I. Contribution of 211 (d)

We do not know what other university recipients of 211 (d) grants report as the contribution their respective grants have made to the institutional development of their chosen programs. Probably, like SIU in its first annual report, most institutions generalize the impact of their respective grants upon support of instruction and research to which the body of the report (like this one) provides the specifics. That obvious--and somewhat redundant--catalog of the several impacts and contributions of the grant may all be true. But it is not all--at least in the case of this grant.

In the interests of accurate reporting and as a contribution to the developing history of the 211 (d) grant, a unique experiment in American higher education, it should be reported that this grant has been, at one and the same time, the greatest liability and the greatest asset of Southern Illinois University's effort to meet the need for a fully developed program of studies directed to Indo-China. The grant was viewed by a small, vocal, and oft-times militant group, both on and off-campus, as evidence of the complicity of the University in the military policies of the U.S. Government. The critics were not without their effect. Some were radical and irresponsible, seeking to politicize their audiences of students and non-students whom they exhorted to "OFF AID . . . by whatever means necessary"; some sought to intimidate scholars and stay them from cooperation with and participation in the program--and they were not without their successes; others sought to divide and intimidate the administration--raising the spectre of "know-nothingism" in constituencies external to the University--and they were not without their successes. Despite what seemed at times to be a disproportionate amount of time and undue dissipation of effort spent responding to critics (who counted among their number some very articulate, reputable, and concerned scholars), this exercise has proven to be a most salutary one. It has resulted in the clarification of the University's purposes in its chosen program and the strengthened resolve of faculty and administration to assure the traditional freedoms of the University to scholars in their teaching, research, and publication relative to Indo-China studies.

As helpful and hopeful as this clarification and strengthened resolve may seem it is no panacea to the problems that the acceptance of the grant has generated. The critics in their mutual moral encouragement to one another have for the greater part of their number so polarized themselves that they can not, publicly, accept anything less than the removal of this program. Their tactics of identifying--or confusing--the grant and the academic program it supports with every political and social ill in the nation, and, of late, with every economic ill in the University may be dishonest but they are diabolically effective. Any group of men, no matter how politically sophisticated, faced with these tactics would have problems. In American universities, even in the era of democratization of higher education institutions, political sophistication is a scarce commodity. It is no more present among the 4,287 faculty and 37,543 students of Southern Illinois University than elsewhere. The handful of scholars at the University who have worked in the program have had to bear academic wit, sarcasm, ridicule and stupidity (there is no other word for it) at its worst. To their great credit, and that of another handful who worked with them this past year to clarify the grant objectives, they have not been intimidated. But they have not been able to accomplish as much of the program as they hoped and planned for in the first two years of operation. Their plans for the year ahead are the plans of dedicated and reasonable academicians seeking to work within the University. The plans are in the circumstance ambitious and will require considerable talent and energy; they will also require money-- grant money, and more. Today the University is operating under the imperatives of a State of Illinois annual budget for fiscal year 1972 which, in an era of inflation, is reduced ten percent from the fiscal year 1971 base and in anticipation of a further reduction of fifteen percent for fiscal year 1973. The University in the circumstances--economical and political--that obtain must reassess and possibly revise its commitments. The year ahead may well be a "make or break" year for the program supported by this grant. The University which has for a decade successfully worked to help foreign educators in the development of their chosen programs of instruction and research is in jeopardy of failure in its first major effort to institutionalize a foreign area studies program of its own.

All of this is not to argue the difficulties but to realistically recognize them and understand that much of the potential which the University proposed, and for the support of which the grant was given, is no longer obtainable in the period covered by the grant.

As the reader scans the report listing the accomplishments of the past year he should keep in mind that, very often, the meetings, described in a few simple lines, took place under the threat of a bombing; that lecturers were greeted with signs bearing charges--oft-times irrelevant, frequently untrue, and sometimes obscene. Whether or not the University would have endured these trials if it had not sought and accepted the grant is now irrelevant. What is important now is that the program has endured and that such potential as may still be attained is obtainable because of the grant. We have listened to, and consulted with, the responsible critics of the program and with their assistance we have sharpened the focus of the program. SIU appreciates the understanding and cooperation of the Office of Research and University Relations of AID in this very difficult period. With their continued support the program may still succeed.

II. The Grant Objectives

During the fiscal year the University and the Agency for International Development worked to amend the proposal of June 6, 1969, to reflect changes in the University's organizational structure and the changes necessitated in Grant administration, and to make mutually desirable clarification and modification in text in the light of the first year's operational experience.

The results of that cooperative effort is the Proposed Amendment to AID Institutional Grant of April 27, 1971, pages 4-8 following.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO AID INSTITUTIONAL GRANT

Name of Applicant: Southern Illinois University

Date of Application: April 27, 1971

Title: A grant to strengthen within Southern Illinois University competency in Vietnamese and contiguous area studies.

