OVERVIEW

Introduction

Private voluntary organizations (PVOs)¹ are vital development partners working independently and alongside the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). The Voluntary Foreign Aid Programs: Report of Voluntary Agencies Engaged in Overseas Relief and Development (VolAg Report) presents an overview of their work. The VolAg Report is an annual snapshot of U.S. PVOs registered with USAID. The report summarizes PVO program activities, showing the geographical and sectoral focus of their activities, as well as their support, revenue, and expenditures. PVO Web site and e-mail listings can be found in the Registry section. The 444 U.S. PVOs submitting annual information and in full compliance to the Conditions of Registration were registered with USAID as of December 1, 2002.

Recognizing the Voluntary, Autonomous Nature of PVOs

USAID views PVOs as development partners carrying out long-term sustainable development and humanitarian relief activities. USAID recognizes the independent mission of PVOs as well as their role in implementing USAID's programs. By joining forces, USAID and PVOs can do more together than either could accomplish alone.

One of the challenges inherent in such a partnership is the achievement of the right mixture of collaboration and independence between public and private spheres. A healthy degree of separation between the two is essential for the unique mission of each, but cooperation is also critical to the vitality of both. Thus, interdependence is the fundamental nature of the USAID and PVO partnership. In keeping with this principle of the public-private partnership, U.S. PVOs registered and supported by USAID must meet the "privateness requirement" legislated by Congress. This means that to be eligible for grants from development assistance funds, U.S. PVOs must show that at least 20 percent of annual financial resources for their international programs come from sources other than the U.S. Government.

Voluntary Agencies: A Tradition of Support for Humanitarian and Development Assistance

USAID recognizes the significant role that PVOs play in providing humanitarian and development assistance in developing and transition countries. Although the PVOs registered with USAID vary markedly in size, scope, and capability, they share a strong commitment to improving the quality of life for people in developing countries. In its work overseas, the PVO community demonstrates the traditional American values of pluralism, voluntary action, and concern for others. PVOs foster sustainable self-help efforts at the community level, providing a direct channel for people-to-people programs that broaden the participation of the poorest citizens in the social and economic decisions that affect their daily lives.

The humanitarian activities of the U.S. PVOs originated many years ago in response to natural disasters and the social consequences of war. As a result of their ability to respond quickly and effectively, PVOs emerged as leaders in disaster relief. Gradually, their efforts broadened from relief and emergency food distribution to longer-term, more sustainable development programs designed to address the root causes of poverty and disaster mitigation. This transition from short-term relief to long-term development programs strengthened the cooperation between USAID and the PVO community that has firmly taken root over the past three decades. Today, many PVOs link short-term emergency activities to longer-term development objectives. The effort to bridge the gap between humanitarian and development assistance is increasingly important to USAID programs and, in particular, to crisis mitigation. PVOs have the skills, experience, and innovative approaches to help address these priorities.

While continuing to respond to human needs in emergency situations, PVOs increasingly contribute their private resources to development activities that are essential to helping people in the developing world improve their quality of life. The development programs operated by PVOs promote broad-based economic growth and a more sustainable environment. PVOs also foster human capacity development, focusing particularly on the attainment of health and education levels required for all citizens to contribute to, and benefit from, economic development. The work encourages pluralism and the emergence of democratic institutions.

A Shared Basis for Collaboration

PVOs and USAID pursue shared priorities that are aimed at achieving effective sustainable development. Although the objectives of PVOs are not identical to those of USAID, their work with the Agency contributes to the achievement of USAID's four pillars: the Global Development Alliance; Economic Growth, Agriculture and Trade; Global Health; and Democracy, Conflict, and Humanitarian Assistance. PVOs are actively involved in specific programs to meet Agency objectives in areas such as microenterprise development, child survival and health, natural resource management, civil society promotion, PVO capacity strengthening, food security, humanitarian assistance, and disaster relief.

In the new millennium, USAID continues to place emphasis on programs that build strong, free market economies, foster the growth of microcredit, stimulate agricultural development, and promote health and well being. Priority will continue to be placed on programs that protect the environment for future generations, while bringing about economic development and an equitable sharing of resources. USAID also supports programs that help fledgling democracies around the world, while facilitating citizen participation and the development of civil society.

