USER'S GUIDE TO DEMOCRACY, HUMAN RIGHTS AND GOVERNANCE PROGRAMMING
An Overview: The Center of Excellence on Democracy, Human Rights and Governance (DRG)

User's Guide to DRG Programming

On February 27, 2012, USAID Administrator Rajiv Shah formally launched the agency’s Center of Excellence on Democracy, Human Rights and Governance (hereafter “the DRG Center”). The launch occurred just over a year after Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and USAID Administrator Rajiv Shah released the first-ever U.S. Quadrennial Diplomacy and Development Review (QDDR). The QDDR explicitly tasked USAID with establishing the DRG Center as the primary means of elevating and integrating democracy, human rights and governance within the agency’s overall development portfolio.

USAID Missions and the Washington-based DRG Center have a noble and challenging mandate captured in USAID’s Vision Statement: To accelerate the advance of democracy, prosperity and human well-being in developing countries. The DRG Center has a further defined mission statement to “advance democracy, human rights and governance for the sake of political freedom, while contributing to socioeconomic progress and overall developmental resilience by integrating DRG across all sectors”. The DRG Center organizes its work to achieve the three following strategic objectives: 1) Learn: Increase knowledge concerning the global advancement of DRG; 2) Serve: Improve the quality and impact of DRG technical assistance to the field; and 3) Influence: Elevate the role of DRG in key USAID, USG and multilateral strategies, policies and budgets. With a strong emphasis on rigorous learning, the DRG Center will promote and support evidence-based DRG programming.

This User’s Guide to DRG Programming has been crafted to serve as a fundamental reference tool for USAID Missions and Bureaus to utilize in pursuit of advancing democracy, human rights and good governance. This Guide outlines the structure and breadth of the DRG Center’s technical expertise, as well as the DC-based DRG cadre. The Guide catalogs the funding and implementing mechanisms that may be accessed through the DRG Center and other offices, and technical resources which inform DRG work. With a strong emphasis on rigorous evaluation and learning, the DRG Center is committed to promoting evidence-based policy, strategy and programming in the DRG sector.

The Agency’s primary means of implementing DRG programs in “presence” countries remains in USAID Missions. In well-defined circumstances, these mechanisms may also be used in “non-presence” countries. Overall, the DRG Center’s support of missions is provided through an interlinked approach that involves technical leadership, targeted field support, cadre development and training, and direct program management. Various training as well as assessment and programming tools are developed by the DRG Center to assist missions in analyzing and choosing appropriate strategies to address the DRG issues in their host countries, as well as implement Agency-wide policies.

The eight teams that comprise the DRG Center are: 1) Civil Society and Media (CSM); 2) Cross-Sectoral Programs (CSP); 3) Elections & Political Transitions (EPT); 4) Global and Regional Policy (GRP); 5) Governance and Rule of Law (GRL); 6) Human Rights (HR); 7) Learning; and 8) Strategic Planning. There are also two permanent working groups within the DRG Center, the DRG Gender Working Group and the Training and Learning Team.

DRG CENTER TEAM AND WORKING GROUP DESCRIPTIONS

Civil Society and Media (CSM) Team

The CSM Team provides technical leadership and support on civil society (including youth, labor and media issues). The CSM Team generates comparative knowledge on effective approaches for strengthening civil society and independent media; pilots state-of-the-art approaches to civil society and media support; strengthens the agency’s DRG staff through training and technical support; conducts assessments, strategy and program designs, and evaluations; and designs and manages a targeted portfolio of global programs. The CSM Team promotes innovations in the civil society, labor and media arenas (including the use of social media and other new media technologies) as a means for addressing development challenges, and represents USAID in international processes, networks and working groups.

Cross-Sectoral Programs (CSP) Team

The purpose of the CSP Team is to integrate DRG approaches and principles with other sectors. This entails working with a wide range of stakeholders as well as developing new training and learning platforms. The CSP team has staff supporting USAID Forward’s Implementation and Procurement Reform (IPR) efforts, in particular Objective 1 (strengthening partner-country capacity by increasing use of reliable partner-government systems and institutions to ensure responsible and transparent use of public finances), Objective 2 (capacity development of local civil society and private sector to play a leadership role in development), and Objective 5 (building greater accountability in implementing mechanisms held by public international organizations [PIOs] towards enhanced aid effectiveness and sustainability).

Elections and Political Transitions (EPT) Team

The EPT Team provides leadership and technical assistance on political competition and consensus-building programs to USAID field Missions and Washington bureaus, other USG entities, and the broader DRG community. In doing so, the EPT Team conducts technical leadership on specific issues (including cutting-edge electoral issues) and delivers technical assistance to strengthen election administration, political parties, political finance, election monitoring and observation, voter education, and the political participation of women and marginalized groups. The EPT Team also manages the Elections and Political Processes Fund, which provides USAID Missions with funds for unanticipated electoral needs and innovative programs.