Duration: Five years from the date established by Grant AID/csd-2514

Amount of Grant: $1,000,000

I. Summary:

This Grant strengthens Southern Illinois University in its chosen program to meet the need in American higher education for a fully developed program of studies directed to Vietnam and its contiguous areas. The grant supports the University in its efforts to provide secure, long-term support to those departments of its Colleges, Schools and Divisions interested in an expanded core program of Vietnamese studies -- including the salaries of new faculty members and the stipends of graduate students engaged in original research, integration of the findings of previous research, teaching, development of curricula, acquisition of library materials, and the publication of scholarly papers.

The grant also helps the University to strengthen basic academic competence by supporting faculty and graduate students engaged in basic research of their own choosing pertinent to economic and social problems of Vietnam and its contiguous areas.

II. University Capacity and Commitment

Southern Illinois University has a clear and firm commitment -- unanimously endorsed by its Board of Trustees and the State of Illinois Board of Higher Education -- to this program.

The University will fulfill the purpose of the grant by supporting scholars of proven integrity working in the University program for the advancement of knowledge relative to Vietnam and its contiguous areas. It will protect and further the complete freedom of those scholars -- in their teaching, research, travel and publications -- to seek and use all relevant evidence, to draw conclusions from it by the rigorous application of the methods of science, the disciplines of humane learning, and the dictates of their individual consciences, and to share their findings with others -- fostering honest, free and vigorous inquiry in their students.

The University will continue to seek cooperative programming with appropriate academic units in other educational institutions and draw upon the assistance of qualified academic units and scholars elsewhere in the development of a critical mass of faculty competence in Southeast Asian studies which have Vietnam as their central focus.

III. Administration

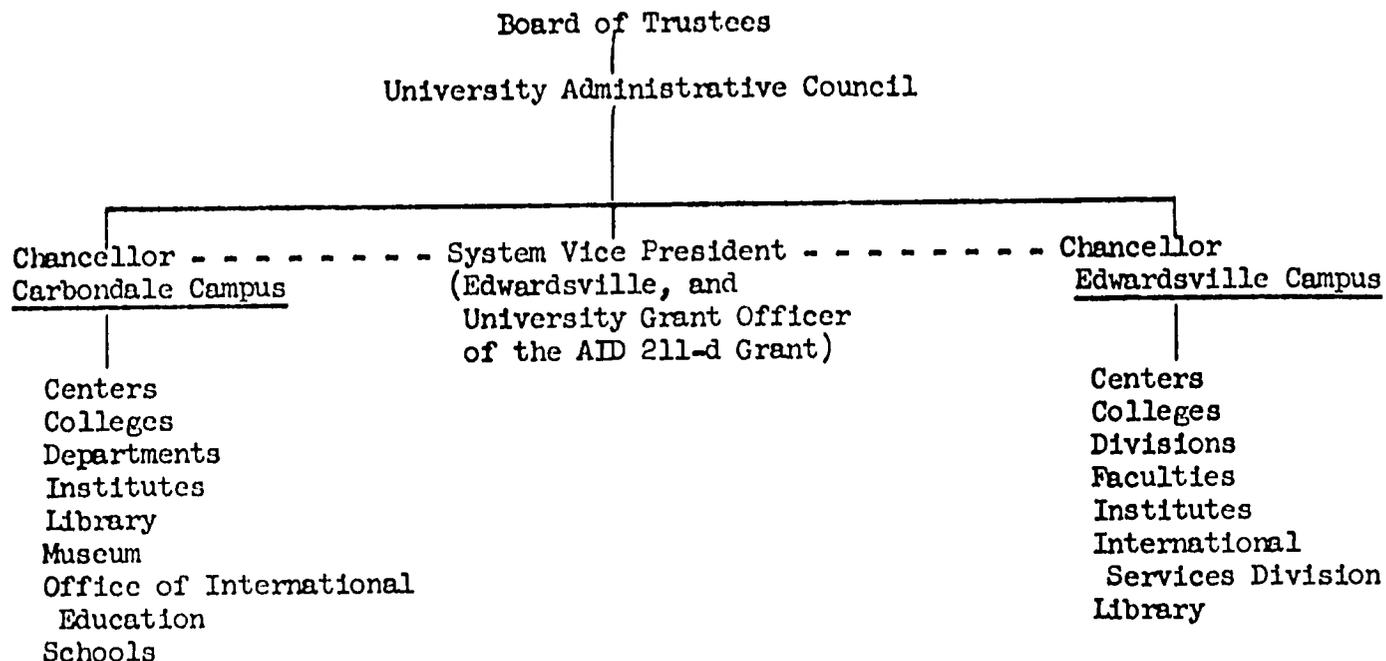

The Board of Trustees of Southern Illinois University designated the period 1 September 1970 - 31 August 1971 a "transitional year" to move the administration of the University from a relatively highly centralized form to maximum practical decentralization of operations under the Chancellors of the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses, respectively.

