FOREWORD

The Agricultural Finance Center of the Ohio State University published its first Bibliography of Agricultural Credit in July, 1965. The materials listed at that time had largely been acquired in connection with a global research contract with the United States Agency for International Development on agricultural credit in developing countries.

Since publication of the first bibliography, quantities of agricultural credit and related materials have been added. A major share of the additions--especially those relating to agricultural credit outside the United States--have resulted from continuation of research on the OSU:AID contract. Additions to the domestic catalog have come from several sources. Chief among these is the Arnold Agricultural Credit Library, established at the Agricultural Finance Center as a memorial to Carl R. Arnold, former Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, by the farm credit system and his friends.

This second edition of the bibliography, compiled by Larry J. Martin of the Agricultural Finance Center staff, reflects recognition of the relationships between agricultural credit and agricultural/economic development. It is not limited to a listing of agricultural credit materials alone, but also includes related publications on agriculture and general economic development.

Materials are grouped by geographic regions of the world. Countries within each region are listed alphabetically. For each country, materials are listed under the following headings: General Economic Information; Agriculture; Agricultural Credit.