Global and Regional Policy (GRP) Team

The GRP Team supports the development and implementation of evidence-based DRG policies, strategies and budgets at the global, regional and country level. The GRP Team leads the Center’s efforts in supporting country-specific DRG assessments and strategies. The team also represents the DRG sector in the Governing Justly and Democratically (GJD) budget formulation and execution process, conducting analysis and advocacy to link global and country DRG funding with needs and opportunities as well as ensuring that budget levels are consistent with core policies and strategies. Finally, the team engages within USAID and in inter-agency arenas to forge an effective link between U.S. diplomacy, policy, and programs regarding the promotion of DRG. Given the cross-cutting nature of this work, the GRP Team will operate as an open team, actively soliciting input from Center staff (1) to facilitate Center-wide engagement on certain strategy, policy and budget matters, and (2) to facilitate the Center’s country backstopping.
Governance and Rule of Law (GOV/ROL) Team

The newly combined GROL Team supports activities to improve the accountability, transparency and responsiveness of governing institutions, systems and processes. It also promotes legal and regulatory frameworks that improve order and security, legitimacy, checks and balances, and equal application and enforcement of the law. To this end, the GROL team’s focus will not only be on work with governments but also on promoting citizen participation and engagement in governance and rule of law activities to build confidence and assure rights, privileges and obligations are equally accessible and fairly applied to all. The GROL Team will continue to cover the traditional governance and ROL subsectors. For governance, these include Legislative Strengthening, Decentralization and Local Governance, Anticorruption, Security Sector Reform, Policy Reform, and Public Administration. Areas of focus for ROL include legal frameworks, building human and institutional capacity within the justice sector, strengthening linkages between police, prosecutors and courts, creating constituencies for legal reform, and increasing access to justice, including through the use of customary justice systems.

Human Rights (HR) Team

The HR Team provides field support and technical leadership on human-rights issues to USAID senior staff, operating units, and other USG agencies. The team identifies and disseminates best practices in the protection and promotion of physical integrity (such as freedom from torture, arrest and slavery) and other civil and political rights, and in the equal protection under the law (including protection for minorities and marginalized or vulnerable groups such as the lesbian, gay, bi-sexual and trans-gender [LGBT] community). The HR Team supports USAID Missions and DRG officers through training and technical support, including strategy and program design, assessments, and evaluations, and the provision of program funding and technical assistance. The empowerment of women, countering trafficking in persons, and implementing the Presidential Study Directive on preventing mass atrocities and genocide—these are the team’s areas of special focus. The team also works to ensure that respect for human-rights principles is integrated throughout USG development work.

Learning (L) Team

The Learning Team oversees cutting-edge impact evaluations, conducts research and innovations in the DRG sector, maintains strong relations with the international academic community, manages the DRG Knowledge Nexus (an interrelated set of DRG communities of practice) across the agency’s DRG membership, and provides methodological support to the Center’s other teams. In the short term, the purpose of the Learning Team is to manage knowledge and provide guidance regarding the most effective methods and programs for maximizing DRG impact with limited resources. In the medium term, the Learning Team’s outcomes—which revolve around the creation, acquisition, dissemination and maintenance of knowledge—will enable USAID to reliably, efficiently and effectively improve democracy, human rights and governance in USAID recipient countries. In the long term, the Learning Team will enable the Center to influence agency and USG DRG policy through state-of-the-art knowledge of relevant social-science concepts and theories, rigorous analyses of empirical DRG program results, and advocacy in appropriate forums.

Strategic Planning (SP) Team

The Strategic Planning Team is a hybrid team that provides diverse support to all Center teams. The SP Team manages the Center’s strategic planning, budget formulation and execution, and program implementation to support the Center’s evidence-based technical leadership to Missions and the wider development community. The SP Team provides leadership to the Center in the areas of financial management, administration, and human resources; provides DRG training to development officers; and coordinates the Center’s communication strategy.
in line with the goals of the Center and the DCHA Bureau, including (with the collaboration of the Learning Team) a DRG “community of practice” for DRG officers. The SP Team will take the lead for the Center in coordinating with the PPL Bureau on issues related to the agency’s DRG Policy Task Team.

Gender Working Group (GWG)

The mission of the Gender Working Group (GWG) is to enable the DRG Center and DRG Officers in the field to promote and protect the human rights of women and girls, facilitate women’s equal and meaningful participation in civic and political life, and better identify and address gender differences and inequalities as they relate to USAID’s DRG work.

Training and Learning Team (TLT)

The goal of the Training Leadership Team (TLT) is to support the development and delivery of quality and relevant training to the Democracy, Human Rights and Governance (DRG) cadre, other USAID personnel and USG interagency partners and others deemed appropriate by the DRG Center. This includes developing training agendas, programs, identifying speakers and moderators, organizing content and delivering training and moderating programs. The TLT members are the link between teams, training participants, and other presenters, and must be fully engaged with their teams in the design and delivery of the training programs. The TLT will be chaired by the DRG Training Coordinator who will be responsible for providing the overarching training agenda and philosophical approach to training.