The central administrative authority of the University during this transitional year is vested in a "University Administrative Council" composed of a Chairman, the two Chancellors, the System Vice Presidents at Carbondale and Edwardsville, respectively, and the Chief of Board Staff as an ex-officio member without vote. The position of University President is vacant for this period.

The grant was made to the University as a whole. The Board of Trustees in September, 1970, designated the System Vice President at Edwardsville the University Grant Officer.

Implementation of the grant takes place through the University Grant Officer; the Chancellors of the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses; the Deans of the Colleges, Schools, and Divisions on their respective campuses; the Chairmen of Faculties and Departments of those Colleges, Schools and Divisions; the Director of the Center for Vietnamese Studies; the Directors of other Centers and Institutes; the Directors of the Libraries; and the Deans of the International Units on each campus. Each of these units of the University determines for itself, first, those program objectives relating to the development of a program of Vietnamese studies with which it wishes to be associated, and second, those specific purposes for which it will request support from this Grant.

Current Organization

It is mutually understood that the above describes current administrative arrangements, and that should changes occur in the University structure, arrangements for the administration of the grant will be so adapted as to assure achievement of its purposes.

Funds provided by the grant will not replace existing funding for any program. Activities supported by the grant will be additive to existing and planned programs.

An annual report will be submitted by the University and reviewed by the parties to the grant.

The University plans to continue its present commitment of resources, including provision of such overhead items as: office, classroom, conference and meeting rooms for faculty and students relating to the purposes of this Grant; use and acquisition of library resources; equipment, supplies, and other necessary facilities including access to University computers and other special research aids; and normal administrative and technical supervision by directors, department heads.

IV. Objectives and Scope

The University will expand its full-time professional staff of foreign and U.S. scholars and will expand its curriculum and library resources in the area of specialization helped by this Grant. Departmental course offerings will also include organizing interdisciplinary courses of study about Vietnam and its contiguous areas in the related disciplines at the graduate and undergraduate course levels. This will involve the development of new courses and the restructuring of some existing courses.

Support of senior scholars, and development of junior scholars will include regular stipends and salaries, special grants and travel in support of their studies, researches and publication.

V. Implementation

The University is committed to the continued growth and development of this program. It regards the five year period covered by this Grant as a basic developmental period during which time it will seek to enhance the financial backing both from within the University and from other outside sources. Changes not presently predictable in such strategic elements as sources of funds other than the grant and shifts in relative costs of component items, will require flexibility within the operating plan during the period of the grant. In general terms, however, the operational plan as presently estimated would be approximately as follows:

1. About 60 percent would be for salaries, including full or partial funding of:
 - a. University Grant Officer
 - b. Senior and junior faculty, and consultant services
 - c. Librarian
 - d. Research Associate
2. About 21 percent would be for graduate stipends and allowances
3. About 10 percent would be for travel, in support of both domestic and international, in support of the activities of this program
4. About 8 percent would be for library acquisition and publication

Budget Summary

Personnel Costs	$ 607,000
Graduate Fellowships	212,000
Travel	101,000
Library	80,000
	$1,000,000

VI. Non-requirement of Services

The grant does not require any specific service by the University to the Agency for International Development. If any services by the University are sought by A.I.D. with a view to drawing upon the increased competency made possible by the grant, such proposed services, which would require separate agreement and additional funding, must be reviewed and approved by the normal administrative processes of the University, including the concurrence of the academic units of the University which would be expected to provide and support those services.

III. MAJOR ACCOMPLISHMENTS DURING THE YEAR

A. Professorships

During the Summer Quarter 1970, grant funds were used to support the senior scholar Professor I. Milton Sacks of the Department of Politics, Brandeis University, as a Visiting Professor. Professor Sacks spent the quarter in South Vietnam where he conducted further researches for his forthcoming book on Communism in Vietnam. During the Fall and Winter quarters, Professor Sacks offered courses on the governments and politics of Southeast Asia as a Visiting Professor in the Department of Government. During the Spring Quarter 1971, he served as a Special Research Associate to the System Vice President and University Grant Officer to explore and recommend alternative utilizations of grant monies and opportunities to attract additional external funding. This assignment took him to Saigon for the second time within this fiscal year.

Professor Nguyen-Khac-Hoach of the Faculty of Letters of the University of Saigon accepted an appointment to serve as Visiting Professor of Foreign Languages for the academic year 1970-71. During the Fall, Winter, and Spring quarters, Professor Hoach taught courses in Vietnamese and French Literature. During the Summer Quarter 1971 Intensive Language Program, he offered a survey of Vietnamese literature and the cultural traditions of Indo-China.

The Summer Intensive Language Program also brought to campus:

Miss Jean Donaldson of the Summer Institute of Linguistics at Santa Ana, California, who offered intensive Lao instruction.

Dr. Nguyen Qui Bong of the University of Saigon who as Visiting Professor in the College of Education offered a study of education in Vietnam.

