The 1995 Report of American Voluntary Agencies Engaged in Overseas Relief and Development lists private voluntary organizations registered with USAID as of October 1, 1994.

Overview of U.S. Voluntary Agencies' Activities

The U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) recognizes the significant role that private and voluntary organizations (PVOs) play in providing humanitarian and development assistance to the developing world. Although the PVOs registered with USAID vary markedly in size, scope, and capability, they share a strong commitment to improving the quality of life for people in developing countries.

PVOs' humanitarian activities originated more than a century ago in response to natural disasters. As a result of their ability to respond quickly and effectively, PVOs emerged as leaders in disaster relief. Gradually, their efforts broadened from emergency relief and food distribution to programs aimed at addressing the root causes of poverty and vulnerability to disasters.

The transition from short-term relief to planning and implementing long-term development projects strengthened the process of cooperation between USAID and the PVO community that has firmly taken root over the past two decades. While continuing to respond to immediate human needs, particularly in emergency situations, PVOs have increasingly contributed their valuable resources to long-term development activities crucial to improving conditions and giving aid to people within the developing world to improve their quality of life. Resources provided by PVOs assist in promoting economic growth that is broad-based and sustainable and also ensures a safe environment; fostering human capacity development, particularly the attainment of health and educational levels required for all citizens to contribute to, and benefit from, economic development; and encouraging pluralism and democratic institutions.

These objectives guide a wide variety of PVO activities in areas such as micro-enterprise development, environmental preservation, child survival and child welfare, democratic institution building, food security, and humanitarian assistance. They are the foundation upon which USAID's development assistance program is based and upon which USAID's partnership with PVOs is focused. Humanitarian assistance, including addressing the continuum of bridging short-term relief with longer-term development, remains a major element of the USAID/PVO collaboration.

In its work overseas, the PVO community demonstrates the traditional American values of pluralism, voluntary action, and concern for others. PVOs foster sustainable self-help efforts at the community level and provide a direct channel for people-to-people projects that broaden the participation of the poorest citizens in the social and economic decisions that affect their daily lives, which ultimately influences the well-being of the nation as a whole.

In recent years, a hallmark of PVO efforts has been their commitment to building the capacities of their indigenous partners in the field. U.S. PVOs increasingly are offering training, technical assistance, and support to local affiliates and community organizations at the grass roots level to strengthen the organizations' ability to carry out their own technically sound, effective development activities. This emphasis must continue if development is to be sustainable.

As we reach the midpoint of this decade, USAID continues to give high priority to programs that address the role of the informal sector, and micro-enterprises in particular, in building strong, free-market economies; the need to preserve the environment for future generations, while at the same time bringing about economic development and an equitable sharing of resources; and the challenge to respond to fledgling democracies around the world while ensuring that the trend toward democratization is sustained.

PVOs have the skills and experience to contribute to each of these priorities in significant ways. Specific opportunities for PVO programming in areas of interest to USAID include integrating micro-enterprise credit and training projects; the use of debt for development exchanges; promotion of democratic pluralism and the institution of civil society in Eastern Europe, the former Soviet Union, and elsewhere; and the use of program design techniques to ensure project sustainability.

USAID's support for PVOs has two major dimensions. PVOs act as independent agents, conducting their own programs, with USAID's financial and technical support to meet mutual goals. PVOs also act as intermediaries for USAID, specifically in countries where USAID strategies and PVO project type of partner recognize the line with Co with USAID, from development assistance funds, they also must obtain at least 20 percent of their annual financial resources for their international programs from non-U.S. Government sources.

By maintaining a central point of contact for PVO information, coordination, and dissemination through the Office of Private and Voluntary Cooperation (PVC) of the Bureau for Humanitarian Response, USAID reinforces its relationship with PVOs. In coordination with regional and other bureaus within USAID, PVC carries out programs aimed at enhancing the impact of USAID/PVO cooperative efforts by strengthening PVOs' planning and management capabilities, allowing for more effective and sustainable programming at the local level.