She manages agreements to support election commissions and electoral observation and to conduct the “Americas Barometer” surveys of democratic attitudes and behaviors in the region. Vanessa worked in the DG office of USAID/Kenya and began her government service as a Presidential Management Fellow at the Department of State. She has worked with NGOs in Mexico, Honduras, Puerto Rico and Washington, DC. Vanessa speaks Spanish fluently and has an M.A. in International Development and International Economics from Johns Hopkins SAIS, a Master of Public Administration from Syracuse University’s Maxwell School, and a B.A. in Political Science and Spanish from Ohio State University. Vanessa can be reached at vreilly@usaid.gov.
HOW TO ACCESS A DRG IMPLEMENTING MECHANISM

Sample statements of work are available from DRG staff. Please contact Valerie Hovetter at vhovetter@usaid.gov for more information.

Accessing an Indefinite Quantity Contract (IQC):

NOTE: There is no dollar value or time limit on delivery orders other than the IQC ceiling/period of performance.

1. To access an IQC, Missions prepare a statement of work (SOW) for a task order that briefly describes the purpose, background, objectives, desired tasks or activities, deliverables, evaluation or performance measures as appropriate, as well as a notional budget, time frame, and evaluation/selection criteria including weighting of each criteria. Missions should consider providing advance notice to IQC holders of their intention to request proposals.

2. The SOW must be shared with the DRG Contracting Officer’s Representative (COR). The COR must review the prospective task order requirements or statement of work and agree that it complies with the SOW for the basic contract before the task order Contracting Officer (CO) may begin the fair opportunity process.

3. For IQCs, thresholds of task order ceilings determine the process of fair opportunity to be followed. Missions should specify which threshold is being used in the Request for Task Order Proposal (RFTOP), and thus what page limits apply.
   a. Task Orders (TO) up to $100,000: All holders will be asked for proposals not to exceed a 2-page cost proposal and a 3-page technical proposal.
   b. Task Orders between $100,000 and $2M: All holders will be asked for proposals not to exceed 2-page cost proposal and 10-page technical proposal. Past performance information may also be required but this is not part of the 10-page technical proposal limit.
   c. Task Orders for more than $2M: Two-page cost proposal and 10-page technical proposal may be used, but the CO may request whatever level of information s/he deems appropriate.

4. All IQC holders must be given a fair opportunity to be considered for task orders over $2,500, unless the CO determines that one of the following exceptions to the fair opportunity requirements applies:
   a. An urgent need exists, and seeking competition would result in unacceptable delays;
   b. Only one contractor is capable at the level of quality required because the requirement is unique or highly specialized;
   c. The task order must be issued on a sole source basis in the interest of economy and efficiency because it is a logical follow-on to an order already issued under the contract, provided that all awardees were given a fair opportunity to be considered for the original order;
   d. To satisfy contract minimum award obligations; or
   e. Small business set aside.

5. After review of the SOW by the DRG COR, the Mission sends a formal request to its COR to negotiate a task order under an IQC.

Accessing an Associate Award under a Leader With Associates (LWA) Grant or Cooperative Agreement:

The “Associate” award is a separate cooperative agreement negotiated, funded and managed by the field mission. Proposed programs must fit within the scope of the activities under the central “Leader” award. The Mission sends a draft program description to the DRG program contact who serves as the Agreement Officer’s Representative (AOR) of the leader award. If the existing grant or cooperative agreement program scope accommodates the proposed activity, the AOR reviews the Mission program description, provides any comments or feedback and signs off on the award. The Mission then conducts the procurement action for the award.
Accessing a Grant or a Cooperative Agreement (CA):

NOTE: Proposed programs must fit within the scope of the activities funded by the central award. However, grantees and CAs may agree to extend their program in a given country or to initiate a program in a new country. Because grants and CAs are assistance instruments, USAID may not impose a particular activity, nor may it dictate which member of the CA shall implement a given program. Preferences, however, should be stated and will be forwarded to the CA by the AOR along with the draft program description.

1. The Mission sends a draft program description to the DRG program contact who serves as the AOR. A notional budget should be attached.
2. If the existing grant or cooperative agreement program scope accommodates the proposed activity, the AOR reviews the Mission program description with the grantee. With grantee agreement the AOR responds to the Mission, a funds transfer is arranged, and an incremental funding action is scheduled. If the Mission program description cannot be accommodated in the program description of the existing grant or cooperative agreement, the AOR assesses partner organization interest in the Mission program description and then, as necessary, requests negotiation of modification of the grant/cooperative agreement by the grants officer. This requires significantly more time.

PURPOSE:
The purpose of this contract is to provide missions and USAID/Washington operating units with analytical services and support to inform the design, evaluation, and implementation of USAID-funded democracy and governance strategies and programs. Such services will ensure that DRG strategies, programs and activities, and monitoring and evaluation plans are based on in-depth, well-informed analysis; cutting-edge research; valid data; and best practices in the field of democracy and governance.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
The contractor may be called upon by DCHA/DRG, missions, regional bureaus, and other central bureaus to provide the following analytical services.