Also supported by grant funds was the work of: Mr. Dale Whiteside, Instructor in the University Museum and coordinator of the projected program in Vietnamese ethnomusicology, during Winter and Spring quarters;

Professor Gene T. Hsiao of the Social Sciences Division, SIU at Edwardsville, coordinator of the expanded Asian studies program on that campus.

Professor H. B. Jacobini of the Department of Government and instructor in the area studies component of the Summer Intensive Language Program.

B. Curriculum

The following courses were offered during the regular academic year 1970-71:

Language

Elementary Vietnamese (First-year level) 5 credits x 3

GSD 210 g, h, i: one contact hour and one lab hour daily.

Basic course in spoken Vietnamese open to beginning students.

Should be taken in g, h, i sequence.

Nguyen-Dinh-Hoa and Assistants

Intermediate Vietnamese (Second-year level) 5 credits x 3

Linguistics 410 g, h, i: one contact hour and one lab hour daily.

Prerequisite: one year of spoken Vietnamese.

Emphasis on the spoken language; gradual introduction to the written language.

Should be taken in g, h, i sequence.

Nguyen-Dinh-Hoa and Assistants

Advanced Vietnamese (Tutorial course) 3 credits

Linguistics 597: open to advanced students; this is a reading course where problems of grammar and vocabulary are primary concerns. Offered every quarter.

Nguyen-Dinh-Hoa

Survey of Vietnamese Literature 3 credits x 3

FL 497: reading and analysis of selected works of Vietnamese literature, presented in Vietnamese.

Prerequisite: Consent of instructor.

Nguyen-Khac-Hoach

Government

Politics of Vietnam, North and South 4 credits

Government 477: offered in the fall quarter.

I. Milton Sacks

Government and Politics: Southeast Asia 4 credits

Government 458a: offered in the winter quarter.

I. Milton Sacks

Seminar on Comparative Politics: Vietnam 4 credits

Government 515: offered in the winter quarter.
I. Milton Sacks

Anthropology

Ethnology of Southeast Asia 3 credits

Anthropology 314c: a biological and cultural history of man in Southeast Asia.
Ester Maring

Readings in Anthropology 1-4 credits

Anthropology 483: guided research upon anthropological problems.
Joel Maring

Sociology and Community Development

Readings in Sociology or in Community Development
Don Voth

Agricultural Industries

Agricultural Industries 390 1-3 hours

Special Studies in Agricultural Industries

Readings in Agricultural Industries 520 1-3 hours

Readings will be given by Professor Walter Wills.

The following courses were offered during the Summer Quarter 1971
as part of the Language and Area Studies Program:

Intensive Elementary Vietnamese 15 credits

GSD 210 g, h, i: three contact hours and one lab hour daily.
Basic course in spoken Vietnamese open to beginning students at undergraduate and graduate levels.
Nguyen-Dinh-Hoa and assistants

Intensive Elementary Lao 15 credits

GSD 210 p, q, r: three contact hours and one lab hour daily.
Basic course in spoken Lao open to beginning students at undergraduate and graduate levels.
Jean Donaldson and assistants

Intensive Elementary Cambodian 15 credits

GSD 210 s, t, u: three contact hours and one lab hour daily. Basic course in spoken Cambodian open to beginning students at undergraduate and graduate levels.

Intensive Intermediate Vietnamese (Second-year level) 15 credits

Linguistics 410 g, h, i: three contact hours and one lab hour daily.

Prerequisite: one year of spoken Vietnamese.
Nguyen-Dinh-Hoa and assistants

Grammatical Structures (Vietnamese) 4 credits

Linguistics 430a

Prerequisite: 410 g, h, i, or consent of instructor.

A study of Vietnamese phonology, morphology and syntax.

Nguyen-Dinh-Hoa

Survey of Vietnamese Literature 3 credits

FL 497

Readings and analysis of selected works of Vietnamese literature presented in Vietnamese.

Prerequisite: Consent of instructor.

Nguyen-Khac-Hoach

Cultural Traditions of Indochina (Laos and Cambodia) 4 credits

GSB-C 395b

An examination of the cultural traditions of Laos and Cambodia as viewed through their literature, philosophy, history, and religion.

Ester Maring

Cultural Traditions of Indochina (Vietnam) 4 credits

GSB-C 395a

An examination of the cultural traditions of Vietnam as viewed through its literature, philosophy, history, and religions.

Nguyen-Dinh-Hoa and Nguyen-Khac-Hoach

Ethnology of Southeast Asia 3 credits

Anthropology 314

A biological and cultural history of man in Southeast Asia.

