OVERVIEW

PVOS PIVOTAL IN GLOBAL RESPONSE

INTRODUCTION

From tackling global health challenges to providing humanitarian assistance, the U.S. Agency for International Development's private voluntary organization (PVO) partners are at the forefront of international development work. PVOs play an integral role in bringing expertise and resources to the table and making successful global aid and development outcomes a reality.

Over the past year, PVOs and USAID have addressed a number of complex and ongoing humanitarian crises—including earthquakes in Nepal, conflict in Syria, and the Ebola outbreak in West Africa—while also pushing forward the development agenda by working to end extreme poverty, implementing Power Africa, and supporting the Grand Challenges for Development. As essential USAID partners, PVOs contribute their expertise in global health, humanitarian assistance, agriculture, and many more focus areas (see infographic on pages 6 and 7), and the PVO community's work with local civil society and private-sector partners ensures that assistance is inclusive, sustainable, and effective.

At a roundtable event in 2013 President Obama said, "The strength and success of all countries and all regions depends in part on protecting and supporting civil society." At this event, the United States and 23 nations in a Joint Statement on the Promotion and Protection of Civil Society affirmed that "the strength and vibrancy of nations depend on an active civil society and robust engagement between governments and civil society to advance shared goals of peace, prosperity, and the well-being of all people." These declarations remind us of the relevance of civil society and that working in partnership with other governments, the philanthropic community, and multilateral initiatives is key to successful development work.

In recent years, USAID has undertaken a number of reforms seeking to facilitate partnerships. One such initiative, Local Solutions, aims to bolster the Agency's work by embracing new collaborations, investing in innovation, supporting local systems, and demanding a persistent focus on results. With sustainability as a primary objective, the Agency continues to provide development resources to strengthen local systems, working with many types of organizations—governmental and nongovernmental—to build the capacity of local actors such as governments, civil society, and the private sector. The system relies on all the players to produce desired outcomes.

The relationship between the Agency and PVOs continues to evolve as initiatives to broaden participation reshape the international development environment. Top-down processes are giving way to more collaborative and locally based approaches where various actors from the private sector—corporations; foundations; nongovernmental organizations (NGOs), including PVOs; universities; local businesses; civil society organizations; and diaspora groups—provide and draw on resources from a variety of sources and work in concert.

A current example of this collaborative paradigm is the Ebola response. In the midst of the crisis, USAID worked with the United Nations and nongovernmental partners to bring in additional health care workers, and partnered with other U.S. Government organizations to provide them with critical training to safely care for patients. As the immediate health emergency subsided, USAID began reaching out to its partners for solutions to address the challenges facing Ebola-affected countries as they begin rebuilding their communities and institutions. According to former USAID Administrator Rajiv Shah, the innovations that emerge from these efforts will help West Africa's most vulnerable communities not only beat Ebola but also break the cycle of extreme poverty.

PVOs are essential partners in USAID's efforts to engage a variety of players to facilitate sustainable, locally driven solutions.

The 637 PVOs registered with USAID as of August 1, 2015, allow the Agency to respond to vast global needs through long-standing local partnerships. USAID's commitment to and reliance on its PVO partners is apparent in its responses to the Ebola crisis and the recent earthquakes in Nepal. As of September 25, 2015, PVOs had received 38 percent of the funding the Agency provided to fight the Ebola outbreak and, through September 2, 2015, PVOs had received 33 percent of the funding USAID provided for the humanitarian response to the devastating earthquakes in Nepal (see infographic).

As shown by the FY 2013 data compiled in this report, registered PVOs received $2.8 billion in USAID support. The majority of PVO funding, however, derived from other sources, as registered groups raised $24.1 billion in private support. PVOs received over eight times as much funding from private sources as they did from USAID. These independently generated resources provided PVOs with the capacity to not only leverage Agency funding and address a broader set of development needs but also implement and support international programs in 184 countries and territories—nearly every nation and region in the world.

Going forward, the Agency continues to rely on PVOs and draw on their deep expertise and wide-ranging experience to reach development goals. Throughout USAID's history, PVOs have continually emerged as innovators and collaborators and have always risen to the challenges presented by complex emergencies and development needs. USAID is proud of its current cadre of PVO partners, the world's first responders and frontline change makers.

2015 VOLAG REPORT

The Report of Voluntary Agencies Engaged in Overseas Relief and Development (VolAg Report) provides a snapshot of the work of the U.S. and international PVOs that are registered with USAID. PVOs register with USAID to establish and maintain eligibility to compete for grants and cooperative agreements.

