the municipal government to develop regulations on open competitions for social projects funded from the city budget.

Bukovinska Partnership Agency, Chernivtsy City Public Union $9,243
Chernivtsi, Ukraine 9/22/2008 - 1/23/2009

The grantee established a fund to assist small communities and individual households, and designed procedures for administration of the disaster recovery fund. Two independent commissions were composed in the districts of Vyzhnytsia and Hlyboka, with local coordinators appointed for each. Each commission held five meetings with local coordinators, and traveled to flood sites more than 50 times to assess damage and monitor the progress of the supported applications. During October and November, the commissions reviewed nearly 300 residential and community applications, eventually supporting 22 community and 93 individual household applications. Among the community applications, the projects mainly focused on the reconstruction of pedestrian bridges and pontoon bridges, public wells and water pipes, as well as other public infrastructure. Two press conferences were conducted, resulting in 15 articles published in the local media, three articles posted online, and 14 TV and radio segments.

Bukovinska Partnership Agency, Chernivtsy City Public Union $15,137
Chernivtsi, Ukraine 10/1/2009 - 7/23/2010

The grantee promoted e-governance activities in the Chernivtsi oblast. The grantee first studied the e-readiness of the oblast communities and provided recommendations on possible improvements in public service provisions through the use of Information and Communication Technologies (ICT). The results were presented to deputies of the Chernivtsi oblast and local councils. The grantee also developed training materials and organized training seminars for public servants in the 11 other districts of the Chernivtsi oblast to outline the benefits of e-governance. 663 public servants were trained on e-governance issues and the application of the Smart Village system, which was installed in the 260 rural councils of the oblast. The project was co-funded by the OSCE Project Coordinator in Ukraine.

Creavita Kharkiv Disabled Persons Charitable Organization $11,393
Kharkiv, Ukraine 5/17/2010 - 4/29/2011

The grantee established partnerships between NGOs, the business community, and local authorities, with the aim of jointly developing innovative approaches in order to make the city of Kharkiv more accessible for disabled people. The grantee held three roundtable discussions for 115 representatives of private transport companies, construction companies, and the heads of administrative and social institutions in the city to discuss inaccessible infrastructure. As part of an information campaign, the grantee created an 18-minute video about accessibility in the city for the disabled and published leaflets and more than 1,000 copies of a booklet about efforts to make the city more accessible. The grantee conducted a broad media campaign conducted throughout the project, which resulted in more than ten articles appearing in online and print media. The organization also partnered with the Kharkiv City Council to make the city's opera house accessible for disabled people, and organized a lobbying campaign to attract funding to enable other buildings to be made more accessible. The project has brought accessible infrastructures into the mind of the public, and has increased the community's ability to formulate civic policy impacting people with disabilities. The grantees additionally organized a permanent working group, which will continue to pursue improvements in city infrastructures. Working group recommendations contributed to the municipal program to promote safe living and social protection of the citizens of Kharkiv.

Charitable Foundation Civil Initiatives Center

$10,400

Perechyn, Ukraine

7/15/2010 - 5/15/2011

The grantee created an initiative group made up of 20 representatives from the community, town council, and local businesses, in order to provide sustainable economic, social, and cultural development for the town of Perechyn. Previously, the Perechyn Town Council did not have a systematic tool for strategic city management and, therefore, could not effectively plan the community's development. The working group members improved their skills during training seminars and study tours to the towns of Rakhiv, Vinohradiv, Dolyna and Yaremche. The group drafted a strategic plan and organized five follow-up public hearings. The grantee involved over 150 local citizens in discussions of the strategic plan and the grantee informed approximately 6,000 citizens of the initiative through newspapers, websites, and newsletters. As a result, the town council approved a strategic plan for Perechyn up until 2021. This project was additionally supported by UNITER, which is funded by USAID through PACT, Inc. in partnership with the International Renaissance Foundation.

Charitable Organization "Malteser Assistance Service"

$6,812

Ivano-Frankivsk, Ukraine

10/12/2009 - 5/12/2010

The grantee conducted a project aimed at lobbying for equal rights and drawing attention to existing problems of accessibility for people with special needs in Ivano-Frankivsk oblast. As part of the project the grantee assessed 15 existing city buildings, including hotels, movie theaters, the local university, and city hall. The results of the assessment were posted on the separate "Accessibility" section on the grantee's website, while the site itself also includes legal documentation, best practices in this area and various documents that reflect the current situation with regard to accessibility of city infrastructure. In order to draw attention to the topic, five public events were staged in various raions of Ivano-Frankivsk oblast, and a competition to create socially oriented advertising was held among local school children. More than 400 people witnessed or took part in the events, while 70 representatives from local NGOs, the media and civic activists participated in the final press conference. The project is part of the program entitled, World Without Barriers: Equal Access for People with Special Needs, a program additionally supported by the Telenor Group in Ukraine.