(a) General and Sectoral DRG Assessments
General and sectoral DRG assessments could include, but are not limited to, the following:
- Conducting full-scale, multi-person, “general DRG assessments” that include the examination of all major functional DRG components and areas of USAID interest;
- Conducting single component or “sectoral DRG assessments” (e.g., rule of law, decentralization, elections, civil/military relations);
- Executing regional or multi-country DRG assessments, both general and sectoral; and,
- Creating a common analytical framework and methodology for the conduct of DRG assessments, both general and sectoral.

(b) DRG Strategy Development
Support for DRG strategy development could include, but is not limited to, the following:
- Developing long-term strategic plans, including DRG assistance objectives and targets of opportunity, or incorporating DRG strategies, principles, and approaches into an overall program portfolio;
- Formulating regional-level DRG strategies, programs, and action plans; and,
- Conceptualizing Agency-wide DRG strategies, programs, and action plans.

(c) Managing for DRG Results
Support for monitoring and evaluation of DRG efforts could include, but is not limited to, the following:
- Creating DRG indicators at the strategic (objective), sectoral (technical), and activity (implementation) levels;
- Designing data collection and analysis plans and methodologies to track achievement toward stated objectives;
- Refining DRG indicators to monitor progress and measure impact of DRG programs; and,
- Developing or revising performance management plans, results frameworks, and/or annual performance reports (or their functional equivalents), including objectives and indicators.
(d) DRG Program and Activity Design
Support for the development of DRG programs and/or activities could include, but is not limited to, the following:

- Designing or redesigning stand-alone, multi-component, or single component DRG programs or activities;
- Designing or redesigning programs or activities in other development sectors which have either a DRG component or in which DRG principles and strategies are to be incorporated;
- Providing specific information, such as best practices or data, to help with the design or redesign of DRG programs or activities; and,
- Preparing various design documents and requirements (e.g., concept papers, Scopes of Work, New Activity Designs, Activity Proposals, technical analyses, and activity protocols or authorizing documents), per the legal and policy considerations cited above.

(e) DRG Evaluation
DRG evaluations could include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Conducting evaluations of programs and activities at various points of design and implementation including initial, mid-term, and final evaluations;
- Designing and conducting impact evaluations of DRG programs and activities in a given country or sub-region; and,
- Analyzing data from cross-national impact evaluations within a specific sub-sector to draw conclusions about the impact of DRG programs and make recommendations for best practices within that sub-sector.

(f) Research and Special Studies
Support for research could include, but is not limited to, the following:

- Collecting new data and/or adapting existing data on USAID activities: inputs, outputs, outcomes, and impacts;
- Collecting and/or adapting data on political, economic, social, and other phenomena in USAID recipient and non-recipient countries;
- Developing indices to monitor DRG programming;
- Reviewing secondary source research, including desk studies, evaluations, analyses of best practices, and syntheses of other sources of relevant materials;
- Conducting primary source research, for example via case studies or general sectoral evaluations, in such areas as backsliding, patronage, corruption, or Islam and Democracy;
- Conducting studies pertaining to policy constraints, theoretical limitations, and systemic or sectoral problems;
- Translating research findings from above analyses into periodic reports that are intelligible to a policy audience, and that spell out practical, programmatic implications of the research for democracy assistance practitioners; and,
- Writing handbooks, manuals, and reference materials needed for program development, implementation, and monitoring and evaluation.

(g) Survey Research and New Methodologies
Support for survey research and other methodological approaches could include, but is not limited to, the following:

- Undertaking surveys;
- Assessing the feasibility of survey research in a given context and providing general assistance to missions interested in using survey data or undertaking surveys;
- Providing guidance on ensuring high quality and relevant research designs and findings;
- Analyzing survey data, and analyzing the validity of other methodological approaches in a particular context;
- Developing training materials, workshops, and other pedagogical/information dissemination products in the field of survey research and methodology; and,
• Developing and/or expanding online and Web-related capabilities in USAID to provide survey findings and data for further use by missions and other operating units.

(h) USAID Training and DCHA/DRG Networking
Support for DRG training, networking, and outreach could include, but is not limited to, the following:

• Developing and implementing a training program to increase the knowledge and skills of USAID personnel or that of cooperating partners or other donors;
• Providing fora for mission and bureau staff to exchange experiences and lessons learned. The fora could take a variety of forms, such as conferences, workshops, electronic distributions and video-conferencing, and could include partners, academics, sectoral specialists, and other donors;
• Facilitating or conducting workshops that bring together USAID staff with cooperating agencies including PVOs, NGOs, universities, consulting firms, etc., to discuss the Agency's DRG programs and the potential role of these partners in program and strategy implementation; and,
• Facilitating or conducting workshops and conferences to discuss issues and problems of common interest to USAID, its partners, other donors, and others concerned about DRG issues.

(g) Grant Management
Funds may be made available on a grant basis for institutional capacity building in the analytical areas listed above. In such cases, the contractor may be required to execute and/or administer grants under awarded task orders.