¹PVO is used to denote the voluntary organizations working with USAID, including both U.S. and international private voluntary organizations, as well as cooperative development organizations (CDOs).

USAID supports strengthened partnerships between PVOs and their local non-governmental organization (NGO) partners. By helping to build the capacity of local partners, PVOs are making a critical contribution to sustainable development. USAID's partnerships with PVOs and NGOs also help empower citizens to take advantage of changes in their own environments, add new energy to development efforts, and strengthen the fabric of civil society. This has resulted in the creation of learning and advocacy networks as well as alliances between nonprofits and corporations, both here and abroad.

Leveraging Private Resources for Development

PVOs make a vital contribution to USAID's foreign assistance programs. As data presented in this report indicate, the private resources devoted to international development by the PVO community exceed support provided by the U.S. Government. During fiscal year 2001, registered U.S. PVOs received $12.3 billion in annual private support, which was more than seven times the amount they received in USAID support, which totaled $1.7 billion. Other U.S. Government agencies and international organizations provided an additional $1.8 billion, bringing the total support and revenue to $15.7 billion. For a detailed breakdown of support and revenue sources, see pages 102-146.

New Policies and Simplified Procedures Strengthen USAID/PVO Collaboration

In recent years, USAID has reformed many of its operating systems. These reforms have facilitated improved development performance by emphasizing core values,² simplifying administrative procedures, and eliminating unnecessary layers of bureaucracy.

USAID has simplified its bureaucratic procedures ranging from PVO registration to grant competition and administration. These and other ongoing reforms will allow PVOs to focus on development work rather than unnecessary or unproductive paperwork. USAID handbooks, for example, have been replaced by the more flexible Automated Directives System (ADS), which is available on-line at the USAID Web site (www.usaid.gov). Chapter 303 — Grants and Cooperative Agreements — will be of particular interest to the PVO community. Input from the PVO community assisted the Agency with revising the ADS 303. Interested parties are encouraged to visit USAID's Procurement web site for pertinent information on doing business with the Agency (www.usaid.gov/pubs/ads/300/303).

USAID's web site (www.usaid.gov) makes the Agency more accessible to its partners. A tremendous amount of material is available online. As well as the ADS, press releases, the USAID telephone directory, procurement information, "Results-Oriented Assistance: A USAID Sourcebook," and a directory of USAID awards (the Yellow Book) can be found on the web site.

USAID'S Office of Private and Voluntary Cooperation: A Central Contact Point for PVOs and Competitive PVO Grant Programs

USAID's support for its PVO partners comes from many sources within the Agency, including USAID Missions based overseas and the regional and central bureaus located in Washington. The Office of Private and Voluntary Cooperation (PVC) is the central point of contact for PVOs. PVC is responsible for the registration of U.S. and international PVOs with USAID. In addition, PVC administers PVO competitive grant programs that seek to strengthen the organizational and technical capacity of U.S. PVOs and, through them, their local partners. PVC is also the secretariat for the Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid.

PVC, in coordination with the missions, regional offices, and other bureaus within USAID, administers programs that are designed to enhance the impact of USAID/PVO collaboration by strengthening the capabilities of PVOs to innovate, scale up, and effectively manage their programs and to partner with local counterparts. This allows for more effective and sustainable programming at the local level and the transfer of capacity to local organizations. PVC provides its capacity-building support through a number of grant programs, including Program Development and Management (formerly Matching Grant), Cooperative Development, Ocean Freight Reimbursement, and Victims of Torture Program.

This document, commonly referred to as the VolAg Report, is the culmination of a year's worth of effort by PVC to collect, validate, and disseminate a clear and factual report about the PVO community.

Dr. Patricia J. Blair, President

Promotes peace and understanding through institutional and individual capacity building using exchange of ideas, information, and resources. ACTS has established chapters with local leadership in the New Independent States. ACTS established the first Georgian nonprofit humanitarian aid organization, Acts-Georgia, in 1992, which exemplifies institutional capacity building and allows Georgians to help Georgians. ACTS has shipped more than $410 million in medication, supplies, and equipment. Diabetic care, emergency and disaster medicine, and women's and children's health are priorities. Sister-city links between Columbia, Missouri, and Kutaisi, Georgia, focus on public administration, business, education, health, and art and culture. Sister-university connections link the University of Missouri with the two universities in Kutaisi.