The 2015 VolAg Report includes a brief description and a summary of financial activities for the 518 U.S. PVOs, 113 international PVOs, and 6 U.S. Cooperative Development Organizations (CDOs) registered with USAID as of August 1, 2015.

Select data collected during the registration process, including the information contained in this report and additional data on PVO expertise and geographic presence, is available through the online PVO Registry at pvo.usaid.gov/usaid/.

The VolAg Report is the culmination of the annual effort by the Bureau for Economic Growth, Education and Environment's Office of Local Sustainability staff to collect, validate, and disseminate a clear, factual report that helps inform the Congress, Agency staff, partner organizations, and the general public about the activities of the PVO community. We hope you find it a useful resource.

PVOs Pivotal in Global Response

With their extensive experience and capabilities in the development arena, PVOs are essential partners in USAID's efforts to engage a variety of players to facilitate sustainable, locally driven solutions.

WEST AFRICA EBOLA RESPONSE

PVOs received 38% of the $934 million USAID provided for the West Africa Ebola response, as of September 25, 2015. <sup>1</sup>

NEPAL EARTHQUAKE RESPONSE

PVOs received 33% of the $43 million USAID provided for the Nepal Earthquake response, as of September 2, 2015. <sup>2</sup>

BROAD EXPERTISE

Health was the major focus area for the PVO community in 2013, followed by humanitarian assistance and agriculture.

ABOUT PVO REGISTRATION

The PVO registration process and engagement activities connect USAID to new and capable nonprofit partners.

A subset of the wider NGO community, PVOs have for more than 50 years played an essential role addressing global humanitarian and development needs in partnership with USAID. PVOs are tax-exempt nonprofits that leverage their expertise and private funding to address critical challenges abroad.

What is PVO Registration?

The PVO registration process enables USAID to identify capable nonprofit partners and ensures that registrants meet the Agency's basic partnership and funding requirements. Organizations apply and are screened based on their financial condition, governance practices, and legal standing. When an organization meets USAID's Conditions of Registration, it is added to the PVO Registry, an online database accessible at pvo.usaid.gov/usaid/.

Why Register?

Registered PVOs are eligible to compete for prime grants and other types of funding, and gain greater visibility with USAID staff and Missions. Registered PVOs also receive access to relevant Agency news and information about funding opportunities through Partnerships@AID, a digital newsletter. In addition, registered PVOs are invited to participate in interactive online events, including webcasts and town halls on current issues in development.

How to Apply

Before applying, a nonprofit organization should evaluate whether it meets USAID's Conditions of Registration for U.S.-based PVOs or International PVOs. Applicants begin the registration process by gathering required documents (e.g., audited financial statements) and obtaining a D-U-N-S number. The next step is to fill out the online application form. Once the application is submitted and complete, USAID determines whether the applicant meets the eight registration conditions. To learn more about the process and apply, visit www.usaid.gov/pvo/.

DOING BUSINESS WITH USAID

To implement its worldwide humanitarian and development activities, USAID uses a number of acquisition and assistance instruments, including contracts, grants, cooperative agreements, and purchase orders. USAID negotiates and initiates these instruments to obtain the commodities and technical assistance the Agency requires to achieve its objectives. Organizations seeking to work with USAID will find useful policy and business information at the following websites:

Training on How to Work with USAID – answers some of the most frequently raised questions and concerns from organizations interested in partnering with USAID.

Get an Award – provides descriptions of grant and contract processes, information on grant programs, and links to other acquisition and assistance resources, including forecasts of upcoming procurement opportunities with offices in Washington and overseas.

Non-Governmental Organization Partnerships – provides an overview of the types of NGOs that USAID works with and examples of activities supported to mobilize the expertise, capacity, and knowledge of NGOs.

Automated Directives System \(ADS\) – details USAID's policies and procedures. (See Chapter 303 – Grants and Cooperative Agreements.)

Assists refugees, the economically challenged, and the underserved to become self-sufficient, productive members of their communities. AAA works to promote human rights protection, humanitarian assistance access, health services, and environmental conservation. AAA's Uganda field offices provide humanitarian assistance to communities affected by years of fighting between government and rebel military groups. Children are often the victims of abduction and forced service in rebel military groups. AAA provides play therapy for these children as a way of helping them deal with the traumatic experiences they have endured. Other programs include HIV/AIDS prevention, adult literacy, and programs designed to develop sustainable local economic activity.

Seeks to educate and empower the next generation of change agents. Asante Africa Foundation provides youths in rural areas of East Africa with access to quality education and the tools to apply their knowledge beyond the classroom and create opportunities to transform Africa and the world. Asante Africa Foundation understands that enriched minds collectively create better solutions to whatever challenges their communities face. Children who stay in school will earn higher wages and have smaller, healthier families. They gain the skills and confidence to start businesses, find their voice, and work with their communities to create peaceful paths to positive change.

Works to improve the lives of the marginalized residents of northern Kenya through economic empowerment, education, and advocacy and by training a new generation of entrepreneurial, ethical leaders. The BOMA Project's Rural Entrepreneur Access Project (REAP) is an innovative 2-year poverty-graduation program that helps ultra-poor women in rural villages start small businesses so they can earn a sustainable income, feed their families, pay for children's school and medical care, survive drought, and accumulate savings for long-term stability. By giving women the tools they need to graduate from extreme poverty, REAP promotes resilience and climate-change adaptation across arid lands. In addition, BOMA has launched a governance project in Marsabit County to build institutional and human capacity at both community and local government levels.

Improves public health, educational, and social services, particularly those that target underserved populations in the United States and in developing countries. CHS works with donor agencies, governments, and nongovernmental organizations to strengthen the delivery and management of health and population services in Africa, Asia, Eastern Europe, Latin America, and the Middle East. CHS has worked with USAID on quality assurance and operations research programs in the areas of global health and child survival since 1981. Through its quality assurance work in the areas of child survival, nutrition, and HIV/AIDS, the organization has developed a number of approaches to move countries along the foreign assistance and development spectrum. Through field-based projects and technical assistance, CHS strives to help developing countries bring improved services to people in need.

Ignites lasting change in impoverished rural communities that lack access to simple human necessities such as clean water, education, health care, and opportunities to earn an income. In conjunction with volunteers, CHOICE Humanitarian works in hundreds of rural villages across Bolivia, Guatemala, Kenya, Mexico, and Nepal to provide residents with opportunities to improve their lives. Village projects are remarkably effective tools for building leadership skills, but it is the organization's investment in people that makes CHOICE Humanitarian so successful in alleviating poverty. CHOICE Humanitarian facilitates volunteer expeditions to the communities it supports.

Gives deprived, excluded, and vulnerable children the capacity to improve their lives and the opportunity to become young adults, parents, and leaders who facilitate positive and lasting change in their communities. ChildFund International supports societies that value, protect, and advance the worth and rights of children. While the organization focuses much of its attention on children from birth to 5 years of age so they receive a solid foundation, it also follows these children through their primary and secondary school years and into young adulthood to ensure that they gain the confidence, education, and skills they need to be self-supporting. ChildFund was founded in 1938 and works in 30 countries, including the United States, assisting 18.1 million children and family members.

Provides economic opportunities to entrepreneurs in developing countries, where far too many people live in poverty and enterprises often fail simply because they lack the tools needed to succeed. CNFA was founded on the principle that empowering people economically gives them the tools and confidence they need to change their lives. CNFA's mission is to stimulate economic growth and improve rural livelihoods in the developing world by empowering the private sector. The organization specializes in the following areas: productivity, food security, and nutrition; input supply and farm services; economic resilience and rapid recovery; value chain development; volunteer technical assistance; and access to finance. CNFA mobilizes American farmers and other business and technical agriculture experts to provide advice and training to their counterparts abroad. CNFA currently operates volunteer programs in Angola, Malawi, and Mozambique.

Empowers societies to responsibly and sustainably care for nature for the well-being of humanity. CI's scientists, field staff, and policy experts are measuring the contribution of healthy ecosystems to human well-being; assessing the implications of development decisions; putting cutting-edge, rigorously tested information in the hands of decision makers and the public; and demonstrating through field models how economic opportunity and the stewardship of natural resources can leverage change at the international scale. CI focuses both marine and land-based efforts on the following: working to secure a stable global climate; understanding and protecting the sources and flows of fresh water; ensuring nature's ability to provide food for human needs; minimizing environmental pressures on human health; valuing the role of nature in human cultures; and safeguarding the ability of species and biodiversity to sustain healthy ecosystems and the benefits nature provides.

