TAICH COUNTRY REPORT
DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS FOR MEXICO

June 1979

This report describes the programs of 71 private, non-profit U.S. organizations which provide the people of Mexico with development assistance and material aid. An index of the specific programs appears in chart form at the end of the report. Of the 71 U.S. organizations included in the report, 39 were able to provide TAICH with financial data indicating program expenditures in 1978 totaling $19,875,052. These figures should be viewed more as indicators than as exact sums; differences in fiscal year, methods of financial reporting and methods of estimating dollar values of commodities, equipment and material shipped make correlation and absolute accuracy impossible.

This is one of a series of periodically revised reports which describe by country the development assistance activities of the U.S. non-profit sector. Additional and new information on the programs of the organizations appearing in this report is gathered regularly and is available from TAICH. Readers are requested to advise TAICH of any changes or new programs of U.S. private, non-profit organizations in Mexico. Besides country reports, TAICH publishes directories, bibliographies, a quarterly newsletter and a series of category reports in which descriptions of assistance programs are compiled by functions of development assistance. A publications list is available from TAICH.

The information given on each organization is based on the data supplied to TAICH by the organization. Publication of this information does not guarantee accuracy of content or endorsement by the American Council or TAICH of any organization.

AMERICAN COUNCIL OF VOLUNTARY AGENCIES FOR FOREIGN SERVICE, INC.
TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE INFORMATION CLEARING HOUSE (TAICH)
200 Park Avenue South, New York, New York 10003

THE AMERICAN COUNCIL OF VOLUNTARY AGENCIES FOR FOREIGN SERVICE, INC. was founded in 1943 for the purpose of providing a forum for cooperation, joint planning and the exchange of ideas and information in order to avoid duplication of effort and assure the maximum effectiveness of the relief, rehabilitation and development programs of American voluntary agencies. Through the mechanism of the Council, member agencies have established relationships not only among themselves but with non-member agencies and governmental, intergovernmental and international organizations. The Technical Assistance Information Clearing House (TAICH) has been operated by the Council since 1955 with support from the U.S. Government, currently a grant from the Agency for International Development. All agencies that are Council members are noted by a +.

THE TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE INFORMATION CLEARING HOUSE serves as a center of information on the socio-economic development programs abroad of U.S. non-profit organizations, including voluntary agencies, church missions and foundations. It makes available to organizations, government, researchers and others, source materials from its files for study and research. Through publications and the maintenance of an everyday inquiry service TAICH responds to the need for current information about development assistance with particular reference to the resources and concerns of the private, non-profit sector.

THE ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON VOLUNTARY FOREIGN AID was established in 1946 to serve as a focal point for relations between the U.S. Government and U.S. private and voluntary organizations active in the fields of relief, rehabilitation and development overseas. It is composed of private citizens who serve without compensation. The Committee's advisory responsibilities are to provide information and advice to A.I.D. and other U.S. Government agencies relating to areas of foreign assistance in which the Government and private and voluntary organizations interact, to provide assistance to the community of private and voluntary organizations working abroad relative to problems and issues in their relations with A.I.D. and other Federal agencies and to foster public interest in voluntary foreign aid and the activities of the private and voluntary organizations.

As described below, supports the work of the Mexican Friends Service Committee in rural and urban community development and education in the State of Tlaxcala, in Atlacomulco and in squatter communities within Mexico City.

CONSTRUCTION, HOUSING & PLANNING: Contributed to construction of piped water systems for drinking and irrigation, housing projects, and school buildings in Atlacomulco. Supported a project in Vicente Guerrero, Tlaxcala to open a road, build latrines, and bring water piping into the village.

COOPERATIVES, CREDIT UNIONS & LOANS: Provided a revolving loan fund to enable residents of Colonia Ajusco, a squatter community in Mexico City, to begin a women's sewing cooperative and a six-member wrought-iron cooperative workshop. Provided a revolving loan fund in Atlacomulco, which has granted loans for hat manufacturing, rabbit raising, gardening, a fur-curing project, a sewing cooperative and a water project.

EDUCATION: In Colonia Ajusco, provides adult education instructors to help residents obtain primary and high school certification. Since 1977 has sponsored a group of eight or nine development technicians from Mexican government agencies, universities and private organizations whose common interest is the use and promotion of "appropriate technology". The technicians conduct occasional lectures at the Friends Center in Mexico City on such topics as soil erosion and they plan to edit a small magazine to fill the need for information on technology and current projects.