PVOs make a vital contribution to the foreign assistance programs conducted by USAID. As this report illustrates, the private resources devoted to international development by the private voluntary community far exceed their U.S. Government support. The private revenue PVOs are able to generate provides USAID with a means to leverage its own limited resources for development. By joining forces and complementing each other's capabilities and scope, USAID and PVOs can accomplish more together than either could alone.

The following pages present a current picture of the work being carried out by the PVOs that are registered with USAID. Included is information on the geographic and sectoral focus of each PVO, as well as summaries of support, revenue, and expenditures. As of October 1, 1994, there were 419 PVOs registered with USAID. PVOs required to submit support and revenue data received $2,587,090,523 in private contributions, and the U.S. Government provided them with an additional $1,665,539,871 in the form of grants, contracts, U.S. Government-owned excess property, ocean freight subsidies, and P.L. 480 donated food.

Who they are and what they do

The rules governing the registration of non-governmental, non-profit agencies engaged in voluntary foreign aid are promulgated in Part 203, Chapter II, Title 22, Code of Federal Regulations. The registry consists of the following agencies.

A Call To Serve International ACTS

P.O. Box 60788
Sunnyvale, CA 94088-0788
(408) 245-4905

Promotes peace and understanding through the exchange of ideas, information, and resources. ACTS has assembled local teams in five cities of the New Independent States, including Moscow and St. Petersburg, to develop a local leadership network of physicians, democratically-elected public officials, and non-profit organizations. These teams will implement and administer the management resource model: a systemic approach to problem-solving: emphasizing learning, leadership skills, and building infrastructure. The model consists of five phases: apprenticeship, beginning involvement, self-direction, program expansion, and outreach partners. With the assistance of donated services, ACTS also coordinates the transportation of humanitarian aid and training of health-related personnel.

The Academy for Educational Development

AED

1875 Connecticut Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20009-1202
(202) 884-8000

Improves knowledge and skills worldwide to stimulate growth, reduce poverty, and promote democratic and humanitarian reform. The Academy addresses human development needs in the United States and abroad through collaborative contracts and grants with policy leaders, community organizations, government agencies, international, multilateral and bilateral funders, and academic institutions. The Academy seeks to meet today's social, economic, and environmental challenges through education and human resource development using advanced education, training, research, technology, management, behavioral analysis, and social marketing techniques to solve problems.

ACCION International

ACCION

999 Prospect Street
Cambridge, MA 02139
(617) 492-4930

Sponsors self-help, economic development programs that combat hunger, poverty, and unemployment in the Americas. ACCION International's programs break the cycle of poverty and dependence by providing small loans at fair interest rates to the owners of small, family owned or operated businesses in low-income communities in Latin America and the United States.

Action Consulting Association

ACA/USA

3527 South Utah Street
Arlington, VA 22206
(703) 379-9386

Provides management training and assistance programs to low-income entities in developing countries. These entities include small- and micro-enterprises, village groups/co-ops engaged in economic activities, and indigenous NGOs. Emphasis is placed on the practical application of management skills such as bookkeeping, business plans, organization development, and marketing. ACA's methodology includes: development of management systems and training programs for trade specific activities; training of trainers; participative workshops; and follow-up in the beneficiaries' place of work. Part of the ACA strategy is to develop an autonomous, institutional capacity in each country to carry out its management assistance programs. This strategy has led to the development of ACA partner organizations in Senegal, Mali, Niger, and Togo, and pending organizations in Benin and Cameroon.

Adventist Development and Relief Agency International, Inc.

ADRA

12501 Old Columbia Pike
Silver Spring, MD 20904-6600
(301) 680-6380

Works to improve the quality of life for people in the poorest parts of the world. ADRA sponsors a wide range of activities including working on behalf of mothers and children, developing clean water resources, training people for self-sufficiency, improving agriculture techniques, promoting food-supported development, and building and supplying clinics, hospitals, and schools. ADRA responds to disasters worldwide that force people to flee from their homes. To help these communities get back on their feet, ADRA combines immediate aid with long-term rehabilitation projects. ADRA's food distribution program, which processes over $125 million worth of food every year, helps disaster victims and provides an incentive to people working on community development projects. ADRA's projects are based in more than 140 countries in Africa, Asia, Central and South America, the Middle East and the South Pacific.