Provides quality educational programs for the dissemination of knowledge among facial plastic surgeons through courses, workshops, and other scientific presentations, as well as a fellowship training program. AAFPRS (American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery) surgeons give freely of their time and expertise, both at home and abroad, through the organization's humanitarian program, FACE TO FACE. Internationally, the AAFPRS foundation primarily assists children suffering from deformities caused by birth, trauma, or war-related injuries. The foundation is committed to educational and scientific exchange among its participating surgeons and with surgeons in emerging countries. In the United States, the AAFPRS foundation assists survivors of domestic violence by offering pro bono consultations and surgeries through its National Domestic Violence project as well as to U.S. veterans through its FACES OF HONOR program.

Partners with rural Nicaraguan communities to improve their living standards through sustainable development in clean water, sanitation, reforestation, and health education. One-third of Nicaragua's rural communities lack access to clean drinking water. Globally, 1.8 million children die annually because of illnesses linked to consumption of polluted water. Women and girls shoulder the burden of collecting water for household needs, spending hours daily carrying 40-pound buckets of water for miles. Access to clean drinking water dramatically improves family living standards, reducing disease and child mortality, freeing girls' and women's time, and improving school attendance and performance.

Fights against pediatric AIDS. EGPAF's innovative research programs, collaborative training initiatives, advocacy efforts, and rapidly expanding international prevention and treatment programs are bringing dramatic changes to the lives of children worldwide. EGPAF has expanded its reach and is working across the world to reduce the rate of new infant infections and provide access to care and treatment for children and families. With its International Family AIDS Initiatives, EGPAF brings counseling, testing, and low-cost drug interventions to women who need it, advancing one of the greatest success stories in the battle against HIV: prevention of mother-to-child transmission. EGPAF has also moved to help fill the gap in access to care and treatment, including antiretroviral treatment.

Alleviates hunger in some of the world's poorest communities by providing resources to empower people to feed themselves. FRB does not ship grain or food overseas; instead, the organization offers people dignity by giving them a hand up instead of a handout, thus breaking the cycle of dependency. As a Christian, nongovernmental, humanitarian organization, FRB is committed to providing sustainable food security in the developing world through small-scale agricultural interventions. Programs focus on education and the introduction of no-till alternatives, conservation, improved seeds and livestock, market access, water reclamation, food storage, and other techniques that allow people to feed their families, send their children to school, and improve the quality of life at home and in their communities. The organization's strategic goal is to engage the grassroots U.S. agricultural community in efforts to solve the problem of hunger worldwide.

Fosters projects that strengthen the forces of democracy, civil society, the rule of law, and market-based economies in the Czech Republic, Slovakia, and beyond. FCS's success stems from its ability to act as a catalyst, initiating and developing projects and locating the resources to fund them. FCS also serves as a facilitator, using its broad international network to identify and connect worthy projects with appropriate funding sources and with qualified institutions and individuals. Working with other nongovernmental organizations, FCS often partners on projects that otherwise might not be realized.

Works with children and young people to build sustainable peace through personal relationships. GPBF contributes to the effort to build global peace by supporting organizations and projects that restore, rebuild, and transform relationships that have been broken by prejudice, stereotyping, hatreds, and fears that may have accumulated over generations. GPBF operates under the Contact Theory, a central tenet of peace building based on the belief that negative attitudes and prejudice can be reduced by promoting contact and familiarity between groups in conflict. GPBF brings the Contact Theory into practice through three practical approaches: dialogue, sports, and the arts.

Works to stop child labor in the carpet industry and to replicate its market-driven approach in other sectors. In producer countries, local offices monitor carpet production, certify carpets as child-labor-free, and rehabilitate and educate former child workers. In consumer countries, GoodWeave raises awareness of and demand for the GoodWeave label. Operations are supported by industry licensee payments and contributions from private foundations and individuals. GoodWeave licenses carpet-importing companies who pay 1.75 percent of the value of shipments on a quarterly basis. The majority of the revenue is remitted to Asian weaving communities to support social welfare and educational programs.

Uses a participatory approach to establish development projects in Morocco. HAF is a Moroccan association and a U.S. 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization founded by former Peace Corps volunteers. The organization is dedicated to participatory grassroots human development in disadvantaged—primarily rural—areas of Morocco. HAF projects are designed and managed by local communities in partnership with government and nongovernmental agencies. HAF promotes participatory approaches to local development, helping establish priority projects by facilitating efforts and training facilitators in participatory methods. Projects address fruit tree agriculture, including nurseries, irrigation systems, organic certification, and produce export; clean drinking water; women and youth initiatives; participatory and experiential technical training; and cultural preservation. HAF has touched more than 45,000 individuals through its work since 2003.

