FARMING SYSTEMS RESEARCH PAPER SERIES

Kansas State University's Farming Systems Research (FSR) Paper Series is supported by the U.S. Agency for International Development Title XII Program Support Grant. The goal of the Program Support Grant is to increase the University's ability to implement Title XII agricultural and nutritional development assistance programs in developing countries. This paper series is maintained by the FSR Program Associates -- a multidisciplinary team of professors who are aiming their activities at applied research on farming from a systems perspective.

The purpose of the FSR Paper Series is to disseminate information on FSR. Publication categories include updated bibliographies from KSU's FSR data base; proceedings from KSU's FSR Systems Symposium; selected papers presented in KSU's FSR Seminar Series; and selected papers prepared by KSU's Program Associates.

NOTICE OF NON-DISCRIMINATION

Kansas State University is committed to a policy of non-discrimination on the basis of race, sex, national origin, handicap, or other non-merit reasons, in admissions, educational programs or activities, and employment, all as required by applicable laws and regulations. Responsibility for coordination of compliance efforts and receipt of inquiries, including those concerning Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, has been delegated to Jane D. Rowlett, Ph.D. Director, Affirmative Action Office, 214 Anderson Hall, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 (913-532-6220).

THE WOMEN IN DEVELOPMENT BIBLIOGRAPHY...

grew out of Martha Tomecek's earlier efforts (Third World Women: A Select Bibliography, Paper No. 7, 1983) to collect and organize this special class of fugitive<sup>1</sup> materials within the farming systems literature. Women in agriculture, and, more specifically, gender issues in farming systems research and extension is now acknowledged as a crucial concern and important theme for development projects. Women in Development offices have been established in a variety of institutions, including the U.S. Agency for International Development. The phrase "women in development" is a subject heading in Sociological Abstracts and other indexes. WID has even acquired the status of acronym.

We continue to collect documents in this area,<sup>2</sup> and the current bibliography is a continuation of the Third World Women bibliography, now out-of-print. While employing the same subject classification scheme,<sup>3</sup> several enhancements have been made. The format has been modified for easier reading and comprehension. Most importantly, author, title, and keyword indexes have been added. Since many articles can be located in a number of subject categories, keyword indexing increases the number of access points to the collection.

The exponentially increasing amount of information available makes keyword indexing of articles an extremely valuable reader service by helping to filter out unneeded material, thereby saving the researcher's time. We chose keywords by using natural language from within the document itself. Use of natural language indexing has the advantage of timeliness for bibliographic production. minimal standardization was used by making singular nouns plural (e.g., household to households). We sincerely hope that our efforts to increase access to this literature will encourage research in this interdisciplinary field, in addition to supporting Kansas State University's involvement in development projects.

<sup>2</sup>For comprehensive research of more mainstream material on women that can be found in books and journals by using catalogs, indexes, and databases that use the Library of Congress Subject Headings, an essential tool is: Women in LC's Terms: A Thesaurus of Library of Congress Subject Headings Relating to Women, by Ruth Dickstein, Victoria A. Mills, and Ellen J. Waite, Oryx Press, 1988.