Adventures in Health, Education and Agricultural Development

AHEAD

6324 Windermere Circle
Rockville, MD 20852
(301) 530-3697

Provides alternative strategies to improve the quality of life in developing countries. AHEAD develops self-help programs to assist people at the village and community levels to reduce maternal and childhood mortality. Seeking to empower people to control their own health and well being, the projects focus on primary health care, maternal and child health, nutrition, education, water and sanitation, agriculture, leadership, and entrepreneurial training. AHEAD recognizes the importance of all women in development and involves women in all aspects of project planning, implementation, and evaluation, thus ensuring that all recipients gain maximum benefit from AHEAD projects. AHEAD realizes that the most important resource any country has is its people: the means and the end to successful development.

Advocates for Youth

1025 Vermont Avenue NW, Suite 200
Washington, DC 20005
(202) 347-5700

Works to increase the opportunities for youth to make healthy decisions about sexuality. Advocates for Youth offers training, technical assistance, and financial support to help groups in developing countries initiate and sustain effective programs addressing adolescent reproductive health issues such as sexually transmitted diseases, including HIV/AIDS, too-early childbearing, and the harmful effects of female genital mutilation among young African women. Advocates for Youth also collects information on research, program, and policy developments for presentation at professional meetings and in publications, including its quarterly newsletter "Passages," printed in English, French, and Spanish.

Africa Rural Development, Inc.

ARD

24555 Southfield, Room 202
Southfield, MI 48075
(313) 569-4742

Provides a means to help rural poor assume responsibility to think, plan, and undertake their own development for their own benefit. This objective was formulated through working with and learning from rural communities in Africa during the last ten years. ARD's programs actively support and stimulate the community in their capacity to produce their own food. ARD works to reduce mortality/morbidity of children and women through the provision of community-based health care, nutritional guidance, monitoring of potable water for drinking and hygiene, and facilitating adequate sanitary services. The furnishing of health education and literacy improvement enables the practice of correct and improved health and nutrition activities.

African Children Welfare Foundation

2630 South Manhattan Place, Suite 1
Los Angeles, CA 90018
(213) 735-6570

Attends to the social, physical, and spiritual needs of African children and their families. This humanitarian relief organization uses a volunteer staff that cooperates with other non-profit organizations and relief agencies in Africa. African Children Welfare Foundation establishes clinics and feeding centers in rural areas, provides medical equipment and school supplies, and assists in the rehabilitation of handicapped children. The organization also engages in community development and responds to emergencies.

New York, NY 10036
(212) 768-2440

Provides assistance to governments, international agencies, and non-government organizations in nearly 50 different health projects conducted in Kenya, Tanzania, and Uganda. Programs include: providing primary health care; training community health workers; training rural health staff through continuing education, teacher training, and correspondence courses; and developing, printing, and distributing training manuals, medical journals, and health education materials. In addition, AMREF applies behavioral and social sciences to health improvement, provides ground mobile health services for nomadic pastoralists, and provides airborne support for remote health facilities including surgical, medical, and public health services. Other AMREF activities include establishing medical radio communications, developing and planning health projects, and providing consultant services.

The African Methodist Episcopal Church Service & Development Agency, Inc.

SADA

1134 11th Street NW
Washington, DC 20001
(202) 371-8720

Sponsors development programs in the fields of education, agriculture, health care, and human services in western and southern Africa and the Caribbean. SADA became operational in 1987 with the child survival project titled VACS, in the rural communities of Cabaret and Arcahaie, Haiti. SADA's objective is to reduce child mortality by providing preventive and curative health care services. These services include: immunization, growth monitoring, nutrition, ORT education, and birth spacing. In 1994, SADA's child survival/immunization project expanded to serve a population of 128,000. The Haiti project is staffed by a team of administrative personnel, doctors, nurses, and community health workers. SADA also operates the R.A. Hildebrand Clinic, owned by the African Methodist Episcopal Church, in Port-au-Prince, Haiti.