Dr. Mark Plotkin, President

Works in partnership with indigenous people in Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, Suriname, and Mexico. ACT is dedicated to creating and implementing new and effective conservation strategies by combining indigenous knowledge with Western science to understand, document, and preserve the biological and cultural diversity of these regions. ACT takes many approaches, which include sponsoring participatory mapping projects, apprentice programs for shamans, clinics that offer both Western and traditional treatments, medicinal plant gardens, and meetings of healers across tribes and countries. ACT helps indigenous leaders to establish protected areas and draft management plans for those areas.

Mr. Samuel H. Sage, President

Provides legal, technical, and organizational assistance on environmental issues to nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) and others. Established in 1982, ASLF was, for many years, the principal NGO bringing legal actions under the citizen suit provisions of U.S. environmental laws, such as the Clean Air Act and the Clean Water Act. ASLF also is noted for its technical assistance on a wide range of environmental matters, its work in stakeholder negotiations, and its educational programs. ASLF employs a small staff in Syracuse, N.Y., and uses a network of attorneys and environmental professionals around the country and abroad.

Mr. Roger Bouwma, Director, International Services

Promotes permanency planning for children—first, within their own countries and cultures, and then, through international adoption if the first is not possible. Bethany's philosophy is to provide development support to existing programs in the country or to partner with in-country programs. The country then develops a new program that assists children and families and prevents institutionalization of children. Bethany provides counseling services, adoption, temporary foster care, and medical care. The organization also works in partnership with the government to ensure sustainability when Bethany's work is completed. Bethany pursues these goals through educational partnerships with universities, sending volunteers to the field, hiring qualified indigenous people, and providing local training programs.

Endeavors to improve the health and living conditions of the poorest population in South Asia, primarily in India and Nepal. Since 1992, TBP of the International Health Organization (IHO) has worked to advocate, develop, and implement rural health programs that are integrated with rural development programs. TBP strongly believes that isolated attempts to "treat" diseases in these populations cannot be successful unless the accompanying problems of abject poverty and the total environment surrounding and perpetuating it are improved. Our programs are concentrated upon environmental health, community health, and vocational training and health education of women. TBP works within the strictures of the prevailing circumstances and applicable laws.

Mr. Thomas Tighe, President and CEO

Improves the quality and availability of health care through partnerships with indigenous health facilities and projects. DRI has three areas of focus: international health assistance, domestic assistance, and disaster response. Each year, DRI works to promote and strengthen the self-sufficiency of some 250 partner institutions and organizations in more than 50 countries through the provision of specifically requested pharmaceuticals, nutritional supplements, medical supplies, and equipment from U.S. manufacturers and distributors. Through these medical donations, DRI ensures that appropriate medical treatment will be available to victims of poverty, war, and natural and civil disasters, regardless of political affiliation, ethnic or religious identity, or ability to pay for services.

Provides support (technical and financial) to projects on the ground at sites important for migratory waterfowl and for development of sustainable land uses for the benefit of local communities. Founded in 1937 in response to declining wetlands in North America as a result of the drought ("Dust Bowl") of the 1930s, DU continues to expand and has initiated the Latin America and Caribbean Program. DU is the largest waterfowl and wetland conservation organization in the world. Most of its work is concentrated in Canada and the United States, but due to the importance of wintering habitat for waterfowl, Ducks Unlimited de Mexico was created in the 1970s.

Mr. Anthony J. Barbieri, Director, Government Programs

Initiates, sustains, and supports nonsectarian, humanitarian, and developmental assistance programs in developing nations of the Caribbean Basin and Latin America. Goals are to improve the health; education; and economic, social, and spiritual condition of the poor.

Relief and ongoing development projects are distributed through channels of missionaries of every denomination who have assumed the responsibilities of meeting the needs of the poor. Through shipments of food, medical supplies, school furniture, vocational training equipment, seeds, farming tools, clothing, lumber, and vehicles, the elderly are fed, abandoned babies are cared for, children go to school, men and women are established in profit-making microenterprises, standards of living are raised, and dignity and hope are restored.