C. Library Resources

During this fiscal year Morris Library acquired another 2,523 volumes, bringing the number of books purchased with grant funds to 3,949, including 133 periodicals. An acquisitions list was prepared; its distribution was scheduled for fall, 1971. Materials of special note included:

675 items purchased from the John M. Olin Library of Cornell University; receipt of 67 volumes from the Swiss Inter-Documentation Center;

302 items secured through Father Andre Gelinas of the Alexandre de Rhodes Institute;

91 volumes from Paris' Librairie Orientaliste;

300 items and 5,293 photocopy items (many are double page exposures) and four volumes of Southeast Asia subject catalog from the Library of Congress;

the Bulletin of the Societe des etudes Indo-Chinoises de Saigon for 1883-1923;

special lots from Yale University--32 volumes and selected photocopies;

a small order filled by Hanoi State Enterprise (Xunhasaba);

37 unique items from the Association pour la Conservation et la Reproduction Photographique de la Presse;

and 286 books and periodicals from the East West Center Library in Honolulu

Mr. David Ray of Morris Library continued to serve as librarian of the Center for Vietnamese Studies, assisted by Nhu Doan Bui, Mahin Roshanmanesh, and Christine Tirpak. All four were supported by grant funds. Mr. Cecil Hobbs of the Library of Congress continued to serve as consultant to Morris Library for its Southeast Asian acquisitions; his expenses were paid from grant funds.

During the year Mr. Ray also made three grant-supported trips to other universities in order to select and effect purchase of relevant library materials.

D. Research and Fellowship Awards

The six fellowship awards made during the prior fiscal year were, according to the terms of the initial awards, extended into the fiscal year covered by this report. Changes in the terms of those fellowship awards were as follows:

1. The previously reported non-renewable award to Mr. Eun Lee Ho for the period April 1, 1970 - March 30, 1971, was reviewed by the Research Fellowship Committee and extended through June 30, 1971, with a reduced stipend.
2. After announcing on October 31 his intention to contribute all proceeds of his fellowship to the Southern Illinois Peace Committee's work to remove the Center for Vietnamese Studies from the campus, Mr. Jeffrey Long resigned his fellowship, which had been scheduled through March 31, 1971, on November 8, 1970, as a "protest" over what he construed to be the University's complicity in supporting the United States Government in an immoral, illegal, imperialist involvement in South Vietnam.
3. Dr. Walter Slote's award, originally scheduled through September 30, 1970, was reviewed and extended by the Research Fellowship Committee to June 30, 1971.

The fellowships and special research grants awarded during this fiscal year from Grant funds were as follows:

1. Campbell, David G.
Age: 24
Citizenship: U.S.
Degree(s): B.A., Florida State University, 1969
Award: $800 fellowship for full-time study in Summer Intensive Language Program
2. Childers, Carlyle D.
Age: 34
Citizenship: U.S.
Degree(s): B.A., University of Cincinnati, 1966
M.A., Ohio University, 1969
Award: $800 fellowship for full-time study in Summer Intensive Language Program
3. Down, Jack
Age: 47
Citizenship: U.S.
Degree(s): Doctoral candidate for Ph.D. in International Education at Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan; Thesis: Attitudes of People of Vietnam toward their War-disabled
Award: $625 per month, November through June, a total of $5,000

E. Journal

Southeast Asia, An International Quarterly, continued its preparation for publication with its initial issue scheduled for summer 1971. The journal is a multidisciplinary forum for scholars of all nationalities. It has been founded at a time when, despite growing interest in Southeast Asia, there had been no scholarly publication in this country devoted solely to the area. Too often the outlets available for publishing scholarly materials on Southeast Asia have been unsatisfactory for one or more of the following reasons:

- (1) they are devoted to all of Asia rather than to Southeast Asia specifically, thereby limiting the amount of material on that region which could be carried;
- (2) journals in the field of Asian studies have been so overloaded with manuscripts that in some cases the publication backlog is as much as two years;
- (3) many of the existing periodicals are devoted either to current events or to political polemic. In either case, writers whose articles on Southeast Asia did not have immediate relevance to current events often were not able to publish in these journals.

Southern Illinois University felt, therefore, that one of the major contributions of its Center for Vietnamese Studies could be the founding of a scholarly journal devoted exclusively to Southeast Asia. Such a publication would facilitate earlier publication by scholars interested in the region. In addition, it was hoped that the existence of such a journal would encourage additional research by offering a ready and more accessible channel for publication. Furthermore, in the course of organizing this important publishing venture the faculty charged with its management found that a large number of Southeast Asian specialists in this country and abroad were eager to cooperate. As a consequence, after several months of consideration and discussion, it was decided that the projected journal should partake of the following qualities:

- (1) it should be international in scope and direction;
- (2) it should be published in French and English, in order to reach a wide audience overseas, and that inserts in Vietnamese and other Asian languages should be added where the number of readers using such languages warranted the additional labor and expense;

- (3) it should be politically non-aligned, and while encouraging the publication of controversial materials, must avoid involvement in polemic of any sort;
- (4) it should provide a medium for the publication of original research findings and sophisticated analyses of scholarly character concerning Southeast Asia, the countries composing that region, and all of the academic disciplines dealing with it.

The Editorial supervision of the journal is the responsibility of the Board of Editors, while an International Editorial Advisory Board provides guidance, suggestions, and the encouragement of publishable articles.