Improves the lives of the rural poor in developing nations through agricultural and economic development. iDE's guiding principle is that the rural poor are natural entrepreneurs who, if given the opportunity, will invest their limited resources to ensure their families' food supply and generate income. iDE empowers rural farmers to pull themselves out of poverty by making available quality inputs, training, affordable technologies, capital, and access to markets. Simple, low-cost water technologies increase income generation by allowing farmers to cultivate high-value, labor-intensive crops. These technologies have enabled families to become more efficient agricultural producers, generally doubling their net annual income in the first year. iDE's efforts have helped some 17 million people escape poverty.

Pilots an innovative community development model that is integrated, self-sustaining, and self-scaling. Nuru International's solution is to create an enabling environment to empower and equip local leaders to build high-impact solutions around remote rural areas of need. Programs address agriculture, community economic development, education, and health care. The organization's "sustainability engine" employs a leadership development program that restores local agencies and equips leaders to build and scale solutions and social enterprises to generate profits to fund operations and growth. After 7 years, Nuru exits, leaving a local Nuru-established nongovernmental organization that uses the self-sustaining model to scale and increase impact.

Provides a preferential health care option for the poor. By establishing long-term relationships with sister organizations based in settings of poverty, PIH strives to achieve two overarching goals: bring the benefits of modern medical science to those most in need of them and serve as an antidote to despair. PIH draws on the resources of the world's leading medical and academic institutions and on the lived experience of the world's poorest and sickest communities. PIH's mission is both medical and moral; it is based on solidarity rather than charity alone. When the organization's patients are ill and have no access to care, PIH's team of health professionals, scholars, and activists will do whatever it takes to make them well.

Conducts socio-behavioral research and associated education and training on health-related issues to improve the health and well-being of various populations. RFH develops research proposals on request; guides research procedures, including data collection; and analyzes data and prepares reports and manuscripts. The organization guides the development of program evaluation projects with measurable outcomes and supports young researchers in developing countries with small-scale research projects. RFH collaborates primarily with small independent hospitals and other health-related institutions, with a particular, but not exclusive, focus on women's health issues in developing countries in Africa. All RFH's research studies undergo ethics review prior to implementation.

Works to end child slavery in Haiti in our lifetimes. "Restavek" is a form of modern-day slavery that affects one in every 15 Haitian children. Restavek children are often given to relatives or strangers to perform menial tasks for no pay. RFF's comprehensive strategy to end this practice includes meeting the long-term needs of restavek children through effective child advocacy, establishing transitional homes for children who suffer the worst forms of abuse, working with churches and pastors (i.e., culturally significant leaders) to change societal attitudes toward restavek, establishing community centers to enhance economic empowerment for children and adults, connecting government agencies with the people through partnerships with churches, and using effective mass media campaigns to provide information on justice issues and family planning. RFF seeks to undermine the social acceptance of, and economic need for, restavek.

Builds mutually beneficial partnerships between the United States and South Africa in the areas of health and education. Serving as a catalyst for innovative approaches, SA Partners links people, strengthens communities, promotes social justice, and fosters leadership in both countries. The organization believes universal access to quality health care and education are prerequisites for securing a just democracy, and that shared experiences in South Africa and in the United States offer common ground from which to forge lasting and productive programs that bring us closer to this ideal. Throughout its work, SA Partners strives to facilitate meaningful partnerships that build the capacity of South African organizations, nurture strategic collaborations and the sharing of best practices between the United States and South Africa, and strengthen relationships among people in both countries to promote justice and democracy.

Equips leaders to mobilize communities to care for their own children with their own resources. VCI promotes community involvement and ownership, recognizing that communities that run programs are more likely to own and sustain them over time. VCI also promotes indigenous leadership and reliance on community resources. These core principles create program standards that are not likely to create dependence on Western aid. The organization serves individuals from a number of faith traditions and seeks to enlist members and leaders of various faiths as volunteers. VCI chapters initiate development programming with the outcomes they want for their orphans and vulnerable children clearly defined. The organization evaluates program success by assessing the quality of outcomes achieved rather than the quantity of services provided.