FOOD PRODUCTION & AGRICULTURE: Supports the efforts of a cooperative in San Pedro Del Rosal to plant vegetable gardens and care for 5,000 fruit trees provided by the government, with technical assistance from an agronomist from Mexico City. Supports activities in other villages including the reforestation of hillsides, training courses in rabbit raising and other agricultural skills, intensive gardening to make households as self-sufficient as possible, and beekeeping. In Vicente Guerrero, Tlaxcala encourages villagers to become self-sufficient in food and fuel through home demonstrations, promotion of community organization as well as teaching school children to tend the school garden and to breed small animals, such as rabbits. The goal is to enable each family to produce its own vegetables, meat, eggs and milk and to eat a more nutritious and varied diet. The project also promotes composting, anti-erosion methods of cultivation, stockraising, and reforestation of community-held land. Tree farming, using seedlings from government nurseries, is planned as a way to provide fuel for the future as well as to halt soil erosion.

PUBLIC & BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION: Supports a project to provide concerned individuals, agencies and institutions with information regarding border problems. Works in U.S. communities along the border to promote community participation in economic development projects to facilitate cooperation between border communities, and to promote wider understanding of the economic problems on both sides of the border.

PROGRAM INITIATION: 1939.

The CRS program includes support for 31 socio-economic development projects involving the States of Chiapas, Puebla, Chihuahua, Nayarit, Yucatan, Morelos, and Mexico. Some of the projects, which cover a broad range of activities, are described below.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT: Provides administrative support to the Civil Association for the Economic and Social Development of the Mexican Indians (DESMI), the Diocesan social action agency in the Chiapas highlands. Also finances several programs which are sponsored by DESMI in that region: development of community infrastructure in Yajalon and Tila; evaluation of a potable water program; a regional micro-project fund to finance small-scale community endeavors related to agriculture, commerce and home industries; a community health movement that facilitates inter-community contacts, technical advice and specialized community health courses; provision of a tractor for sugar cane growers in Soyatitan; and an agricultural cooperative designed to support the Regional Water Fund for the Chiapas highlands. In the Yucatan, major support and a full-time promoter are provided to eight Mayan Indian Villages to increase agricultural productivity, to improve health conditions and to build community awareness. Also supports a development plan in Tehuacan.

COOPERATIVES, CREDIT UNIONS & LOANS: Supports a cooperative promotion program in the Bachajon region.

EQUIPMENT & MATERIAL AID: Provided $25,000 to the Diocese of Tijuana to assist flood victims. Over one million pounds of soybean meal and milk powder and 1,340 units of used clothing were provided for distribution in Indian areas through DESMI. The major portion was sent to the Mesquital Valley in the State of Hidalgo. In addition, significant amounts of food, clothing and medicines are shipped every year for direct relief programs in the Indian areas of Chiapas, the Mesquital Valley and the Tarahumara region of Chihuahua.

FOOD PRODUCTION & AGRICULTURE: Supports a beekeeping project in Zongolica and one in Maconi. The latter is a promotional/technical experimentation center that will gradually extend modern methods of beekeeping to five other sites. Project goals include the promotion of solidarity by organizing the various agricultural operations as one large cooperative for the sale of honey and other bee products. The bee project participants exchange technical information and experience on a regular basis. Assists a revolving fund for corn supplies in Chilon.

MEDICINE & PUBLIC HEALTH: Supports a tuberculosis treatment center in San Carlos. Also assists DESMI-sponsored health projects (see: Community Development).

SOCIAL WELFARE: As the representative of Inter-Governmental Committee for European Migration (ICEM), the CRS Mexico office during the past fiscal year assisted 70 political refugees (mostly from Chile). Responsibilities included reception at airport, provision and collection of loans, and negotiations with Government authorities, ICEM, U.N., etc.

MEDICINE & PUBLIC HEALTH: Docare International is a medical outreach organization through which volunteer medical and other professionals bring health care services to areas where professional health care services are non-existent. The program involves establishing a clinic and stocking it with drugs and dental and surgical equipment. Thereafter, volunteer medical services are provided to the area on a continuing basis (one week every two months) until local, full-time professional services are available. The Docare team's total health care program in Mexico includes services for medical, dental, and animal health problems. Most work has been organized to serve the nomadic, cave-dwelling Tarahumara Indians of Northern Mexico, the Tepehuan Indians of Central Mexico, and Mayan Indians in the Yucatan.

PROGRAM INITIATION: 1962.