The composition of the Board of Editors is as follows:

John F. Cady, Ohio University
 Wesley R. Fishel, Editor, Michigan State University
 H. B. Jacobini, Southern Illinois University
 Carl Landé, University of Kansas
 Kenneth P. Landon, American University
 Willis E. Malone, Southern Illinois University
 Joel Maring, Southern Illinois University
 Nguyen Dinh Hoa, Associate Editor, Southern Illinois University
 Michael P. Onorato, Book Review Editor, California State College
 Douglas S. Paauw, Wayne State University
 M. Ladd Thomas, Northern Illinois University
 Robert O. Tilman, Associate Book Review Editor, Columbia University
 Sharon M. Vondra, Managing Editor, Southern Illinois University

The International Editorial Advisory Board has had two changes this past year. King C. Chen of Rutgers University has resigned, and Tatsuro Yamamoto of the University of Tokyo has joined the Board.

F. Publications

Colloquial Vietnamese by Nguyen Dinh Hoa has been issued in a limited edition by the Center for Vietnamese Studies. This is a language textbook designed to serve second-year or intermediate-level students of Vietnamese. Like its companion volume, Speak Vietnamese, it is based on the speech of (educated) people conversing in daily life, and not on the formal language found in public speeches or literary works.

The Southern Illinois University Press has also published Professor Nguyen Dinh Hoa's Vietnamese-English Student Dictionary, first issued in Saigon in 1967.

Life in a Vietnamese Urban Quarter, by Marilyn W. Hoskins and Eleanor M. Shipherd, has been reprinted. This sociological study of a community in Saigon was originally published by the Graduate School at Southern Illinois University in 1965. This second printing has been updated by Mrs. Hoskins and is available only from the Center for Vietnamese Studies.

Professor Nguyen Khac Hoach has authored a new book which has just been published in Saigon. Xay-Dung va Phat-Trien Van Hoa Giao Duc (Building and Developing Culture and Education) was produced by the Lua Thieng Publishing House.

G. Ethnomusicology

The University Museum's Project in Ethnomusicology, headed by Mr. Dale Whiteside and supported by grant funds, is working to provide the Western World with increased exposure to Southeast Asian music cultures. For the period covered by this report, the effort represents in large measure an extension of the work of Pham Duy, Vietnamese folklorist, composer, teacher and performer.

For many years Pham Duy has spent much of his time traveling throughout Vietnam collecting songs and information pertinent to music traditions among Vietnamese and the ethnic minorities. From this broad experience two bodies of material have grown: a manuscript concerning folk music traditions and an archive of taped music collected in the many towns, villages and hamlets where Pham Duy lived with the people to learn their music ways. The manuscript is now being translated by Miss Pham Thi Anh-Thu, and edited by Mr. Whiteside, with a view to an English edition under Mr. Duy's authorship. The Project also has arranged to receive and prepare a critical bibliographic cataloging of Pham Duy's taped collection for addition to SIU's archives of world music.

A comprehensive collection of library materials, tapes, and records on Southeast Asian music has been developed with the assistance of grant funds in anticipation of coordination of effort with Professor Maring's on-going course in Ethnology of Southeast Asia.

H. Guest Lectures

Visiting lecturers, whose expenses were deferred by grant funds, during the period covered by this report included:

On September 24, 1970, Professor M. A. Jaspan, Director of the Center for Southeast Asian Studies, The University of Hull (U.K.), presented a talk on "The Revival of Champa in Indo-China."

Dr. Thai-Ba, Washington, D. C., was on campus October 6-12, 1970, in a presentation of "Oils, Batik on Silk, and Ink on Silk."

On November 2, 1970, an International Folk Music presentation was given by Steve Addiss, Bill Crofut, and Peter Flynn.

A presentation of Vietnamese Traditional Music was given on November 3, 1970, by Mr. Steve Addiss.

On November 12, 1970, Professor Hoang Van Chi, Washington, D. C., presented a lecture entitled "The Mathematics of Eastern Philosophy."

On November 19, 1970, Professor Dale I. Purtle of the American University, presented a talk on "The Future of Southeast Asian Studies."

A presentation of "Traditional Vietnamese Culture and Its Future" was given by Professor Jacques M. May on December 3, 1970.

On January 12, 1971, Professor Richard Gard presented a lecture entitled "The Societal Role of Buddhism in Vietnam: A Historical Approach." Dr. Gard, an established authority on Buddhism in Vietnam, is general editor of the five-volume series "The Great Religions of the World."

Dr. Richard S. Pittman of the Summer Institute of Linguistics visited the campus on January 21 and 22. He addressed the Linguistics Colloquium Luncheon organized weekly by the Department of Linguistics and also delivered the second public lecture of the winter quarter. The topic of his lecture was "The Relation of Tones and Registers to Tongue-root Position in Languages of Nepal and Southeast Asia."

