Matching Grant Program

The Matching Grant Program awards competitive grants to private and voluntary organizations (PVOs) to support clearly defined and delineated field-oriented programs to be carried out in a number of countries. The programs must be well conceived and incorporate rigorous evaluation criteria. Such a program may be as broad as the overall scope of a PVO's work or as specific as community-based health services or small enterprise development. It must be consistent with the U.S. Agency for International Development's (USAID) legislative mandate and with development priorities.

Through the Matching Grant Program, a PVO will address particular priorities which it shares with USAID. The grant will normally allow a PVO to expand a successful program in new places or initiate new projects. It may also enable a PVO to undertake an experimental or innovative project on the cutting edge of development efforts that offers potential for learning and replication. Additionally, the matching grant may allow a PVO to further professionalize its management systems and technical backstopping of its field programs.

For USAID, the Matching Grant Program offers a mechanism to consolidate multiple grant relationships with a PVO, provide for better program integration, reduce overlapping administrative procedures, and allow maximum program flexibility.

To qualify for a matching grant, a PVO must have a successful record in implementing development programs as well as demonstrated private fund-raising ability. The PVO must supply at least 50 percent of the cost of the program in cash; USAID will match the PVO's contribution dollar-for-dollar. The program life runs from three to five years.

Child Survival & Vitamin A

Child Survival & Vitamin A Program

The Child Survival and Vitamin A Program awards competitive grants to PVOs engaged in primary health programming as part of their international development efforts. These grants support projects designed to have a demonstrable effect on the health status of children and mothers living in target areas in developing countries. The program focuses on a few technologies which have a high potential for saving lives and are technically and logistically deliverable at reasonable cost. It recognizes the paramount need for interventions which are epidemiologically sound, cost-effective, and address the communities' needs.

A project must focus on the main causes of childhood morbidity and mortality, and propose cost-effective interventions that will have a positive impact. Among the limited, manageable mix of interventions emphasized are: immunization, management of diarrheal diseases, nutrition (including promotion of exclusive breastfeeding, proper weaning practices, promotion of vitamin A), maternal care, management of acute respiratory infections, malaria control, and HIV/AIDS education. In addition, projects address issues of sustainability as they relate to project activities. At least 25 percent of the project costs must be borne by the grantee.

Cooperative Development

Cooperative Development Program

As a result of both the Humphrey Amendment to the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 and the Alliance for Progress, the U.S. has dedicated substantial support to the use and development of Cooperative Development Organizations (CDOs). CDOs provide assistance both nationally and overseas in areas such as local institution building, capital formation, infrastructure development, technology transfer, democratic institution strengthening, financing and marketing functioning, and infrastructure development, and the use of cooperative structures in development projects. The U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) works with CDOs in order to enhance development in particular areas of agriculture credit, dairy development, housing, private enterprise development, rural electrification, and insurance protection. USAID's Cooperative Development Program provides financing assistance through two grant vehicles:

(1) Cooperative Program Support Grants (CPSG) which strengthen and expand the CDOs' international operations through program and organizational development, resource enhancement, and limited program services.

(2) Cooperative Initiatives Grant Program (CIGP) which provides funding to smaller grants for periods of less than three years. The CIGP has become a valued component of the Cooperative Development Program as it explores new and creative approaches, involves new participants, and mobilizes additional resources for international cooperative development.

Farmer-to-Farmer

Farmer-to-Farmer Program

The Farmer-to-Farmer (FTF) Program has provided short-term, voluntary, technical assistance on a people-to-people basis since 1985. Its purpose is to provide assistance in the practical aspects of increasing food production and distribution and to improve the effectiveness of farming operations. The objectives of the FTF Program are to provide technical assistance, on a voluntary basis, to farmer associations, cooperatives, and other farm groups to enhance the potential for substantial increases in food processing, production, and marketing to stimulate private-sector enterprises and democratic institutions.

The most recent Farm Bill, the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996, reauthorizes the FTF Program through December 31, 2002. Also, it increases the minimum funding to 0.4% of Public Law (PL) 480 funds, and increases the corresponding sub-minimum funding level for developing countries to 0.2% of PL 480 funds.

Through the Worldwide FTF (WW-FTF) Program, more than 1,350 volunteer assignments in more than 70 countries have been completed since 1991. In 1996, the WW-FTF Program was competitively rebid. The new five year WW-FTF Program has been designed to reflect a focus country approach. The Peace Corps and the 5 implementors will field about 1,200 volunteers to 21 focus countries -- 6 in Africa, 10 in Latin America, and 5 in Asia and the Near East.

A $30.0 million, 3-year Special Initiative under the FTF Program in the New Independent States of the former Soviet Union (NIS-FTF) was inaugurated in early 1991, and has been extended yearly since 1995. Over the life of the program, 6 implementors will field over 2,980 volunteers to all 12 countries in the NIS, with the greatest concentration in the Russian Federation, Ukraine, and Kazakstan. Currently, there are four NIS-FTF Program implementors.

The FTF Program is managed by the Office of Private and Voluntary Cooperation.
