Preface

This volume of USAID/Nepal Participant Directory covers the period FY 1979 - FY 1984. As the other two volumes, it contains the "Home Address", "PIO/P No. and Title", "Training Period", "Place and Country of Training", "Position Prior to Training" "Present Position and Postal Address" and "Date of Information". A "Listing of Participants by Geographical Location" along with "Alphabetical Index" has also been incorporated. Telephone numbers of the residences and offices of the participants have been included where available.

This Directory is the result of a contract signed in February 1985 between the United States of America, Agency for International Development Mission to Nepal and the Secretarial Support Services (P) Ltd., Kathmandu.

Compilation was directed by Mr. Om Rajbhandari with assistance from Mr. Kedar Pradhan, Director, Secretarial Support Services (P) Ltd., Ms. Laurie Zivetz, Consultant, and a number of research assistants over a period from February 5 to August 10, 1985.

We wish to express our thanks to all USAID/Nepal participants, USAID/Nepal, and His Majesty's Government agencies for their help and cooperation during the course of this assignment. Our special thanks are due to Mr. Virgil D. Miedema, Project Officer, and Mr. Tri Ratna Tuladhar, Program Specialist, USAID/Nepal for their cooperation.

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE SURVEY AND UTILIZATION TALLY SUMMARY

1. Introduction

Nepal has been receiving assistance from the United States Government through the United States Agency for International Development (USAID/Nepal) in developing and upgrading skill of selected Nepalese since 1952. In December 1984, over 3,875 persons had received training or had acquired advanced degrees in a variety of disciplines in different technical and academic institutions in the United States and other countries.

This study, prepared by the Secretarial Support Services (P) Ltd., under a contract with USAID/Nepal, surveyed all returned participants who could be located. The purpose of this study was to follow-up on the activities of all of the participants since 1952 by updating the previous two USAID/NEPAL PARTICIPANT DIRECTORIES (one covering the years 1952-1973 which was first issued in 1974 and another covering the years 1974-1978 which was first issued in 1979) and prepare a new directory covering the period from 1979 through 1984. The updates and the new directory each contains, in addition to detailed information on each participant, a quick assessment of the utility of the training provided. This information will, it is hoped, be useful to USAID/Nepal and His Majesty's Government in providing direction for future training, particularly that to be provided under the new Development Training Project (367-0152). Detailed information on each participant should also prove useful for follow-up purposes.

It is the intention of USAID/Nepal to keep these directories up-to-date through application of the computer-based Participant Training Management System (PTMS), which will allow current information on each participant to be entered as it becomes available. In this way, contact with returned participants should be made easier, allowing USAID/Nepal to include them on an ongoing basis and as appropriate in activities related to their work and fields of study.

2. The Questionnaire

To update the two directories and to prepare a new one, a field survey was conducted from February 5, 1985 to August 10, 1985. To do this, a questionnaire was utilized including the following information:

- a. Subject Area Code
- b. Control Number
- c. Name, Home Address and Telephone Number
- d. PIO/P Number and Title
- e. Training Period
- f. Place and Country of Training
- g. Position Prior to Training
- h. Current Position
- i. Present Postal Address and Phone Number
- j. Date of Information

- k. Assessment of the extent of usefulness of the training
- utilizing training to one's work
 - not directly utilizing training
 - did not complete training
 - still in training
1. Remarks (if any)

The "Subject Area Code" reflects previously standardized technical classifications. A "Control Number" was assigned to each individual to track respondents and non-respondents. For purposes of the directories, these numbers function as serial numbers.

Blocks c-g were completed in advance by Secretarial Support Services (P) Ltd. based on the records available in the previously published directories. USAID/Nepal provided the necessary information for participants from 1979-1984. Blocks h-k were filled in by the returned participants, thus providing updated information on their current work status, etc. as well as their assessment of training received. Block l gave respondents a chance to make more detailed remarks, if they so desired, about the usefulness of the training in their later work.

3. Collection of Questionnaire

About 50 percent of the respondents were contacted at the offices recorded in previous directories or USAID/Nepal records. In other cases, the position and postal address prior to training provided enough clues to be able to track down individuals. In some cases, however, the assistants sent in search of participants were shuffled between offices, only to end up finding the concerned participant at the office where the search had originally begun.

Participants working in remote places of the Kingdom were send questionnaires by post along with stamped self-addressed envelope. If any letter was returned indicating "unknown in the given address", a second try was made to the same person's address prior to training, to a home address or sometimes to an address that was acquired by the assistants. In about 60 percent of second try cases, the results were positive.

Posting of questionnaires to the participant's home address also turned out to be fruitful in some cases. Sometimes, the given home address of the participants was incomplete with no village panchayat, no ward number or even district name. In one case a partial address was used. A reply letter came after a couple of weeks: "Dear Mr., in our area, there are many of us by the name addressed in the envelope. Thinking it to be ours we opened it. But we discover it does not concern us so we are returning herewith." Some participants who were not known previously in any USAID/Nepal directories were located and answer forms were collected from them by posting them letters to their home addresses, visiting at their homes or meeting their relatives and friends.

Constant in person follow-up to homes, offices, relatives, colleagues, or by telephone and repeat post were made until the participants were contacted. Participants holding similar PIO/P numbers with similar training periods were asked about unidentified participants of the group. In the majority of cases, this kind of follow-up yielded positive results in tracing down the particular participants we were looking for. The assistants worked overtime to trace down the participants in their respective homes before or after office hours. If a seminar was going to be hosted, concerned assistants were asked to go there to find participants. The results were encouraging.

Tracing down participants in their respective homes was a time consuming task. Sometimes, it was frustrating when after many hours of effort the home of a particular participant was found but the participant had left the house he/she rented so many years back, moving to a new location which was not known to the current tenants. If an onward location was known, tracing down this address also took additional time and energy.

Recent changes in house numbers, telephone numbers and other events in the country also challenged locating of participants' addresses in the Kathmandu Valley. Naturally, such obstacles resulted in slowing down the speed of data collection, not to mention the difficulty encountered.

The main objective of all these endeavors was to get the forms filled in by the participants themselves as far as possible so that the assessment concerning the extent of usefulness of training would reflect participants' own thinking.

4. Utilization Tally

The Utilization Tally is a more detailed assessment of training than in the previous issues of the directories. Seventy percent of responding participants have themselves assessed the usefulness of their training. Only 30 percent of the questionnaire forms were filled in by proxys who knew the participants well. They included relatives, acquaintances or fellow employees. In data collection for previous directories, interviewers offered their own opinion of how the participants might have used their training, considering the title of their work and the participants' training. Therefore, the tally sheet no doubt reflects assessment of the training with greater accuracy than previously since the present tally represents for the most part the views of the participants themselves.

The Utilization Tally Summary (Table 1) exhibits a simple and quick assessment of the extent of the usefulness of training. Looking at the table, one could draw two main conclusions:

A. Priority Areas of Training During 1979-1984 Period

USAID/Nepal placed greater emphasis on the development of manpower in the Agriculture and Natural Resources sector. During the years 1979-1984, 57 percent or 651 participants were trained in the fields related to Agriculture and Natural Resources. This was followed by Health and Sanitation. Under this category, 260 persons were sponsored or 22.76 percent of the total. The third priority was found to be directed to Education: 63 persons, accounting for 5.52 percent of the total participants, were trained in this area. These three areas (i.e., Agriculture and Natural Resources, Health and Sanitation, and Education) constituted 85.28 percent, i.e., 974 out of the total 1,142 participants. Other areas that received lesser priority than these three were: Industry and Mining, 4.90 percent (56 participants); Transportation, 4.12 percent (47 participants); Public Administration, 3.15 percent (36 participants); and Community Development, 2.55 percent (29 participants).

B. Assessment of Training

The vast majority of respondents said that they found their training useful in performing their work. Also, given the key positions held by many former USAID/Nepal participants both in and out of the government services, it may be said that, in general, USAID/Nepal-sponsored trainees continue to contribute positively to the development and modernization of Nepal.

Pertaining to the participants' own assessment of training, 415 persons out of 651 participants who were trained in Agriculture and Natural Resources said that they were using their training in their work. This accounts for 63.75 percent of the total number of participants trained in this sector. This figure does not reflect the views of the trainees who are still undergoing training (153 participants, i.e., 23.50 percent of the total) in this area. Similarly, in the case of the second priority area, i.e., Health and Sanitation, 84.62 percent (220 persons out of 260) felt that they were using their training positively. In the case of Education (third in priority), 48 out of 63 persons said that their training was helpful in their work. In other lesser priority areas, too, the respondents felt training was contributing to their work.

Looking at the training for the period as a whole, 815 persons out of 1,142 have positively assessed the usefulness of training. Only 63 persons found that they were not directly using their training in their work, usually because they were either placed in a position different from their area of training or they found facilities not adequate to carry out their work. From the experience of the field survey team, it was felt that not even all the people under this category were of the opinion that training was of no use to them whatsoever.

Twenty persons, i.e., 1.75 percent, did not complete training. Of the total number of participants, 174 persons or 15.24 percent of the total are still undergoing training. Similarly, 19 persons or 1.66 percent were in further training under the USAID/Nepal or different sponsorship at the time of the survey. For them, the previous USAID/Nepal training might also have helped to their work as well as in their being selected once again for further studies. Forty persons, 3.50 percent of the total, have been categorised under "No Current Information" as no information or completed forms were received from them up to August 10, 1985, the last day of data collection. However, since forms have been received after the August 10, 1985 deadline, the number of "No Current Information" might actually be lower (these forms received beyond the deadline will be turned over to USAID/Nepal as input into the PTMS System). A mere 0.61 percent or 7 participants of the period 1979-1984 were found to be retired or resigned from their services. Except those who were physically incapable, persons under this category seem to be using their training in some beneficial way (usually by way of consultancies in their respective fields). During the course of field interviews, retirees remarked that they had used training profitably in their tenures of office. "Not in Nepal" category comprised only 1 person or 0.09 percent of the total. Excluding the 174 participants still in training, this gives a 99.91 percent return rate for the 1979-1984 period.

Looking over all these figures, the percentage of positive responses might well be higher than indicated under category "A", since many participants in the X, FS, D, NCI, NGS categories may be using or may have used their training effectively in Nepal.

Table 1 indicates the number of participants documented by field of training and gives a quick assessment of the perceived usefulness of the training during the period 1979-1984.