Mr. Ca Van Tran, President

Provides assistance to Vietnamese children in referral services, case management, health and dental services, basic education, vocational training, and other related humanitarian services. HealthED is providing assistance to three displaced children's centers. Community-based programs assist vulnerable children, providing minimal financial aid to encourage education and microenterprise. The above services also are provided to the children of the community through an outreach program. Both the center and the outreach program are offered in Dalat and the provinces of Lam Dong, Can Tho, and Hung Yen. HealthED works closely with local Vietnamese officials to promote continuing developmental, vocational, and health programs within the Vietnamese child welfare community.

Over the past year, the ICHF has provided cardiac surgery to more than 235 children in six countries (Belarus, China, Croatia, Nicaragua, Peru, and the former Yugoslavia). ICHF has donated in excess of $400,000 in medical goods and services. ICHF's educational programs in Memphis and abroad have involved nearly 100 physicians, nurses, and technicians; ICHF believes that such a program is beneficial to the health and welfare of far more children with heart disease than those for whom it merely provides operations. Certainly the education and donated equipment result in colleagues being able to help more of their children after the organization's departure.

Provides hope and a future to children in crisis. ICA achieves its mission through humanitarian aid, specialized clinics (counseling and social service), foster care, and adoptions. From 1990 to 2001, ICA sent more than 41 containers of humanitarian aid—amounting to several million dollars—to Russian territories. ICA collaborated with several other organizations to build hospitals and mobile dental and medical units for orphans, and to provide cleft palate surgeries. ICA also conducts a Welcome Home Camp each year, bringing between 30 and 50 orphans from differing territories. Most children will be adopted.

Ms. Sarah Woodard, President

Focuses on community development, health issues, technology, microenterprise, sustainable agriculture, and education in Central America. JHC founded its Center for Development to address the immense poverty that is choking much of the region. JHC community members and a network of U.S. volunteers and friends provide the basis for JHC's work in Nicaragua. In Nueva Vida, Nicaragua, JHC hired four community promoters to organize elections of leaders in each neighborhood to identify needs, priorities, and volunteer work schedules. JHC began a temporary health clinic, which employs a part-time doctor and a full-time nurse, and designed latrines for 232 families.

Dr. Farshad Rastegar, CEO and President

Provides emergency relief, rehabilitation, and development assistance to victims of natural disasters and civil conflicts worldwide. RI has successfully bridged the gap between immediate emergency relief and long-term community development through programming that is multi-sectoral and grassroots-based. RI's programs promote self-reliance, civil society, peace, tolerance, and democracy. RI focuses on those most adversely affected by disasters or in need of development assistance, such as the poverty-stricken, women, children, minorities, and the elderly. RI has programs in primary and public health, reproductive health, shelter, education, community development, microcredit, income-generation, refugee settlement, and emergency disaster relief. Countries of current and past presence include Albania, Azerbaijan, Burundi, Georgia, Kosovo, Rwanda, Tajikistan, Turkey, and Vietnam.

Ms. Nadia Abourizk-Asaad, Executive Director

Promotes social, economic, and rural development in Lebanon and the creation of a responsible civil society that will consolidate national unity and contribute to a sustainable peace. The foundation was created in Lebanon in 1990 by Nayla Moawad, widow of the late president of Lebanon, Rene Moawad, and established in the United States in 1993. RMF responds to the most crucial social problems that face Lebanon today by providing medical assistance to the poor through its three clinics and by promoting development through the Agricultural Center of the North, which creates small cottage industries and provides farmers with technical and mechanical support. The organization's Center for Research and Education on Democracy undertakes numerous civil-society building projects, including a quarterly publication, Hurriyat (which means "freedom") and annual workshops and conferences.

Dr. Clive Calver, President

Provides financial and technical support for development, disaster relief, and refugee assistance programs carried out in partnership with networks of evangelical churches throughout the world. Established in 1944 by the National Association of Evangelicals in the United States, World Relief has a long history of service to victims of war and disaster through innovative solutions that emphasize self-sufficiency and local participation. World Relief's development programs focus on microenterprise development, maternal and child health programs, AIDS prevention, and sustainable agricultural development. With its local evangelical church partners, World Relief carries out disaster response activities. The organization's programs provide assistance to those in need without regard to religious affiliation.