FINANCIAL DATA: Expenditures for CY 1978: Approximately $5,000. (Volunteers pay own travel, lodging and meal expenses. Drugs and equipment are donated by individuals and hospitals or purchased by Docare.)

COOPERATING ORGANIZATIONS: Partners of the Americas, Wycliffe Bible Translators and various other church missionaries.

The purpose of the program in Puebla is to help upgrade people's diets with the addition of animal protein. In addition, the raising of animals could also increase family incomes.

FOOD PRODUCTION & AGRICULTURE: With the assistance of the Secretary of Agriculture in Puebla, makes available extension program in crop production, family gardens, and animal raising. Visual aids and other materials are available from local and federal sources to assist the local committee and the director in the training program. Distributes livestock (pigs and goats); gives the recipients instruction in developing animal facilities as well as in the care and feeding of the animals. The project is using commercial feed presently but will assist the farmers in preparing their land to grow alfalfa and corn to feed their animals, as well as garde crops for their own consumption. Most small farmers in the Puebla area have an average plot of two to five acres, where they could grow the feed.

FUTURE PLANS: The Methodist Church of Central Mexico, in conjunction with Heifer Project International, is considering ways to finance a credit union. With this program they hope to make a percentage of the animal feed available to livestock recipients who cannot afford to support their livestock. The feed cost could be paid back to the credit union when the farmers sell some of the animals' offspring. The Church also hopes to introduce cooperative marketing in each of the communities where animals from Heifer Project International are distributed. Loans for the feed and marketing plan will be supervised by local committees.

PERSONNEL: 2 local volunteers (veterinarian and animal technician).

PROGRAM INITIATION: 1978.

FINANCIAL DATA: Expenditures for CY 1978: $11,552.

Helps villagers in remote areas of the Sierra Madre in Sinaloa and Durango States to cope more effectively with their health needs. Works toward a humane, balanced and low cost health care program, run and sustained by the villagers themselves.

COOPERATIVES, CREDIT UNIONS & LOANS: Organized cooperative corn bank, which lends corn to village families at low rates, and a small credit union. Both are operated currently by local citizens.

EDUCATION: Provides half scholarships (village pays other half) for village health workers and full scholarships for secondary schooling for future village medical personnel. Operates health center book loan programs for children.

FOOD PRODUCTION & AGRICULTURE: Assists in experiments to introduce more nutritious crops and in the seeding of a pine forest. Encourages vegetable gardening and chicken and hog raising on land loaned to the Ajoya medical clinic which provides economic support for the clinic as well as to supply additional nutritious food for the village. Clinic workers spend a third of their time in these self sufficiency activities. Village families may "pay" for clinic services by volunteering to work on these projects or they may work to earn credits for future medical care for their families. Innovations introduced through these projects include erosion control, use of an electric pump for irrigation, non-toxic insecticides and manure fertilizer in the gardens; introduction of more productive breeds, vaccinations, various feeding methods and cement floors in the chicken raising projects. In addition, local workers constructed self-filling water and feed containers for the animals.

MEDICINE & PUBLIC HEALTH: Organized one main clinic and referral center in Ajoya, Sinaloa and a network of 16 health workers based in remote mountain villages. The clinic provides dental care, physical therapy and maternal/child health services; conducts community health education programs; and organizes projects for disease control and improved sanitation. An annual two-month training course is held for health workers who are selected and sent for the training by their villages. In 1978, the course was taught entirely by the local clinic staff and the classes included: primary medicine, dentistry, consciousness raising, community health education, evaluation and agriculture. Clinic workers have conducted health education campaigns in primary schools using a variety of visual techniques, including socio-drama.

Partners of the Americas links people and resources in seven areas of the U.S. with counterparts in 21 states of Mexico in programs of technical and cultural exchange. Approximately 400-500 Partner volunteers and technical specialists travel to and from Mexico each year to implement Partner activities, providing training for over 13,000 Mexican and U.S. citizens. The California, Iowa, Oklahoma and New Mexico Partners cooperate with the Mexican Partners on the following programs:

FOOD PRODUCTION & AGRICULTURE: The University of Iowa and Iowa State University conduct continuing corn demonstration projects in several areas of the Yucatan to develop the best hybrid corn adaptalbe to that soil. Poultry management experts from Iowa provide training at the Agriculture Technical Institute in the Yucatan. Approximately $30,000 worth of pumps from Iowa have been installed in 10 rural villages of the Yucatan for irrigation and drinking water purposes. Cattle and livestock experts from Oklahoma conduct seminars on livestock management techniques in the States of Tlaxcala and Sonora.