WEB: www.visionspring.org

Delivers high-quality, culturally appropriate vision care for those earning under $8 a day, the base-of-the-pyramid consumer. VisionSpring has incorporated successful elements of its vision-entrepreneur model into a hub-and-spoke approach, in which the organization's optical shops operate as hubs and vision entrepreneurs act as spokes extending into surrounding communities. Tested and proven in El Salvador, this approach was adapted in 2012 for replication in India. The income generated through the sale of products with higher margins at our optical shops enables VisionSpring to conduct the resource intensive work of reaching low-income communities in remote areas with limited access to eye care. In addition, VisionSpring has partnered with BRAC in Bangladesh to support the Reading Glasses for Improved Livelihoods program in underserved communities.

Works to prepare communities worldwide to address critical issues such as poverty, HIV/AIDS, the marginalization of women and children, the global education crisis, and the need to strengthen civil society and government accountability. World Learning's efforts bridge the gap between the desire for human development and the ability to achieve that goal. Programs enhance the capacity of individuals, communities, and institutions to take ownership of their own development, create just and effective policies and structures, and effect sustainable, positive change. The organization works to advance leadership in more than 60 countries and envisions a just world driven by engaged citizens and thriving communities. For 80 years, World Learning has worked to empower people and strengthen institutions.

Fights against hunger and defends the fundamental rights of populations in difficulty. Born in the context of the Afghan crisis and emergency response for Afghan refugees who fled to Pakistan in 1979, ACF, a humanitarian, voluntary, and professional nongovernmental organization, was created by a group of French intellectuals. ACF's mission is to intervene in the field to save lives and preserve and restore food security for populations. Working in conjunction with the people it serves, ACF provides the material and human resources necessary to address needs, relieve human suffering, and safeguard human dignity. ACF contributes to the protection of populations by taking action and testifying.

Supports vulnerable populations affected by wars, natural disasters, and economic and social crises and assists them in building a better future, thus contributing to the Millennium Development Goals. ACTED's interventions rely on the highest standards of relevance, compliance, and accountability. The organization promotes a multidisciplinary approach that is both global and local and adapted to each context, thus establishing a link between emergency, rehabilitation, and development. ACTED implements over 300 programs per year in more than 30 countries in Africa, Asia, the Caribbean, and the Middle East, covering emergency relief and assistance, WASH (water, sanitation, and hygiene), agriculture and livelihoods, rehabilitation of infrastructure, education and training, economic development and microfinance, promotion of gender equality, local governance, environmental sustainability, and culture and heritage.

Provides professional assistance to rural farmers threatened by exclusion in southern countries. AVSF works to ensure that rural farming is economically viable, ecologically sustainable, and socially fair, as agriculture not only provides sustenance and livelihoods but also contributes to local democracy and to the vitality of rural areas. AVSF works through more than 80 programs in 18 countries, helping small farmers' associations protect production systems, improve productivity, manage resources, consolidate trade organizations, and bring products to local and international markets. Initiatives contribute to economic growth by providing employment in rural areas, increase health and food security, and facilitate sustainable management of natural resources. AVSF also advocates for greater justice in the international sphere and includes agriculturalists in its efforts to change policies and practices that breed poverty and injustice.

Builds healthy and sustainable communities in Africa. For more than 29 years, CPAR has been targeting some of the most vulnerable rural areas of Ethiopia, Malawi, Tanzania, and northern Uganda with important interventions related to food security, water and sanitation, and access to primary health services. CPAR's work is guided by the underlying belief that everything is connected: specifically, that health is determined not only by the existence of health care services but also by social, economic, and environmental factors. Therefore, CPAR's work not only involves direct health interventions—ensuring a continuum of care between clinic and community—but also addresses the determinants of health, which include access to clean water, adequate food, and a safe and healthy environment. All CPAR projects are designed to be sustainable, ensuring that benefits continue to accrue long after CPAR's direct involvement.

Works for global solidarity. Established in 1985 as a secular, independent association, CESVI is guided by the principle of human solidarity and the ideal of social justice. These values underpin the organization's humanitarian and development work and affirm its commitment to universal human rights. CESVI's name is derived from the Italian "cooperazione e sviluppo" (cooperation and development), words that convey the organization's philosophy and reflect the leading role played by project beneficiaries. Main activities include the emergency supply of medical equipment and materials and the distribution of food and nonfood items. The organization rehabilitates public infrastructure—schools, hospitals, water wells, water distribution systems—and houses. CESVI's development activities include HIV/AIDS prevention, agricultural promotion, support for business, malaria and dengue fever prevention, hospital improvements, and food security.