Dr. Gil Boese, President

Works to enhance the capacity of the Institute Congolais pour la Conservation de la Nature (ICCN) to gain control over the Salonga National Park, Democratic Republic of Congo, by administering funds for salaries, medical care, and food rations to park guards. The majority of these funds are provided through a partnership between ZSM and UNESCO. Funds from USAID will be used for program administration, coordination, and supervision costs. Support of park guards will allow additional ICCN conservation projects to ensue simultaneously: namely, anti-poaching patrols, biodiversity surveys, and preliminary documentation of community-park relationships.

united states private voluntary organizations

Summary of Activities and Privateness Percentages (FY 2001)... 101

The U.S. private voluntary organizations (PVOs) presented vary in size from several thousand dollars to several million dollars in support and revenue from private, U.S. Government, international agencies, and in-kind donations. For the past several years, the Foreign Assistance Appropriations Act has included the following provision regarding PVOs.

None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act for development assistance may be made available to any United States private and voluntary organization, except any cooperative development organization, which obtains less than 20 percent of its total annual funding for international activities from sources other than the United States Government.*

The 20 percent requirement does not apply to

- Non-U.S. PVOs
- Cooperative Development Organizations
- Economic Support Funds (ESF), Disaster Assistance, or Other Non-Development Assistance (DA) Sources of Funding.

* The Privateness Percentage computation is based on overseas expenses reported by the PVO on its financial statements. This percentage excludes expenses for USAID-initiated activities.

Mr. Olivier Longue, General Manager

Works in approximately 40 countries on 5 continents with teams of fieldworkers bringing together more than 320 professionals: specialists in the fields of nutrition, agriculture, water and sanitation, and public health. A group of journalists and intellectuals created ACH in Paris in 1979. ACH relies on the skills of its local teams of nearly 4,500 people to develop programs that are well adapted to the needs of its beneficiaries. ACH's prime objective is to assist the most vulnerable and, secondly, to raise public awareness in developed countries about the scale of hunger. Ultimately, ACH aims to enable the beneficiaries to regain their autonomy and self-sufficiency as soon as possible.

Ms. Florence Daunis, Executive Director

Fights hunger by providing emergency assistance and by linking relief and development in five areas of expertise—nutrition, food security, health, disaster preparedness, and water sanitation. ACF intervenes, whether during a crisis through emergency programs, or after a crisis through rehabilitation programs. ACF also integrates a disaster preparedness approach designed to reduce vulnerability and to strengthen capacities of local communities to respond to crises. Together with its three sister organizations, ACF works in 40 countries worldwide. The organization also engages in public education and advocacy efforts relating to hunger issues around world.

Mr. Feisal Hussain, Head,
Partnership Development Unit

Works with the poor and marginalized people to eradicate poverty by overcoming the injustice and inequity that cause it. Action Aid, the third largest development agency in the United Kingdom, addresses the root causes of poverty and improves the quality of lives. The organization aims to tackle the causes and effects of absolute poverty through long-term development programs and influencing work. Action Aid works directly with local communities and organizations, helping to ensure that basic needs are met, promoting basic rights as the focus in all its work, and providing emergency assistance when necessary. ActionAid, based in London, works through local organizations in over 30 countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Caribbean and has a lobbying office in Washington. There are ActionAid organizations in France, Greece, Ireland, Italy, and Spain.

Mr. Douglas W. Heydon, Secretary and Finance Director

Provides humanitarian aid to Cambodia's 10.5 million people. CT has rehabilitated more than 17,000 mine victim amputees and disabled children and adults suffering from polio, cerebral palsy, and other crippling diseases, since the first of its three clinics opened in 1992. The organization is the initiator and driving force behind the Cambodian School of Prosthetics and Orthotics, which trains Cambodians to be prosthetists and orthotists (professionals who fit artificial limbs and braces). Graduates form the core of qualified staff who provide patients not just physical rehabilitation, but support to overcome prejudice and inequality, which often exclude them from mainstream society.

Ms. Sarah Hodge, Chief Executive

Establishes and builds services for the mobility disabled. POWER works in only low-income countries with people on the margins of subsistence. POWER develops the physical infrastructure of services and helps local people to build technical and managerial skills to run and manage these services when POWER leaves the country. POWER empowers disabled people in Laos by fitting them with mobility aids, such as artificial limbs and wheelchairs, so they can become physically and economically independent. POWER strengthens the capacity of self-help groups and represents the disabled in advocacy, awareness raising, and managing services cost-effectively. POWER's programs of capacity building are currently operational in Mozambique and Zambia and under development in Laos.
