U.S.A.I.D. ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY ON ZAIRE

The goal of the series is to provide a summary of available quantitative research that has been conducted in Zaire on selected topics.

The target audience is A.I.D. consultants and local researchers. The series is intended to enable researchers to more quickly assess available data to improve their research design and information-gathering activities.

The series provides a reference guide to existing studies, reports, and data sets on topics relevant to the program goals of the USAID-Zaire Mission. Included are documents available from the Government of Zaire, international institutions and non-governmental institutions.

La série de Bibliographie de l'USAID sur le Zaïre est une série de bibliographies produites de temps à autre par la Division de Programmation et Politique Économique de l'Agence Américaine pour le Développement International, à Kinshasa, Zaïre, en collaboration avec certains chercheurs locaux et étrangers.

Le but de la série est de donner une synthèse des recherches quantitatives disponibles qui ont été menées sur des thèmes choisis au Zaïre.

Elle s'adresse aux consultants de l'AID et aux chercheurs locaux. La série a pour objet de permettre aux chercheurs d'évaluer plus rapidement les données disponibles en vue d'améliorer leurs activités de conception de la recherche et de collecte d'information.

This three ring notebook contains two bibliographies and 14 reports on cassava. A list of these materials is attached. Cit. Nkire (ARD) is a cassava expert. For a general look at cassava planting, processing and marketing, he suggests that the best of these articles is the 1982 report by James H. Cook. For a detailed examination of cassava processing, Cit. Nkire suggests two 1984 reports, his own and the one by Stephen K. O'Hair.

BANDUNDU/102/CASSAVA/AGRICULTURE.

A description, overview, ranking and critique of agricultural secondary education in the Bandundu region. Clear, well organized and straightforward. Although it covers the whole region, its conclusions are probably an accurate reflection of the situation in the 102 project area.

BANDUNDU/EDUCATION/AGRICULTURE/102.

A rapid rural appraisal carried out in eleven collectivities in the central Bandundu region of Zaire during August and September 1988. Forty-four villages were surveyed and household interviews were conducted with one hundred farm families. The primary objective of the study was to collect information on the regional system of agricultural production and the other major components of the rural economic system.

This report summarizes experimental methods for estimating crop areas. Landsat MSS and SPOT imagery were combined with a small sample of field measurements to produce regional production estimates for Shaba by sub-region. A test site near Kikwit is also included. The potential use of satellite imagery in combination with geographic databases is discussed. The document mostly reviews methods used and the steps in the experimental activity. A major conclusion is that satellite imagery is a cost effective means of tracking corn and cassava area in Shaba. A bibliography of other reports from the same research is included.

Study conducted in Kikwit during April - May 1986. 4264 women and 3574 children in the city of Kikwit were examined. The study concluded that the application of growth curves from the National Center for Health Statistics (USA) is not always accurate. Children that qualify as underfed according to NCeS criteria were often found to be healthy upon medical examination.

Study compares health statistics from nine different regions of Zaire to find correlation between health status and levels of development. Lubumbashi was found to be best off, then Kikwit, followed by rural areas. Development correlated positively with increased health status. National Center for Health Statistics criteria for nutritional status were not necessarily accurate.

"The purpose of this report is to provide a preliminary design for a monitoring and evaluation information system (MEIS) for projects 660-0102 'Area Food and Market Development' and project 660-0098 'Agricultural Marketing Development. Well organized but unrealistic. The author does not seem to grasp the extent to which data for the project area is unreliable.

Private Sector/Credit/Bandundu/Shaba/Questionnaire.

A complementary study to the "Private Sector Overview," which documents a fuller picture of the economic activities of small and medium traders in towns of Shaba and Bandundu. Sample is 80- small and medium businesses that employ between 5 and 100 employees. Study finds that the biggest constraints to small trader expansion were lack of transportation, working credit and capital. The study suggests that USAID continue transportation and storage infrastructure assistance and fuel distribution. It also suggests that USAID organize a management training program and continue to work with the GOZ to continue price liberalization measures.

Previous studies to provide documentation background for the conception of the Private Sector Strategy and Program design concentrated on private firms of between 5 - 100 employees but found that few of these firms were considered qualified borrowers by bankers. This third study broadens the definition of private sector companies and surveys a representative sample of 38 companies of 100 - 500 employees to assess the financial needs and the credit facilities available to those firms through the commercial banks.