DEMOCRACY FELLOWSHIPS AND GRANTS PROGRAM

DRG Contact: Victoria Gellis (COR, L), Joseph Taggart (Alternate COR, SP)

Cooperative Agreement | Award Number | Expiration | Performance Period
----------------------|--------------|------------|------------------
Institute of International Education (IIE) | AID-OAA-A-12-00039 | 9/04/2017 | N/A

PURPOSE:
The Democracy Fellowships and Grants Program (DFG) is intended to help develop a pool of committed democracy, conflict and humanitarian assistance professionals at the junior, mid- and senior-levels; to strengthen relations between USAID and academic, think-tank and research organizations; and to promote research and innovative solutions to democracy, human rights and governance programs.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
DFG represents a continuation of Democracy Fellowship programs that have been implemented by the DRG Center and its predecessors for about 17 years. The expanded DFG program contains three primary components: fellowships; DRG learning and exchanges; and innovation and research grants.

Fellowships:
Fellows will be hired into the program as full-time, part-time, or for short-term appointments. Full-time fellows will be exceptional, highly motivated junior to senior level professionals to be placed at USAID offices or Missions. The duration of regular full-time fellowships is two years with an option to extend annually for an additional two years after the first two year assignment. Part-time fellows can be hired for the same duration as regular full-time fellows but can work for USAID on a part-time basis while maintaining their existing positions at their home institution. Short-term fellows can be junior to senior level and may be recruited to work on specific research projects or policy papers. Duration of short-term fellowships can be six months to one year. Part-time and short-term fellowships are intended to offer USAID more flexibility when collaborating with academic and think-tank organizations as well as make it possible for talented and exceptional professionals who otherwise may not be able to become full-time fellows to gain experience with international development programs and contribute to advancing USAID goals. Fellowships will respond to a range of technical assistance needs and will assist USAID in global leadership efforts, research, and knowledge management. USAID Missions and Offices interested in sponsoring a Fellow should contact the COR for a detailed description of the cost structure.

Learning Exchanges
Learning exchanges consist of internships and a series of speakers and workshops. The prospective internship program is expected to help interns gain critical experience in the DRG sector. The DRG speaker series and workshop component will bring outside speakers to present at USAID supported events or organize workshops.

Innovation and Research Grants
DCHA/DRG will announce priority research areas through annual updates of its Innovations and Research APS. The APS portfolio will foster and nurture ideas and projects that have the potential to lead to innovative solutions that may lead to significant advances in democracy, human rights and governance foreign assistance programs. Innovation and Research Grants will support projects in all sub-sectors of democracy, human rights and governance. Missions and Offices may also partner with the DRG Center to fund research and innovation grants either by funding existing broad calls for proposals or proposing their own topics for consideration for future grant solicitations.

CIVIL SOCIETY AND MEDIA
Increased development of a politically active civil society and a better informed political system (Program Area 2.4)

It is through the advocacy efforts of civil society organizations and civic education that people are empowered to exercise their rights and gain a voice in the process of formulating public policy and political processes. Organizations such as human rights groups, professional associations, religious institutions, pro-democracy groups, environmental activist organizations, business associations, labor unions, media organizations, and think tanks play a vital role in educating and engaging with the public and the government on important local and national issues. Many Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) supported by USAID champion women’s rights, ferret out government corruption and impunity, and spotlight business practices that are exploitative of labor and the environment. Their presence and activities of CSOs help assure that government and citizens comply with the rule of law.

Priority Areas: Strengthening the mediums through which citizens can freely organize and communicate with their government and with each other, particularly via support for independent media, democratic labor movements, and the enabling environment for civil society organizations, strengthening a democratic political culture through support for civic engagement and civic education. Through these avenues of support, USAID helps to mobilize constituencies for democratic reform.

PURPOSE:
The Leader With Associates consortium will provide technical assistance, design, implementation and evaluation services in support of civil society programming in presence and non-presence countries as identified by USAID Missions and USAID/Washington. USAID-funded assistance mechanisms are frequently called upon in times of crisis, conflict or post-conflict, or when unforeseen challenges or opportunities arise. Such programming is expected to include similar types of activities as those required for the DRG core program in the Leader Award.

GCSS LEADER: The GCSS Leader Award allows USAID DRG and the US Department of State to enhance their global capacity to contribute to more effective civil society strengthening, collaborating with Counterpart International to: design and implement civil society sector assessments; evaluate ongoing USAID programs; conduct research updating USAID’s DRG documents; pilot programs to test best practices and new methodologies; and develop training modules and conduct training for development practitioners.

INTERNET FREEDOM AND INFORMATION SECURITY (New program under development, with planned launch in September, 2011). This program will involve a coordinated mix of targeted technical assistance, grants, off-shore web-hosting, deployments of cyber defense and crisis systems, and information sharing to enable NGOs, citizen activists, bloggers, and media (operating in otherwise restrictive environments) to achieve unmonitored and unfettered access to information. Missions or other USAID offices interested in participating in this program should contact the activity technical advisor, Joshua Haynes (haynes@usaid.gov) and the AOR, Mark Koenig (mkoenig@usaid.gov).