Fights against hunger and poverty by providing integrated aid—from rapid disaster relief to long-term development projects. Welthungerhilfe is one of the largest nongovernmental aid agencies in Germany; it was founded in 1962 as the German section of the Freedom from Hunger Campaign of the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization. Help to self-help is Welthungerhilfe's basic principle; it allows the organization to strengthen structures from the bottom up, working together with local partner organizations, and ensures the long-term success of projects. The organization also fights to change the conditions that lead to hunger and poverty by keeping the public informed and taking an advisory role in national and international policy development. Welthungerhilfe envisions a world in which all people can exercise their right to lead a self-determined life in dignity and justice, free from hunger and poverty.

Contributes to peace building by professionally reporting news that is useful and factual to populations that are victims of violence or natural disaster and are otherwise cut off from independent media reports. Fondation Hirondelle Media for Peace and Human Dignity believes that independently reported, impartial information can help cultivate the conditions necessary for conflict-ravaged countries to return to peace and democracy. The organization grew out of a 1994 initiative by a group of Swiss journalists who launched Radio Agatashya in the aftermath of the Rwandan genocide. Fondation Hirondelle operates or has operated similar radio projects, in collaboration with the United Nations and on its own, in the Central African Republic, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Guinea, Kosovo, Liberia, Mali, Nepal, Sierra Leone, South Sudan, Sudan, Tanzania, Timor-Leste, and Tunisia.

Supports projects that provide fortified foods to large populations—through market channels where feasible and through public-sector delivery systems when markets fail. GAIN is a Swiss foundation that mobilizes public-private partnerships and provides financial and technical support to deliver nutritious foods to people most at risk of malnutrition. The organization was created in 2002 at a Special Session of the U.N. General Assembly on Children. GAIN is delivering improved nutrition to an estimated 273 million people, half of whom are women and children, in more than 25 countries. GAIN's Business Alliance unites food producers and is a global focal point for private-sector strategies against undernutrition in Africa, Asia, and Latin America and the Caribbean. More nutritious food improves individual productivity and helps reduce poverty.

Assists divided and conflicted societies to build lasting peace. Interpeace, an international peace-building organization based in Switzerland, was created as a U.N. pilot project, the War-torn Societies Project, in 1994. Interpeace became an independent nongovernmental organization (NGO) in 2000 and remains a close partner of the United Nations. The organization can implement Interpeace-style programming through the United Nations via the Joint Programme Unit for UN/Interpeace Initiatives or as an NGO. The organization's success is based on its belief in local ownership and local capacities. Interpeace works with carefully formed local teams that engage all sectors of a society to identify major challenges, develop consensus-driven solutions, and strengthen the capacity to manage conflict in nonviolent ways. Currently, Interpeace has programs in Africa, Central America, the Middle East, and Southeast Asia.

Ensures that reliable news and information are available to people across the globe. Free Press Unlimited works in more than 40 countries, particularly in countries where there is little to no press freedom. Free Press Unlimited focuses on strengthening the capacity of local media professionals and media organizations, and supports the establishment of an independent "media in exile" when and where it is not possible to develop independent media outlets within a country. Together with local people and local partners, Free Press Unlimited seeks to promote freedom of speech as a human right and as a precondition for democracy and creates room for people to speak freely, debate social issues, and find out what is going on in their immediate environment.

Empowers people with disabilities, regardless of race or religion, in Africa and Asia. Light for the World pursues this goal in the most sustainable way—through projects for prevention and treatment of blindness, inclusive education, vocational training, and income generation. The organization works from the perspective that people with disabilities, who in many countries have fewer options with respect to basic social services and who often belong to the most vulnerable groups, have the right to be included in society. Local partners—from eye care providers to community organizations—manage the organization's daily program activities. Light for the World is a knowledge broker between policymakers and people with disabilities, a facilitator and integrator of institution-strengthening efforts, and a funder of projects that generate sustainable impact.

Provides children and young people with psychosocial support, education, and protection to help them overcome the devastating effects of war. In War Child Holland's psychosocial support projects, children and young people build on their resilience and strength. With the right support, most children will be able to cope with the adversities they experience. For children, war often means no school, either because it is too dangerous to attend or because there are simply no schools operating. War Child enables children and young people to claim their right to quality education. War Child also works to make sure that children and young people are better protected. The organization empowers them to express their views, encourages adults to take them seriously, and advocates for the development and implementation of legislation and policies.