African Wildlife Foundation

AWF

1717 Massachusetts Avenue NW
Suite 602
Washington, DC 20036
(202) 265-8394

Works to build the capacity of African countries to manage their natural resources. AWF's current program reflects a modern conservation agenda and includes six traditional, yet innovative themes: training and education, support of protected areas, conservation science research, critical species and habitats, policy and planning, and community conservation. Since its establishment in 1961, AWF has maintained a fully staffed technical and administrative office in Nairobi, Kenya. Projects are managed directly out of the Nairobi office, resulting in efficient and responsive management and enhanced opportunities for close working partnerships with African nationals and institutions. AWF is currently implementing 35 field-based projects, totaling over $4 million. These projects range from the very modest to the $2.5 million, multi-year Planning and Assessment for Wildlife Management Project, funded by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

The African-American Institute

AAI

833 United Nations Plaza
New York, NY 10017
(212) 949-5666

Encourages development in Africa by strengthening human resources and promotes mutual understanding between Americans and Africans. Educational programs include the African Training for Leadership and Advanced Skills Program (ATLAS), the African Graduate Scholarship Program (AFGRAD), the Southern African Training Program (SATP), and Partners for International Education and Training (PIET). A Visiting Fellows Program was initiated in 1990. AAI works closely with the media, publishes AFRICA REPORT, the leading magazine on Africa, arranges visits for African leaders through the International Visitor Program, and sponsors seminars and fact-finding missions to Africa for U.S. Representatives, Senators, and their advisors. Annual conferences address policy issues of concern to Africans and Americans. A constituency-building program in six U.S. cities seeks to build advocates for Africa in the United States. In addition, AAI monitors elections throughout the continent.

African-American Labor Center

AALC

1400 K Street NW, Suite 700
Washington, DC 20005

Cambridge, MA 02238
(617) 573-0221

Strives to improve world public health, with particular emphasis on the elimination of Guinea Worm Disease. HDI is undertaking to mobilize support for the termination effort by recruiting governments, corporations, international organizations, and private, non-governmental agencies which already work on water, agriculture, and health programs in the affected areas. In the absence of medical technology to fight the disease, HDI encourages water engineers, agronomists, and other non-medical people, through personal visits and discussions, to integrate a program against guinea worm disease into their existing work. Working with its branch in Norway, HDI staff travels to different regions in Europe to attend conferences and increase interest and support for its programs.

Health Volunteers Overseas

HVO

1001 Connecticut Avenue NW
Suite 725
Washington, DC 20036
(202) 296-0928

Provides expert training performed by qualified volunteers in a variety of health fields so that trainees can deliver services and train others in appropriate techniques. HVO is organized into divisions in the following specialties: anesthesia, dentistry, general surgery, oral and maxillofacial surgery, orthopaedics, and pediatrics. HVO operates programs in Africa, Asia, Central and South America, and the Caribbean. Volunteers work within the local health care delivery system, teaching their colleagues effective ways to address the predominant local pathologies and health problems. While each program is different in goals and content, the principal concept remains the same, that the volunteers should teach as well as provide service.

Heart to Heart International, Inc.

H2H

13849 South Murlen, Suite F
Olathe, KS 66062
(913) 764-5200

Enables volunteers to mobilize their resources, within the structure of a grass roots organization, to meet human needs not only in their local communities but throughout the world. After organizing a small volunteer effort in late 1991 on behalf of the Russian people, Dr. Gary Morsch established Heart to Heart International as a non-profit, grass roots network. The organization is dedicated to promoting the involvement of individuals in programs and projects that alleviate human suffering and address the needs of the total person — connecting people to people, heart to heart.

Heifer Project International, Inc.