POSSIBLE GCSS WORK AREAS:
ENHANCING CIVIC PARTICIPATION through:

- Establishing legal and regulatory frameworks that protect and promote civil society and civic participation.
- Strengthening the capacity of Civil Society Organizations (CSOs) for policy analysis, advocacy, coalition-building, internal governance, membership representation and services, and engaging in other activities aimed at fostering more peaceful and democratic societies.
- Increasing citizen participation in policy and decision-making processes, service delivery, resource allocation, oversight of public institutions and in broader initiatives to create more peaceful, democratic, and pluralistic societies.
- Strengthening political and civic culture that is supportive of democratic institutions and processes, active citizen participation, civic virtues (tolerance and gender equality), and other civic skills, attitudes, and behaviors.
- Developing and strengthening independent and democratic trade/labor unions and federations to promote international core labor standards.

STRENGTHENING INDEPENDENT MEDIA through:

- Enhancing the technical and theoretical professional capacity of the media sector through hands-on training, consulting, and mentoring.
• Strengthening media legal and regulatory frameworks to enable the growth of independent media.

• Building financially sustainable media sectors through activities that enhance both the economic viability of media enterprises and an overall environment that supports the development of sustainable media.

• Supporting independent media by strengthening media sector CSOs and related groups/activities—including but not limited to internet-based networking initiatives and regional initiatives.

USAID PROGRAM DESIGN and LEARNING through:

• Developing and conducting needs assessments, baseline studies, targeted evaluations, special studies and other information-gathering activities specifically for the design, monitoring and evaluation of USG-funded programs.

• Developing and disseminating best practices and lessons learned, testing demonstration and pilot models, and preparing strategic plans and other short-term programming activities.

• Disseminating technical materials through publications, internet, public forums and other related events to improve civil society and the media's understanding of the program area.

• Augmenting CSO capacities to share information for better learning, especially through the internet and other electronic mediums; and developing analysis-based training materials and modules for stakeholder and development practitioners.

And integrating CROSS CUTTING THEMES, such as:

Community Mobilization: Strengthening the capacity of civic groups, community based organizations, professional associations and advocacy groups to contribute to an active civil society.

Youth: Implementing programs, partnerships and policies that actively and constructively involve young people, while helping them to develop the knowledge, skills, and attitudes they need to be active and constructive members of society.

Conflict Mitigation and Transformation: Working to avert imminent violence or the escalation of a dispute into a violent encounter by identifying and addressing the root causes and triggers of conflict. Mitigating ongoing violence and addressing its immediate aftermath.

Labor: Serving as a watchdog for labor rights, labor markets, and labor governance, including worker rights; labor migration and trafficking; labor organizations and trade unions, among others.

Media Outreach: Using mass media (newspapers, magazines, radio, television, internet, text messaging and/or other media) to disseminate information about any aspect of civil society development or citizen empowerment.

PURPOSE:
The new LWA for a “Global Labor Program: Promoting International Labor Standards, Improving Workers’ Access to Justice and Supporting Independent, Democratic Labor Unions and NGOs” (hereafter, “Global Labor Program”) was awarded to the Solidarity Center on 1/31/2011. It continues the important work of promoting international labor standards and strengthening democratic labor unions and NGOs, with focus on the following areas: the promotion of labor justice and the rule of law in the labor sector, gender considerations, continuing improvements in the monitoring and evaluation of program results, and the integration of program objectives with USAID’s regional and country-specific development goals.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
USAID and the Solidarity Center continue to focus their work on increasing the capacity of independent, democratic labor movements worldwide to promote core labor standards, effectively represent their members and improve working conditions and workers’ livelihoods. The program also explicitly addresses other cross-sectoral development goals including the development of democratic institutions, broad-based economic growth, and healthy and productive workforces and communities.

The Solidarity Center is the lead organization of the cooperative agreement. The four consortium partners include Rutgers’ School of Management and Labor Relations (the Labor Studies & Employment Relations Department); Women in Informal Employment Globalizing and Organizing (WIEGO), a global research and policy network on women and the informal economy housed at Harvard University; the Working for America Institute (WAI); and DRG Metrics. DRG developed this leader-associate award mechanism to provide Missions and other U.S. government agencies with a pre-approved grant vehicle that allows for timely procurement of labor-related awards that fall within the scope of the leader award objectives. After the DRG AOR determines whether a proposed activity fits within the award objectives, the Mission may develop and implement its own independent grant or cooperative agreement with the Solidarity Center. These associate awards are managed by the Mission or Bureau. Awards can be extended for up to five years beyond the life of the leader award.

