EVALUATION PUBLICATIONS LIST

The Center for Development Information and Evaluation (CDIE) has an evaluation publications series that includes publications on a broad range of subjects of interest to the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) and others working in international development. The series comprises discussion papers, project impact evaluations, program evaluations, special studies, program design and evaluation methodology reports, occasional papers, technical reports, program and operations assessment reports, and several brief evaluation products targeted for USAID audiences.

- Bulletins for Senior Managers are brief 1- to 2-page bulletins describing important or unusual findings from CDIE studies and their possible implications for senior management program and policy decisions.
- Evaluation Highlights are 8-page summaries of key issues, findings, and programmatic implications of CDIE studies targeted for USAID audiences.
- Program and Operations Assessment Reports synthesize the findings and conclusions of the technical reports produced in the course of an assessment.
- Project Impact Evaluations summarize the findings from field evaluations of project performance and impact.

- Special Studies examine evaluation findings of special programs, sectors, or cross-cutting themes.
- Program Evaluation Reports synthesize findings and lessons from an impact evaluation series within a program area.
- Program Design and Evaluation Methodology Reports provide guidance on program design, monitoring, and evaluation methods, program performance indicators, and data collection techniques.
- Innovative Development Approaches are 4- to 12-page descriptions of new development approaches and their implications for USAID programming.
- Discussion Papers cover issues or review the literature on a topic, usually prior to the initiation of field studies.
- Occasional Papers are informal papers that examine selected topics in evaluation and international development.
- Technical Reports are in-depth field-based studies designed for a limited technical audience. An interdisciplinary team examines project impacts and contributing factors of USAID-funded projects in areas of priority interest to USAID to prepare these reports.

The CDIE Evaluation Publications List is arranged by general subject category (e.g., agriculture) and type of report (e.g., Special Study) within each category or subcategory. Each document has an identification number (e.g., PN-AAL-045) and is available in paper copy and on microfiche. When ordering, please include the title, type of report, report number, and identification code, as well as the format (paper or microfiche) preferred. All orders should be sent to:
