PREFACE -- VOLUME 1

The Title XII Source Book describes educational and training resources in Agriculture, Home Economics, and Natural Resources offered at institutions registered under Title XII of the Foreign Assistance Act.

It is designed for use by A.I.D. mission and Washington personnel, Title XII officers, directors of international programs, and other interested persons.

The Source Book is presented in seven volumes:

- Volume 1 -- Degree Programs by Subject Area
- Volume 2 -- Degree Programs: Western Region
- Volume 3 -- Degree Programs: North Central Region
- Volume 4 -- Degree Programs: Southern Region
- Volume 5 -- Degree Programs: Northeastern Region
- Volume 6 -- Non-degree Programs by Subject
- Volume 7 -- Non-degree Programs by Institution

Volume 1 is arranged by subject area, showing which universities offer specified programs. Each subject listing also shows the kinds of degrees offered in that subject by each university.

This is not intended as an all-inclusive list of degree programs at participating institutions, but it can serve as a guide to the location and availability of programs which are particularly appropriate to students from the less developed countries.

A list of institutions on the Title XII Registry is included at the end of Volume 1. The Title XII officer is listed with each institution.

BACKGROUND OF THE SOURCE BOOK

Title XII of the Foreign Assistance Act: Famine Prevention and Freedom from Hunger authorizes and encourages new involvement by U. S. universities and two government agencies, USDA and NOAA, in helping to solve the critical food problems of the developing world. In particular, Title XII provides for strengthening the capacity of U. S. land-grant and other eligible institutions to participate in enhanced international food production and in the improvement of nutrition worldwide. Programs under Title XII are administered and monitored by the Board for International Food and Agricultural Development (BIFAD), whose membership is drawn both from universities and from the private sector.

BIFAD is broadly charged with articulating the needs and problems of developing countries with the substantial resources of U. S. institutions in areas relevant to international agricultural development. According to its Chairman, Clifton R. Wharton, Jr.: "We believe that the agricultural and related disciplinary complexes of the American higher education system, in collaboration with colleagues and institutions abroad, have unique and essential contributions to make to attaining worldwide freedom from famine, hunger and malnutrition. We further believe that the Title XII program has the potential of engaging the fundamental strengths of these institutions in a variety of ways which will be highly useful to the developing nations and, simultaneously, most beneficial and satisfying to our own educational and research institutions and to our people." Constituted under BIFAD are two permanent committees, the Joint Research Committee (JRC) and the Joint Committee on Agricultural Development (JCAD). The JRC, composed of scientists from universities, government, and private industry, is concerned with all Title XII research activities directed toward the discovery of new knowledge and the development of technology useful to the less developed countries. This includes both collaborative research support programs and centrally funded research projects of AID. The JCAD assesses priority needs for strengthening agricultural institutions in the less developed countries. The committee also participates in the design and review of Title XII projects directed toward meeting such needs and assists BIFAD in "matching up" U. S. institutions with projects and programs in developing countries.

This Source Book is part of the ongoing effort in BIFAD to match available resources with priority needs. The Title XII Registry includes 134 widely diverse institutions, each with special expertise applicable to the problems of less developed countries. Each participating university is working to strengthen its research and training capacities at home and abroad, and to increase its collaboration and exchange with developing nations. Nearly all have strong emphases in agricultural business, extension education, production agriculture, agricultural economics, and foods and nutrition, as well as child and family development, resource economics, and natural resource management. However, each institution has a unique approach to these subject areas and others, based on its geographical location and its climate, its curricular tradition, and its human resources--both faculty and students. This Source Book supplies a specialized profile of each Title XII institution, centering on its unique features and on the particular contribution it can make toward the overall goal of applying scientific and technological learning to help prevent famine and to foster international agricultural development.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Much of the data for this Source Book was supplied by four groups which routinely collect information about degree and non-degree programs offered by their member institutions: the Extension Committee on Policy (ECOP) and the Resident Instruction Committee on Policy (RICOP) of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, and the Home Economics Commission of the American Home Economics Association. Signe Betsinger for the Home Economics Commission, Lark Carter for RICOP, James Kirkwood and Burleigh Webb for the 1890 land-grant colleges, Charles Smallwood for AASCU, and Wayne Bath and Lowell Watts for ECOP offered invaluable assistance, modifying their process of data collection to be especially responsive to Title XII needs. Through their efforts, 90% of the eligible institutions are represented in this Source Book. We would also like to thank the Institute of International Education, presently at work on a corollary publication, which provided professional cooperation on the project. This Source Book has been prepared under the general direction of BIFAD and its JCAD and JRC Training and Education Group.