PURPOSE:
In September 2008, DCHA/DRG launched the global NGO Legal Enabling Environment Program (LEEP), a five-year cooperative agreement implemented by the International Center for Not-for-Profit Law (ICNL) under an Associate Award. The purpose is to support the enabling legal and regulatory environment that protects and promotes civil society and civic participation. LEEP offers:

- Technical assistance: (1) on legislation or regulations that threaten to restrict the civic space, or (2) where opportunities exist to advance favorable legal reform;
- Initiatives to strengthen local capacity to advance legal and regulatory reform through small grants to local CSOs, assessments, study tours for government officials, and other activities;
- NGO Law Monitor project, which provides up-to-date information on legal issues affecting not-for-profit organizations in over 30 countries;
- Research fellowships to strengthen local capacity involving 3 – 4 week studies with ICNL in Washington, DC;
- The second Global Forum on Civil Society Law in August 2011; and
- Monitoring and tracking of legal and regulatory frameworks;
- Targeted research to advance the analytic basis for reform.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
LEEP offers both in-country and remote technical assistance. Under LEEP, DCHA/DRG and ICNL works with DRG, Regional Bureaus, and Missions to develop appropriate annual work plans that identify and prioritize countries for technical assistance. Each fiscal year LEEP will be positioned to provide rapid response technical assistance for a small number of urgent, high priority situations not envisioned in the work plan. Illustrative activities include written analysis of CSO-related legislation, one to two trips by ICNL staff to conduct an assessment and/or provide technical assistance, and/or provision of a small grant to local partners to help advance NGO law reform. LEEP is intended to provide limited technical assistance when Mission resources are unavailable, or when rapidly evolving situations require an immediate response that precludes normal Mission-based procurement, or when the scope and cost of the activity is so limited as to make Mission funding cumbersome and inefficient. DCHA/DRG is available to offer guidance to Missions as needed.

Performance Period

PURPOSE:
In October 2010, DRG, AFR/SD, and an external resource partner introduced the NGO Sustainability Index for Sub-Saharan Africa (NGOSI), an analytical tool for measuring the sustainability of NGOs, in 19 Sub-Saharan African countries. This was followed in 2011 by the introduction of the tool to the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region. The purpose is to provide users with a way to assess the sustainability of the civil society sector in a given country as well as a way to identify and compare the trends and issues affecting NGOs across the region and to enable comparisons to be drawn between Africa, the Middle East, Europe, and Eurasia. The NGOSI offers:

- a management tool for monitoring, measuring, and evaluating progress in sectoral development;
- a way to focus resources and efforts on critical areas of civil society reform;
- a guide to the challenges and opportunities facing NGOs and civil society generally;
- a set of qualitative indicators in a user-friendly quantitative form; and,
- narrative country reports prepared by local NGOs.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS: The NGOSI for Sub-Saharan Africa and for MENA, which are modeled on the NGOSI for Central and Eastern Europe and Eurasia, measures NGO sustainability using a methodology that employs seven indicators or "dimensions." These dimensions include legal environment; organizational capacity; financial viability; advocacy; service provision; infrastructure; and, public image. Each dimension is rated along a seven-point scale with 1 indicating an advanced level of development and 7 indicating a low level. Mid-range scores between 3.1 and 5 indicate an evolving level.

By combining numerical scores with narrative explanations, the Index provides a foundation, or baseline, for identifying the challenges and opportunities facing the selected countries. As countries are grouped by sub-region, users can track sub-regional differences, the impact of internal and external factors, as well as the relationship between NGO sustainability and other development trends. In addition, the NGOSI contains thematic essays that highlight regional trends and issues. By drawing on the NGOSI, users will be better able to determine priorities and approaches.

PURPOSE: Since 2000, IREX has measured media systems in 20 transitional countries in the Europe and Eurasia regions, using a tool called the Media Sustainability Index (or MSI). In 2005, DCHA/DRG expanded coverage by the MSI to up to 19 countries in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA). And, after 2006, to 40 countries in sub-Saharan Africa have been studied. The Index assesses media system status year-by-year according to five main objectives and 40 more detailed indicators (For methodology and country studies, see www.irex.org and follow needed links to the Media Sustainability Index.)

OBJECTIVES needed for successful media systems:
- Legal and social norms protect and promote free speech and access to public information
- Journalism meets professional standards of quality
- Multiple news sources provide citizens with reliable and objective news
- Independent media are well-managed businesses, allowing editorial independence
- Supporting institutions function in the professional interests of independent media

MEDIA INDEX APPLICATIONS include:
- comprehensive measuring of all key factors needed for free, professional media measurement of year-to-year progress, or reversals, in each national media system analysis of the key weaknesses in a media system comparative analyses of media systems over time and across countries

ELECTIONS AND POLITICAL TRANSITIONS
More genuine and competitive political processes
(Program Area 2.3)

Elections can be a primary tool to help force political openings and expand political participation. The electoral process has often been a principal vehicle for democratization, as authoritarian governments have frequently fallen to democratic forces. For an election to be free and fair, certain civil liberties, such as the freedoms of speech, association, and assembly are required. Elections offer political parties and civic groups an opportunity to mobilize and organize supporters and share alternative platforms with the public. Electoral campaigns also tend to foster political liberalization. They also serve to encourage political debate.

Priority Areas: Impartial electoral frameworks, credible electoral administration, effective oversight of electoral processes, informed and active citizenries, representative and competitive multi-party systems, inclusion of women and other disadvantaged groups, effective governance by elected leaders and bodies, election monitoring, voter education and effective transfers of political power.