MEDICINE & PUBLIC HEALTH: Medical training is given each year to more than 3,000 village health workers, laboratory technologists, and local health facility personnel in rural Indian villages of the States of Yucatan, Campeche, Tabasco, Chihuahua, Jalisco, and Sonora in cooperation with local health authorities and missionary groups. Areas of instruction include village-level nursing, ophthalmology, laboratory techniques, emergency rescue and cardiopulmonary resuscitation procedures, and preventive dentistry. Medical equipment and supplies valued at approximately $100,000 per year are delivered to rural health facilities in conjunction with the training programs. Items include hospital equipment, training manikins, several thousand pairs of eyeglasses, Braille units, educational materials, and laboratory supplies. The Universities of Oklahoma, Iowa, and New Mexico maintain continuing programs of medical education for senior year medical students from Mexico. Each year up to 40 medical students from the University of Chihuahua Medical School attend advanced training seminars in cardiology and neurology at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center. Annually, teams of dentists from the University of Oklahoma and Oral Roberts University conduct seminars in dentistry, prosthodontics, cleft palate, orthodontics, and periodontics at dental schools of the Universities of Puebla, Mexico, Chihuahua and Tlaxcala.

Sponsors a comprehensive program of drug abuse education and information exchange, in which more than 85 drug specialists have participated, sharing expertise in the causes of drug and inhalant use. A seminar in Mexico City in 1978 utilized four experts from San Francisco to train 150 elementary school teachers in the prevention of drug use among their pupils, recognition of drug addiction, and how to guide students into treatment programs.

FUTURE PLANS: During 1979 plans to develop strong committees of Partner volunteers in the Mexican border states and in Arizona, Texas, and Southern California. In September 1979 a workshop is planned in cooperation with FONAPAS in the arts, nutrition, community development and health, with follow-up travel by the U.S. delegates to the Mexican Partner States for specific project development. A full-time staff has been assigned to develop the Mexican Partnerships and to generate funds to support these projects.

PERSONNEL: Program is based almost entirely on the work of part-time or temporary volunteers, both local and U.S.

PROGRAM INITIATION: 1965.

FINANCIAL DATA: Value of the Mexico program during CY 1978: $1,250,000.

COOPERATING ORGANIZATIONS: Mexican Center for the Study of Drug Dependency (GEMEP); Mexican State and municipal governments; National Fund for Social Activities (FONAPAS). Twenty-one States of Mexico are matched with 7 U.S. areas, and the program is coordinated by committees working within each State (details available upon request).

Supports Fundacion Project Concern de Mexico which operates the program described below.

EDUCATION: Sponsors the Ignacio Ramirez Primary School in Tijuana. In addition to the provision of primary schooling to nearly 300 children who would otherwise be unable to attend school, provides them with dental care through the dental clinic of Autonomous University of Baja California and medical services through Project Concern's maternal/child hospital.

MEDICINE & PUBLIC HEALTH: Operates a 28-bed maternal/child hospital for indigent residents of Tijuana. The hospital provides a full range of care with an average of 75 admissions per month and 1,200 outpatient consultations per month. The hospital is staffed primarily by local physicians and support personnel with some involvement by U.S. volunteers. In poor, underserved areas of Tijuana, operates an outreach program which focuses on the training of urban health educators in an effort to concentrate more on preventive health education and less upon strictly curative services. Also assists the community health committee of Flores Magon in the development of community water supplies. Through OPTION, placed a registered nurse for two months with Centro Socio Cultural de Guanajuatillo to teach primary nursing skills to rural village nurses.

FUTURE PLANS: The future direction of the work in health services will be an expansion of the urban outreach program to include a greater number of urban communities and a gradual decrease in Project Concern's direct involvement in and support to the maternal/child hospital.

PERSONNEL: 15 U.S. volunteers (primarily medical professionals); 65 local salaried (includes 10 medical professionals), 7 local volunteers.

PROGRAM INITIATION: 1965.

Operates a community-based, integrated rural development program which promotes the economic and social well-being of poor, rural children. Some of the program activities are described below.

CONSTRUCTION, HOUSING & PLANNING: Assisted in the recent rebuilding in Alamos of homes which had been destroyed by the October 1976 hurricane. The government donated land for the new housing and the people did all of the work to rebuild their homes. In Mesquital, Maquipo, El Carrizal, Cerro Colorado, Los Muertos and Tapizuelas, contributed materials to help community members with the construction of latrines.