Facilitates large-scale community-based animal health programs as well as livestock development interventions in Africa. VSF-Suisse was founded as a humanitarian, charitable, politically and religiously neutral organization to provide veterinary aid to areas where it is most needed. VSF-Suisse works primarily for and with people who depend on animals for their livelihood. The organization trains farmers, supports veterinary institutions, and works to establish associations that promote respect for animals and efficient management of natural resources. VSF-Suisse is also active in regions that have experienced natural disasters as well as areas of armed conflict. VSF-Suisse's experience in these circumstances has provided it with specific knowledge and expertise that is essential for successful short-term relief interventions.

REGISTRY

CDOs as part of the larger PVO community will be listed in the U.S. PVO Registry. In order to be listed in the Registry as a CDO, the CDO must comply with the annual documentation requirements in the Code of Federal Regulations, Title 22, Part 203. The following CDOs are included in the U.S. PVO Registry.

Descriptions of voluntary foreign aid activities provided by USAID-registered organizations.

ACDI/VOCA

Mr. William Polidoro, President and CEO

50 F Street NW, Suite 1000
Washington, DC 20001
TEL: (202) 469-6000
FAX: (202) 469-6257
EMAIL: mrenaud@acdivoca.org
WEB: www.acdivoca.org

Fosters broad-based economic growth, raises living standards, and creates vibrant communities. ACDI/VOCA's technical and management assistance enables enterprises, financial institutions, cooperatives, and other organizations to manage and finance themselves and succeed in the global economy. Practice areas include food security, agribusiness, enterprise development, financial services, and community development. Long known for its agricultural development programming, ACDI/VOCA is today a leading implementer of USAID Feed the Future projects. In addition, the organization is known for its value chain and inclusive market system approaches to enterprise development and poverty reduction as well as for its ability to integrate financial services in economic growth programs, incorporate development approaches and nutrition improvements into food security projects, and increase community participation. ACDI/VOCA is implementing approximately 50 projects in 32 countries on behalf of public, private, and multilateral funders.

CHF INTERNATIONAL d/bla Global Communities

EMAIL: ncba@ncba.coop
WEB: www.ncba.coop

Provides technical assistance and training to enhance the governance and assist in the development of cooperatives—i.e., member-owned businesses, small enterprises, and microenterprises—at the grassroots level in both urban and rural areas. NCBA CLUSA seeks to alleviate poverty through economic empowerment by pioneering practices such as conservation and nutrition-led agriculture. The association's training and development activities focus on democracy building, improving business skills, accessing financing and information, and a community-based cooperative approach to gain and protect market access, primarily for the rural poor. Recently, NCBA CLUSA has applied its approach to community-managed health and sustainable natural resource use as well as to strengthening local organizations and governments to support cooperative economic development.

NATIONAL RURAL ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION
NRECA

Ms. Jo Ann Emerson, CEO

4301 Wilson Boulevard
Arlington, VA 22203-1860

EMAIL: norma.hiller@nreca.coop
WEB: www.nreca.org

Designs and implements efficient and financially sustainable rural electrification systems worldwide and promotes the consumer-owned electric utility model to ensure electric service is responsive to local needs. NRECA draws on conventional and nonconventional technologies, develops low-cost design adaptations, and uses renewable energy resources where appropriate. Other services NRECA provides include developing national rural electrification plans and training local electric utility employees in electric utility management, accounting, engineering, operations, and maintenance. NRECA maintains offices in 6 countries and currently has projects in 15 countries. Domestic NRECA member cooperatives generate, transmit, and distribute electricity to more than 42 million consumers in the United States.

WORLD COUNCIL OF CREDIT UNIONS, INC.

Dr. Brian Branch, President and CEO

5710 Mineral Point Road
Madison, WI 53705

EMAIL: mail@woccu.org
WEB: www.woccu.org

Promotes the sustainable growth and expansion of quality credit unions for everyone worldwide. For over 40 years, World Council of Credit Unions has specialized in providing technical assistance and trade association services to members in more than 100 countries. World Council supports quality credit unions for everyone through its development projects, supporter programs, and international partnerships. World Council's proven Model Credit Union Building methodology provides steps to improve credit unions' efficiency and establish compliance with minimum financial standards that protect member savings. World Council works to create an appropriate regulatory environment for safe and sound credit union operation. As instruments of economic and social development, World Council and its member credit unions make a difference in the lives of more than 200 million people.
