Activity Summary and achievements:

Each year, former President Jimmy Carter contributes a week of his time to Habitat to build homes and raise awareness of the critical need for affordable housing. The 2002 Habitat program included building 1,000 houses in 18 countries, 300 of which were completed in South Africa. The final 100 houses were built in a five-day period at the main Jimmy Carter Work Program site in Durban during the week of 3-7 June 2002.

This grant funded the direct costs of construction of ten new houses as part of the 2002 Jimmy Carter Work Program. Beyond providing shelter to ten disadvantaged families, the program further demonstrated energy efficient methodologies, helped promote reconciliation by encouraging people from diverse backgrounds to work and interact with each other, and helped to alter the perception that low cost housing means a slum or poor quality housing.