EDUCATION: In Los Muertos and other communities near Alamos gives an incentive for communities to supply the labor and materials to build adobe classrooms by offering to provide in exchange, a television set, aerial, and power source. This allows the communities to participate in the Mexican Government's televised secondary school program. The curriculum, designed by the Mexican Ministry of Education, is aimed specifically at children living in rural areas. To complement the television program, the Mexican Government provides participating communities with a teacher. In addition, SCF contributed $4,000 over two years for books for a library which has been established in Alamos and helped to organize several committees to run the library.

FOOD PRODUCTION & AGRICULTURE: In Los Muertos and Maquipo, sponsors vegetable growing competitions in the school yards among primary school students to teach them how to grow vegetables and the importance of vegetables in their diet as well as to encourage them to grow vegetables at home. Assists both communities with irrigation projects which will assure a better harvest during the regular growing season and make it possible to grow a second crop. In Los Muertos, community members are digging a well for which SCF is donating the pump and necessary piping. In Maquipo, hired a dam building expert and contributed cement while community members contributed other building materials as well as labor to build a dam, making it possible to hold reserves of rain water. Provides an agronomist who teaches ranch management and erosion control to community members in Los Muertos, Cerro Colorado, Tapizuelas and San Bernardo where extreme dryness has resulted in rapid erosion and wasted cattle. Ranchers are advised on feed to supply proper nutrients to their cattle. They also are taught techniques to avoid overgrazing, intense tree cutting, improper cultivation, overusing the land and inadequate irrigation. This training and the introduction of irrigation in the communities is helping to reverse the erosion trend. In Los Muertos and Tapizuelas, provides hybrid seeds for experiments with different varieties of corn and sorghum which are being conducted by community farmers with advice from SCF's agronomist. In San Bernardo, subsidizes a technical secondary school which provides students with a basic introduction to agriculture (growing crops and operating an irrigation system); organization of cooperatives (administration, planning, marketing, etc.); and mechanics (carpentry, automobile and farm mechanics, metal working and electrical engineering). Also provides funds for pig and bee raising projects at the school. The aim is to teach basic skills which students can utilize for their families and in their villages, and it is hoped that the school will produce enough after three to four years to be able to operate self-sufficiently.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT & MANAGEMENT: Started clothes-making projects in Los Muertos, Cerro Colorado, and Maquipo by inviting three women from each community to take sewing lessons in Alamos for one and a half months. Each woman returned to her community with two sewing machines contributed by SCF to begin to make clothes for community members and to teach the sewing techniques to other women. SCF also provided loans to pay for start-up supplies and materials. Clothing sales will generate money to pay back the loans, buy more supplies and pay women for the clothing they make. Once the loans have been repaid, the community members plan to set up funds to guarantee that money will be available to buy needed materials.

MEDICINE & PUBLIC HEALTH: Conducts and supplies foods for breakfast programs for school children in Maquipo, El Carrizal and Tapizuelas for which the mothers take turns preparing the food. Recently sponsored a nutrition seminar in Alamos to teach mothers involved in the three breakfast programs how to use soybean products and about nutrition.

PERSONNEL: 9 local.

In 1977 provided a three-year grant of $62,000 to the Lutheran Baja California Mission (LBCM) to underwrite salary and support costs for a liaison-counselor to coordinate LBCM programs in poverty areas of Tijuana and Mexicali, as well as to encourage indigenous leadership and community responsibility. LBCM programs include:

EDUCATION: Community-run primary schools, English instruction and vocational training.

MEDICINE & PUBLIC HEALTH: A clinic in Tijuana, initiated by LBCM, open five mornings per week and employing three doctors, a practical nurse and a social worker-secretary. It provides both curative and preventive medicine, including provision of food supplements, nutrition education, and proper clothing. Over 600 families have been enrolled in the clinic program.

SOCIAL WELFARE: For squatters living in the river bed areas near the Tijuana clinic who lost most of their belongings in floods early in 1978, an LBCM staff person funded by Wheat Ridge oversaw flood relief operations at the clinic, including daily distribution of food and clothing.

FUTURE PLANS: Is studying possibilities for a new school lunch program that would provide school children with one hot, balanced meal per day. The program would utilize the mothers on a weekly basis as volunteer assistants, enabling them to learn more about providing balanced diets with the foods available to them. In addition, the liaison-counselor is working with Mexican leadership to adapt LBCM's program in Tijuana to meet the new emphasis on rehabilitation, as the displaced
