West Africa Rice Development Association (WARDA)

Program Description

January 1, 1976 through December 31, 1976

A. Project Objectives

WARDA is an inter-governmental regional organization with the primary aim of making West Africa self-sufficient in rice. Its members are: Dahomey, Gambia, Ghana, Ivory Coast, Liberia, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Togo and Upper Volta. The Constitution of the Association was adopted in Dakar, Senegal in 1970, but the Association started to function at its headquarters in Monrovia, Liberia on 1 December, 1971.

The member countries contribute to the administrative budget of WARDA, while the cooperating countries and organizations, namely France, The Netherlands, United Kingdom, United States (AID), Canada, Belgium, Ford Foundation, UNDP and the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) finance the research and development projects.

According to its statutes the new objectives of the Association are to promote and increase the quantity and quality of rice produced in West Africa by:

1. encouraging, coordinating, and undertaking as necessary, basic and applied research programmes in the scientific, technical, economic and sociological fields;
2. collecting, analyzing and disseminating information on methods applied, experience gained, and results obtained both within and outside West Africa;
3. organizing or arranging for conferences, seminars and training facilities, securing of fellowships and establishing, or assisting in the establishment of advisory services and training and extension facilities;
4. elaborating requests for special financial and technical assistance and receiving and administering separately such financial and technical assistance (including movable and immovable property, services and loans), as may be made available under the appropriate programmes of the United Nations, the Specialized Agencies, other organizations or governments desirous to support the aims of the Association;
5. providing, as appropriate, regional rice research and development facilities;

6. carrying out or promoting any other measure or activities at the regional as well as the national level, as determined by the Governing Council, for the purpose of developing rice production and marketing in West Africa.

B. General

1. Organization - The Headquarters of WARDA is located at the E.J. Roye Memorial Building in Monrovia, Liberia. It is made up of the Executive Secretariat, a Research Department whose function covers the Coordinated Trials (Project W-1) and the Special Research Projects originally W-2, W-3 and W-4 and now regrouped and integrated into Regional research projects for irrigated rice (Richard Toll) mangrove rice (Rokupr) Deep-flooded and floating rice (Mopti) rainfed rice (Bouake). There is also a Development Department with five divisions: Project Design, Project Quantification, Loans Management, Seed Multiplication, Production Mechanization; an Administrative and Finance Division, Documentation, Communications and Statistics Divisions. All the activities of the Association are coordinated by the Executive Secretary assisted by the Deputy Executive Secretary and the other members of ^{the} staff. The Secretariat has enjoyed close cooperation and support of the URDP/FAO which was instrumental in preparing the initial studies for formulating WARDA Research and Development projects. It has also enlisted the cooperation of IITA, IRAT, IRRI, AICRIP, OAU/STRC and ECA, and several donor countries including USAID, France, U.K., The Netherlands, Arab countries, etc.

2. Research Programs - WARDA's research programs consists of three parts: Coordinated Trials, Special Research Projects and Research Coordination. Only the Coordinated Trials (W-1) program is directly supported by the CGIAR of which AID is a contributing member, and for which this Grant is made. The other two programs receive support from various countries and organizations on a bilateral basis and are therefore not addressed in this proposal.

C. Coordinated Trials

1. General - The concept of coordinated trials is not new. It is one of the most efficient ways to obtain quick and reliable results on varietal performance, best fertilizer practices and plant protection measures by eliminating national borders. Generally speaking, coordinated trials have the following characteristics and objectives in common:

- a. They are simple in design and handling so that they can be easily conducted at a large number of locations.
- b. Each coordinated trial has a given set of varieties or treatments, but to allow for local preferences and suggestions, a limited number of varieties or treatments can be added as optional.
- c. The essence is to obtain quick and reliable results which should be applicable for extension to farmers. As such, these trials may be considered as the final stage of testing promising varieties, good fertilizer rates and practices, and adequate control measures against weeds and insects.

- d. An adequate number of test locations is necessary to obtain quick and reliable information from this type of production-oriented field trials.
- e. It is not only a speedy process as multi-location experience is substituted for multi-seasonal experience, but it also provides a unique opportunity to detect most useful additional information such as on adaptability and disease and pest reaction.

The coordinated trials are designed and managed in such a way as to obtain quick and reliable results on varietal performance, best fertilizer practices and plant protection measures under various rice growing conditions in West Africa.

The first set of Coordinated Trials designed to provide information on the best varieties available for each area and on optimum fertilizer rates was planted in June/July, 1973 at 27 locations. They were approximately 75 trials in all. About 12 insect control trials and another 30 variety trials were conducted in member countries which conducted trials on the crop in November/December, 1973.

For each trial, detailed guidelines and instructions were issued along with data collection and trial information sheets to enable a proper interpretation of the results obtained. The seed rice for the Coordinated Trials were supplied by member countries, IRRI, Thailand and others and are treated before being redistributed to member countries for sowing.

A sound programme of coordinated trials and effective links between WARDA and the National Extension Services should lead to a rapid introduction of improved varieties and better cultural practices among the rice farmers in West Africa.

2. Specific Activities - Coordinated trials of varieties, fertilizer and crop protection are conducted at a network of locations in the region with the aim of establishing a direct impact on rice development in the region. This program is fully supported by such important components as the Seed Processing and Storage Center, the Plant Quarantine Center and Training of Field assistants who conduct the trials.

a. Seed Storage

With respect to the coordinated trials, by far the most important activity at present is with the Variety trials. The Seed Storage and Processing Laboratories receive, treat and distribute rice seeds for the Variety trials. It has a facility for testing for purity, germination, insect and disease; seed cleaners, fumigation, drying and quality testing equipment. This ensures the supply of pure and standard rice seeds to all the trial sites in good time.

b. Rice Quarantine

Strict Plant Quarantine Regulations in West Africa and the limited facilities at the Regional Plant Quarantine Station at Ibadan, Nigeria for handling large quantities and varieties of rice introduction had hampered WARDA's programme on Variety improvement. To overcome this difficulty and to ease the introduction of foreign rice materials into the region, the plant quarantine facilities at Ibadan are being expanded by WARDA to enable it to cope with the additional plant materials that are introduced. The three greenhouses that will be utilized for this purpose are nearing completion.

c. Nursery Farm

The Research Department is at the moment handicapped in improving the range, quality and quantities of materials to enter into the coordinated trials since there is no facility within easy reach of Headquarters where new introductions can be planted and studied under the control of Headquarters staff before nomination for the coordinated trials. The nursery farm and the seed laboratory are vital elements for the success of the coordinated variety trials. It is therefore essential for the nursery farm to be developed near WARDA Headquarters without delay.

The farm will be utilized for the following main purposes:

- 1) for first stage study of introduced varieties,
- 2) for the selection of new entries including early generation material in the initial evaluation test,
- 3) for the preliminary variety tests and variety demonstration plots,
- 4) seed multiplication plots for the coordinated trials (the present arrangement whereby seeds are collected from various sources is highly unsatisfactory and is resulting in seed admixtures, poor germination and delay in sending seeds from one site to the other, and therefore jeopardizing the success of the coordinated trials),
- 5) variety maintenance plots for a Genetic Seed Bank,

- 6) seed control and purification plots for the Seed Laboratory,
- 7) training purposes for production specialists and field assistants.

d. Training/Reviews/Seminars

- 1) The WARDA training programs is handled at four levels:
 - a) Training of field assistants primarily designed to enable the assistants to conduct the WARDA coordinated trials under the supervision of senior national scientists: it enables uniformity and higher standards of conducting the trials.
 - b) Training rice production specialists - normally a six month course similar to that run by IRRI: this enables trainees to return to their countries to conduct local courses for extension workers.
 - c) Short-term specialized training of 4-6 weeks duration the numbers of participants varies according to subject matter which covers such fields as seed multiplication, water management, rice milling and processing; storage, etc.
 - d) Training of research personnel in support of the WARDA research programmes and subsequently for national research personnel. The courses will vary from short-term periods of 6 months to 2-3 years for higher degrees in recognized institutions.

2) Research Review Meeting

WARDA conducts a Research Review Meeting every year at which a Research Report incorporating all the results obtained from the coordinated trials are presented and discussed.

The Research Meeting gives scientists and delegates an opportunity to critically review the overall program and to revise, modify or to expand the set of coordinated trials.

In order to best serve rice research workers and extension personnel in West Africa and to provide outsiders with a clear and comprehensive picture about rice research in West Africa, it has been proposed that all research activities on rice in the member countries should be annually summarized and included in the WARDA Research Report. By pooling all valuable information on rice research annually into a single document, this approach should have a good impact and be a good example of a joint effort and effective cooperation. Proposals made in this respect to member countries, IRAT and IITA have been favourably received.

Best Available Document

- 3) Seminars on specialized subjects such as Breeding, Pathology, etc. will be organized every year to give the opportunity of exchanging ideas and improving our knowledge on these subjects.

3. Summary

- a. Suitable rice materials will be introduced for the various rice growing conditions in West Africa for entry into the initial evaluation tests and trials.
- b. A network of stations will be established in the region where the initial evaluation trials can be effectively conducted. A nursery farm in support of the trials will be established.
- c. General supervision of the present trials will be improved. New protocols will be implemented. Headquarters staff will be strengthened.
- d. Proper functioning of the seed storage and processing center will be ensured. The Plant Quarantine facilities at Ibadan, Nigeria will be developed.