HPI

P.O. Box 808
Little Rock, AR 72203
(501) 376-6836

Strives to help alleviate world hunger and poverty, one grass roots community at a time. With over 200 projects in 33 different countries, including the USA, it is governed by a volunteer board of directors representing 14 church agencies and a cross section of private and public sectors. HPI works by providing animals (including fish, bees, llamas, etc.), tree seedlings, and training in sustainable livestock management to organized groups of farmers who request assistance. Each recipient in turn "passes on the gift" of animal offspring, seeds, or skills gained to another farmer in the community. With proper care, the animals become an ongoing source of food or draft power, fertilizer and income, as well as an economic incentive to plant erosion-controlling trees and grasses. HPI conducts programs in five geographic areas: Africa/Near East, Asia/South Pacific, Latin America/Caribbean, United States/Canada, and Central/Eastern Europe.

Helen Keller International, Inc.

HKI

90 Washington Street, 15th Floor
New York, NY 10006
(212) 943-0890

Works with and through other groups that provide services at the sub-national, national, and international levels to create sustainable and replicable programs. Founded in 1915 to develop rehabilitation programs for soldiers who were blinded during World War I, HKI's subsequent pioneering work in the areas of primary eye care and the prevention of blindness has made it an atypical private voluntary agency with a unique place in the public health community. HKI does not deliver direct clinical services to beneficiary populations. Instead, HKI acts in the roles of catalyst, trainer, organizer, networker, facilitator, provider of technical assistance and specialized human resources, and problem-solver.

INTER-AID INCORPORATED

d/b/a International Christian Aid
(ICA)

101 Ridgeside Court, Suite 201
Mount Airy, MD 21771
(301) 829-2115

Focuses on promoting self-reliance through self-help projects in developing countries, including Chad, Kenya, Uganda, Thailand, Cambodia, Honduras, and the Philippines. These projects involve water resources, medical services, food/crop production, technology transfer, and education. International Christian Aid (ICA) supports three distinct but related programs: developmental aid, child sponsorship, and short-term emergency relief when necessary. ICA believes that children are the future — yet they are the most vulnerable to disease, hunger, and deprivation. ICA's Child Sponsorship Program provides the child and his/her family with educational and health resources, as well as the necessary developmental programs to enhance the community in which the child will live and grow.

NYZS The Wildlife Conservation Society

WCS, International Conservation Programs

185th Street & Southern Boulevard
Bronx, NY 10460
(718) 220-5116

Dedicates itself to preserving the Earth's wildlife and ecosystems. Established in 1898 as the New York Zoological Society, the Wildlife Conservation Society's (WCS) International Conservation Programs concentrates its efforts in many of the world's developing countries where biological diversity is great and the pressure on nature is intense. The WCS has the largest field staff of any international conservation organization; currently, it conducts 220 projects in 45 countries throughout Central and South America, Asia, and Africa. WCS's unique strategy is to rely on long-term field studies to gather information on wildlife needs. The WCS depends on familiarity with local conditions to translate results into conservation action and policy, to train conservation professionals, and to build public awareness. The WCS has forged productive relationships with governments and local conservation organizations.

Obermayer Foundation, Inc.

239 Chestnut Street
West Newton, MA 02165
(617) 244-0180

Administers support and technical assistance to technical professionals in the New Independent States (NIS), through its division East-West TV, for the production of TV programs on market economics. Broadcast on national networks and reaching over 250 million people, these programs are designed to appeal to the average television viewer and to change mindsets and attitudes that inhibit effective work in a market economy. Specifically, they deal with subjects such as the power of consumers, the importance of competition, the responsibility of workers, the rights of individuals, and the role of the state. Using resources and personnel in the U.S. and NIS, East-West TV also develops ideas for projects, secures commitments, and acts as project manager and coordinator for certain productions.

