USAID
FROM THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

2006 Annual Awards Ceremony

A Celebration of Excellence in Development

Message from the Administrator

It gives me great pride to recognize the enormous contributions and sacrifices made by the men and women of USAID at this time of great challenge in our world.

This past year, USAID entered a period of unprecedented change. At the same time, we embarked upon a comprehensive reform process to ensure that USAID remains the United States' premier development agency.

Since President Harry Truman's famous "Point Four" inaugural address in 1949, the United States has been committed to sharing its wealth and expertise with those countries struggling to advance on the scale of human progress.

USAID has been at the center of that effort, making enormous contributions to the advancement of good governance, social and economic prosperity, and a more peaceful world. This Agency – represented in today's award recipients – has unleashed reservoirs of untapped human potential around the globe and made enormous strides in alleviating suffering and chronic instability.

The success of our Agency is directly attributable to you – the committed and dedicated employees who work so hard, and often risk so much, in the service of our country.

I am proud to lead the Agency as we work toward the goal of transformational diplomacy. My deepest gratitude and profound congratulations go out to all of our Award Recipients.

Ambassador Randall L. Tobias

Administrator, U.S. Agency for International Development