In February the Center was pleased to host author Joseph Buttinger, renowned historian on Vietnam, for a special set of three lectures on the History of Vietnam. Mr. Buttinger was on campus from February 2 to February 6, 1971, during which time he met with several groups of students and faculty.

The chief of Curriculum Development Branch, Research and Standards Division, Defense Language Institute, Dr. Vu Tam Ich, visited the Center on February 25, 1971. In addition to consulting with members of the staff, Dr. Ich presented a seminar on Education in North Vietnam and also gave a talk at the Linguistics Colloquium Luncheon.

The distinguished Professor of Law (and Senator) Vu Van Mau accepted an invitation to visit the Center as a side trip after his journey to Caracas, Venezuela. Professor Mau gave a seminar paper entitled "The Role of Buddhism in Vietnamese Law."

On June 22-25, 1971, a Linguistics Colloquium was held with Professor Nguyen Dang Liem, Hawaii; his topic was "Grammatical Structure."

Two classes were held June 28-29, 1971, with Dr. George Schultz, Indiana University, speaking on "Southeast Asian Culture."

I. Vietnamese Artifactual and Cultural Resource Collection

Dr. Basil C. Hedrick and Mrs. Anne K. Hedrick were commissioned to form various collections from around the world for purposes of the University Museum specifically and the University community in general. Dr. Hedrick, Director of the University Museum at SIU, and Mrs. Hedrick, Researcher and Adjunct Instructor with the Museum, have worked as a professional research and collection team in various parts of the world for over thirteen years.

The major collection is the Vietnamese Artifactual and Cultural Resource Collection. The activities for this collection are a collaborative effort of the University Museum and the Center for Vietnamese Studies.

This collection of daily used artifacts has three major purposes: (a) to be drawn upon for classroom instruction in the area studies programs noted above; (b) to serve as a reference and/or research source for faculty and students; and (c) to be exhibited to the patrons of the University Museum (primarily students) in order to demonstrate a portion of the cultural entities in Vietnam. It will serve, moreover, as a three-dimensional teaching, reference, resource, and exhibition "library" for various University departments and area studies programs.

J. Other Activities

a. Conferences

Professor Nguyen-Dinh-Hoa attended the summer meeting of the Linguistic Society of America held at Ohio State University in July, 1970. From October 16 to 18, 1970, Professors Hoa, Hoach, Maring, and Mr. Ray Attended the Midwest Conference on Asian Affairs, held at Indiana University, Bloomington, Indiana.

Professors Joel Maring and Wesley Fishel represented the Center for Vietnamese Studies at the International Congress of Orientalists in Canberra, Australia, in January, 1971. They also traveled to several countries in Southeast Asia to meet with members of the International Advisory Board of the Southeast Asia, An International Quarterly and other scholars in the area.

Several University faculty members, supported by grant funds, attended the meetings of the Association for Asian Studies in Washington, D. C., in March, 1971.

Members of the staff of the Center for Vietnamese Studies, supported by grant funds, accompanied Professor Maring, Chairman of the Asian Studies Committee to Urbana to meet with representatives of other academic institutions in Illinois. Discussions were held on matters pertaining to cooperative planning, cooperation among existing programs and the avoidance of duplication wherever feasible.

b. Radio

A special series of broadcasts entitled The Asia Society Presents was presented weekly on the University radio station, WSIU. Mrs. Lee Graham, award-winning broadcaster, interviewed distinguished authorities in the field of Asian Affairs on subjects relevant to a better American understanding of the many peoples of Asia. The programs were presented in cooperation with the Public Broadcasting Corporation and The Asia Society.

c. Theater

The three-act play Ghenghis Khan by Vu Khac Khoan was presented on the University campus on April 15, 16, and 17, 1971. The production was the first English language adaptation of the play. Duane Hauch, SIU doctoral student in Theater, translated the play and directed the performance. Mr. Hauch studied with the playwright at the National Conservatory of Music and Dramatic Arts in Saigon in 1968-69. The play was recorded on video tape and broadcasted on the campus television station on June 14. Copies of the tape are available on an inter-university loan basis through the Center for Vietnamese Studies.

Mr. Hauch also translated and produced a one-act play, The Legend of the Wait, which was presented in August, 1970.

d. Art Exhibit

An exhibit of paintings by Mr. Truong Cam Khai was held from March 1, 1971, through March 8, 1971. Over thirty pieces of work were displayed in the University Center. Mr. Truong Cam Khai is one of the few masters of the still life art forms called monochrome painting. The art exhibit was co-sponsored by the Vietnamese Students Association at SIU and the Center for Vietnamese Studies.