240 West Tulpehocken Street
Philadelphia, PA 19144
(215) 842-0220

Administers assistance in establishing and institutionalizing sustainable, non-governmental organizations that provide skills training programs at the request of and in partnership with local communities, host governments, and donors. Founded in 1969, OICI has developed 25 programs in 13 African countries and others in Belize, the United Kingdom, Poland, and the Philippines. These programs offer courses in various vocational, agricultural, and small enterprise development skills, as well as job placement/self-employment or resettlement services. Beneficiaries include unemployed individuals who have not completed school, small farmers, retrenched workers, and aspiring or existing business entrepreneurs. Assistance strategies focus on community participation, institution-building, and empowerment of people. Institution-building is accomplished by developing board, staff, and management systems based on local needs. Future regional and sectoral expansion is envisioned.

Opportunity International, Inc.

360 West Butterfield Road, Suite 110
Elmhurst, IL 60126
(708) 279-9300

Creates non-governmental organizations (NGOs) in developing countries that provide small loans (averaging $800) to help people start or expand businesses and become self-sufficient. Opportunity International offers business training and on-site visits to improve the management skills of its borrowers. Opportunity International has been offering capital rather than charity in 15 Asian and Latin American countries in order to create jobs since 1971. Its purpose has been to fight chronic hunger and poverty at their root cause: unemployment. People in developing countries do not have food because they do not have jobs; Opportunity International creates one family-supporting job with every $500 loaned. It is dedicated to restoring dignity to the poor of developing countries by helping them to help themselves.

Organization for Tropical Studies, Inc.

OTS

Box 90630
Durham, NC 27706-0630
(919) 684-5774

Promotes training, research, and the wise use of natural resources in the tropics. OTS, a consortium of universities and research institutions, currently maintains three biological field stations located in contrasting ecosystems (lowland rainforest, lowland seasonally dry forest, and mid-elevation rainforest) in Costa Rica to facilitate programming. OTS programs include: environmental education programs associated with these stations; graduate-level field courses in ecology, agroecology, conservation biology, systematic botany taught in both English and Spanish, and environmental policy short courses for legislators and mid-level decision makers on the ecological implications of development in the tropics. Whenever possible, basic and applied ecological research is coupled with the improvements of natural resource management practices. Applied research in the domestication of little-known tree species, for instance, has developed as a model for agroforestry throughout the tropics.

PSI

1120 19th Street NW, Suite 600
Washington, DC 20036
(202) 785-0072

Provides health and population planning products and services in over 25 developing countries. PSI's activities include marketing health products such as contraceptives for birth spacing and family planning, condoms for STD and AIDS prevention, and oral rehydration salts to prevent infant death from diarrheal disease. PSI's programs involve information, education, and communication campaigns and brand specific promotion and advertising that motivates target groups to adopt healthier lifestyles and purchase and use specific products and services. PSI fosters local industry and service capabilities related to health and population, including market research, advertising, commercial distribution, and manufacturing. PSI also uses commercial marketing techniques and resources of the local private sector, such as distributors, retailers, and advertising agencies. PSI's products, however, are sold at lower prices, thus making them affordable to virtually all income groups. Revenue obtained from product sales is used to defray program costs.

family planning, AIDS education, direct medical assistance, and community health volunteer training. In all of its programs, PCI uses volunteers and prepares local communities to care for themselves through long-term, self-sustaining projects. PCI's OPTIONS Service links participating health care professionals with volunteer opportunities worldwide. PCI currently manages programs in the United States, Mexico, Guatemala, Nicaragua, Bolivia, Romania, Indonesia, and Papua New Guinea.

Project Dawn, Inc.

Donors and Workers Now

P.O. Box 60039
Savannah, GA 31420
(912) 920-3296

Organizes volunteer specialty medical teams who provide free medical assistance to the medically disadvantaged people of Guyana, South America. Provides the opportunity for more current and advanced medical care, which would not otherwise be available in the country. The teams give direct patient care through inpatient and outpatient services and provide consultations for more complicated cases, both in the clinic in Georgetown, Guyana, and in the outreach facilities. Team members provide an informal teaching program in the hospital and clinic settings, through direct one-on-one teaching and conferences, to benefit medical students and house officers. All equipment and supplies for treatment and surgeries have been donated, gathered, and shipped to Guyana through the efforts of Project Dawn. Staffed by unpaid volunteer personnel, the group sends medical teams of multispecialty physicians, surgeons, and support personnel to Guyana three to four times each year.