- e. The Panel of Consultants held their first meeting as a group on August 14 and 15. Meeting on the Carbondale Campus, the Panel considered--together with the Center staff--the first year of operation and plans for the coming year's activities. Special emphasis was placed on problems encountered during academic year 1969-70.

f. Mutual Exchange (Fulbright) Program

As the period covered by this period drew to a close, the University at Carbondale agreed with the U.S. Department of State to a grant under the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 whereby the University would be assisted during fiscal year 1971-72 in a program of mutual exchanges of faculty and graduate students with universities in Vietnam. To this end two Vietnamese professors from the University of Hue will come to SIU and two U.S. professors and one candidate for a Doctor of Philosophy degree will go to Vietnamese universities. Funding of this program--in the total of $59,950--is incorporated in the Firm's Budget, July 1, 1971-June 30, 1972, V, 3, column 2 "University and other."

V. Work Plan and Budget Forecast

A. Work Plan

1. Professorships

Professor Chen Ching-Ho, Director of the Center of East Asian studies at the Chinese University of Hong Kong, will serve a one-year visiting professorship teaching Japanese and undertaking specialized research on Indo-China at the University at Carbondale. He is well known for his work in translating and cataloging the Imperial Archives of the Nguyen Dynasty.

Professor William S. Turley will join the faculty of the Department of Government of the University at Carbondale; he recently received his doctoral degree from the University of Washington. His academic concentration has been on North Vietnam.

Professor Nguyen-Khac-Hoach, who has agreed to serve a second year as Visiting Professor of Foreign Languages of the University at Carbondale, will continue to offer courses in Vietnamese Literature.

The Ethnomusicology program of the University at Carbondale will bring Professor Vinh Bao from Saigon and Professor Tran Van Khe from Paris to join Pham Duy in the development of the premier Vietnamese music collection.

Professor Duong Dinh Khoi (anthropologist) and Professor Vo Xuan Han (economist) of the University of Hue will come to the University at Carbondale in the Fall and Winter quarters respectively.

The School of Agriculture of the University at Carbondale is recruiting a Southeast Asian agricultural development specialist.

Mr. Dale Whiteside has agreed to continue in the Museum's Ethnomusicology Program of the University at Carbondale.

It is anticipated that a Summer Intensive Language Program with appropriate area study components will be offered again by the University at Carbondale. Many of the faculty involved in the 1971 Program are expected to participate again.

In the Social Sciences Division of the University at Edwardsville, Professor Gene T. Hsiao will assume responsibility for an expanded Asian studies program to which he expects to recruit, in the year ahead, one professor and a librarian on term appointments.

2. Curriculum

Course offerings will include all those previously reported for the 1970-71 academic year of the University at Carbondale. Cultural Traditions of Indo-China and Laos offered for the first time during Summer 1971 will become a regular offering of the Department of Anthropology. In addition Professor Hoach will offer a new course on Vietnamese Prose, and the Summer 1972 Intensive Language Program will offer Intermediate Lao and Cambodian.

3. Library Resources

The University at Edwardsville will commence the acquisition of a specialized collection, designed to complement rather than duplicate Morris Library holdings. The collection will focus on the contiguous area relationships, trade, and foreign affairs of Indo-China.

Acquisition lists of Morris Library holdings will be made available at regular intervals during the coming year.

4. Research and Fellowship Awards

Fellowship awards will be given to two recipients working in the expanded Asian studies program of the University at Edwardsville. The Center for Vietnamese Studies of the University at Carbondale will extend six of the fellowship awards of the past year and add at least two new awards.

Special Research grants are not anticipated.

5. Journal

The journal Southeast Asia, An International Quarterly, after overcoming many technical difficulties in printing its first issue, anticipates a total of five issues in the year ahead. One issue is to be focused on Southeast Asian regional economic cooperation and another on Montagnard peoples; a third may be a commemorative issue dedicated to the work of the French scholar Paul Mus.

Book reviews, which will not appear in the first issue, will be a regular component thereafter as will document translations.

6. Publications

Volume No. 4 of Mon Khmer Studies is in preparation for scheduled publication Winter Quarter.

Mr. Joseph Buttinger's series of four lectures is under consideration for publication by the SIU Press.

Dr. Walter Slote's "Psychodynamic of Vietnamese Personality" should be ready for publication in the coming year.

Professor Gene Hsiao indicates his intention to begin publication of a series of occasional papers this coming year. Some papers will be based upon the lectures of distinguished scholars coming to campus, while others will be invited studies. A monograph series is also under consideration.

7. Ethnomusicology

Mr. Dale Whiteside anticipates a very full program of recording, performing, and critical bibliographic work by Professors Khe, Bao, and Duy during their stay at the University at Carbondale. A pleasant fringe benefit of their joint presence on campus will be some public performances of Vietnamese music.

8. Guest Lecturers

Distinguished scholars will be visiting both the University at Carbondale and the University at Edwardsville in the year ahead to interact with Professors Jacobini and Hsiao, respectively, in their instructional and research programs.

9. Other Activities

Professor Hsiao has agreed with the Program Committee of the Association of Asian Studies to be responsible for two panels at the scheduled March/April meetings of the Association in New York. One panel (now firm) will address the question of U.S.-China Relations--The Recent Phase; and the second (still in preparation) will consider The Role of External Powers on the Indo-China Crisis.