The Resource Foundation, Inc.

TRF

P.O. Box 3006
Larchmont, NY 10538
(914) 834-5810

Helps strengthen the capacity of private development organizations in developing countries to assist low-income people in achieving greater self-reliance. TRF, a non-profit membership organization, was founded in 1987 by people united in the belief that local responses to need situations are more effective than expatriate ones; and that local organizations often embrace key characteristics such as beneficiary participation, high-impact activities, self-help methodologies, and low-cost operations. TRF also believes that the role of agencies in the developed world is shifting from implementor to supporter, and that the empowerment of agencies in the developing world is both inevitable and desirable. TRF provides a variety of services, including networking, technical information, technical assistance, financial resource procurement, and representation. The current membership, comprising 25 groups located in 15 Latin American and Caribbean countries, is involved in a wide variety of high-impact projects, including primary health care, rural and urban development, the environment, micro-enterprise, and low-cost housing.

River Blindness Foundation

RBF

One Sugar Creek Place, 14141
Southwest Freeway, Suite 6200
Sugar Land, TX 77478
(713) 491-1600

Works to prevent blindness caused by onchocerciasis and seeks ultimately to eradicate this disease, which is endemic in Africa and Latin America. The major goals of RBF are to identify communities in which the risk of blindness is great, to find cost-effective and timely ways to deliver ivermectin to all eligible residents of these communities, and to prevent blindness resulting from onchocerciasis by the year 2000. RBF organizes treatment programs that include ivermectin distribution in areas where onchocerciasis is endemic and provides funding support for other agencies that conduct similar programs. RBF also sponsors educational activities that provide information concerning river blindness and ivermectin to those in widely affected areas.

Rizal/MacArthur Memorial Foundation, Inc.

RMMF

756 North 35th Street, Suite 201
Milwaukee, WI 53208
(414) 873-7291

Provides medical and hospital equipment and supplies to the rural areas of the Philippines and also helps disaster areas affected by calamities such as typhoons, floods, and earthquakes. The RMMF administers medical services, supplies, assistance, and training to families and individuals in addition to helping educational organizations and institutions in medicine and public health. Because many provinces and non-urban centers lack adequate medical facilities, the RMMF helps establish medical centers, hospitals, and sanitariums and awards grants, inducements, and other forms of financial assistance to medical personnel in order to staff the facilities and provide treatment to those in rural areas. It collects and distributes medical supplies and equipment to institutions and organizations for the needy, including working directly in slums and squatter areas, among beggars, and with the homeless. The RMMF also supports the Free Rural Eye Clinic that brings doctors who perform cataract and other ocular surgeries, thus restoring sight to people who could never afford these procedures.

Strengthens and assists local YMCAs in developing countries with the planning and funding of social and economic development programs. Works in collaboration with the World Alliance of YMCAs based in Geneva. The YMCAs of USA's International World Service Program assists programs in Central and Eastern Europe, Ireland, Africa, Latin America, Asia, the Middle East, the Caribbean, and the Pacific. The programs focus primarily on vocational training, project management training, health, rural community development, agriculture, and youth and family services. Additional assistance is given to YMCAs for work with refugees and disaster relief.

The private voluntary organizations (PVOs) presented in this report vary in size from several thousand dollars to several million dollars in support and revenue from private contributions, U.S. Government, international agencies, and in-kind donations.

Percentage from Non-U.S. Government Sources in Support of International Programs

For the past several years, the Foreign Assistance Appropriation Act has included the following provision regarding private voluntary organizations (PVOs):

None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act for development assistance may be made available to any United States private voluntary organization, except any cooperative development organization, which obtains less than 20 percent of its total annual funding for international activities from sources other than the United States Government.

The twenty percent requirement does not apply to:

- Non-U.S. PVOs,
- Cooperative Development Organizations (CDO), or
- Economic Support Funds (ESF), Disaster Assistance, or other non-Development Assistance (DA) sources of funding.