PURPOSE:
In 2008, DRG awarded a Leader With Associates (LWA) cooperative agreement to the Consortium for Elections and Political Process Strengthening (CEPPS): a joint venture between the International Foundation for Electoral Systems (IFES), the International Republican Institute (IRI), and the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs (NDI). All three organizations are leaders in the field of elections and political processes and possess a vast amount of experience and expertise. CEPPS III programs may be implemented by one member of the consortium, by two or more working on activities separately, or by two or more members working jointly.

The purpose of this agreement is to strengthen and support democratic electoral and political processes by providing access to a full array of activities in the field of elections and political processes. The emphasis is on long-term planning and sustainable development of electoral and political processes rather than event-driven, crisis-oriented activities centered on a single election. The award was designed to allow for the initiation and implementation of short- and long-term activities without requiring a time-consuming competitive application process.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
The CEPPS III Leader With Associates Cooperative Agreement is designed to respond to immediate and long-term Mission and bureau needs related to assessments, strategy formulation, activity design, evaluation, and program implementation. Activities initiated under this award may promote any of the following ten objectives:

Objective 1: Impartial Legal Framework for Elections and Political Parties
Although not a sufficient condition in isolation, an impartial framework (i.e. constitutional provisions, laws, rules, regulations, and institutions which govern electoral and political processes) is a necessary condition for sustainable, credible electoral processes and representative, democratic political parties.

Objective 2: Credible Electoral Administration
Credible electoral administration requires an impartial, transparent, and competent electoral authority managing the elections, and sufficient resources to permit neutral administration. It also requires professional staff who are competent in key areas of electoral administration, including registration, designating polling sites, drawing up voters’ lists, tabulating votes, providing security, enforcing political finance rules, using computer hardware and software effectively, educating voters and adjudicating complaints if within the electoral authority’s mandate.

Objective 3: An Informed and Active Citizenry
An informed and active citizenry is the driving force behind a genuine and competitive political process. It also helps build confidence in the system, and public acceptance of results. Free and fair elections require that all citizens understand the electoral system and political choices, and participate in political processes through party membership, voting, volunteer service, and membership in NGOs.

Objective 4: Effective Oversight of Electoral Processes
Monitoring electoral processes can reduce the opportunities and incentives for electoral fraud, identify shortcomings of the electoral process with the intention of facilitating genuine and competitive elections, and legitimize a peaceful transfer of power. Recognizing that election day comprises only one component of the electoral process, effective oversight of electoral processes includes sufficient pre/post-election monitoring. Election monitors may include: political contestants who monitor violations of their supporters’ political rights, nonpartisan citizen organizations, and international organizations which evaluate a country’s electoral framework.
and administration compared to international standards and practices. The media can also serve a useful watchdog function during an electoral process if it has the capacity to produce credible and accurate reports about the preparations for, and the conduct of, elections. Monitoring of the electoral process -- by international organizations, domestic monitors, political party poll watchers or local media -- can lend confidence in the outcome of an election.

Objective 5: Increased Political Participation of Women, Persons with Disabilities, and Other Historically Disenfranchised Groups
This objective promotes increased political participation of groups that have historically been excluded from fair participation. Illustrative examples of these groups include (but are not limited to) women, minorities, internally displaced persons (IDPs), and persons with disabilities. To ensure the inclusion of these groups, and others, in electoral activities, it is critical that electoral laws, administration and oversight are non-discriminatory and non-exclusionary, and that civil and political rights of politically marginalized groups are protected through effective enforcement. This objective aims not only to remove barriers to participation, but also to improve political participation and representation through targeted training, skills development and effective voter education. The goal is to strengthen the capacity of historically disenfranchised groups to participate in and influence decision-making bodies within political parties and government.

Objective 6: Consensus-building to promote peaceful agreement on democratic reform
This objective aims to develop processes for promoting peaceful agreement for democratic reform through broad-based participation in determining and negotiating changes to governing structures.

Objective 7: Representative and Competitive Multiparty System
A representative and competitive multiparty system consists of political parties which have internal democratic procedures, and broader institutional structures that are accountable, transparent, inclusive of sub-populations, and accepted by party members. Representative political parties serve many functions such as acting as intermediaries between the electorate and the elected; involving members of different ethnicities, religious beliefs or genders; developing platforms-based citizen input; and ensuring effective communications between political party structures and constituencies.

Objective 8: Effective Transfer of Political Power
Genuine and competitive political processes require: the peaceful transfer of power between different individuals, groups, or political parties through established procedures; losing parties accepting the outcome of the election and the authority of newly elected officials; and public recognition of the legitimacy of the process. Newly elected officials must be prepared to fulfill their responsibilities, and political parties must be prepared to assume a proper governance role.

Objective 9: Effective Governance by Elected Leaders and Bodies
Elected leaders must be able to govern effectively once they take office. Parties and their leaders at the national, regional and local level need to serve the public, rather than private interests. Legislative bodies need to develop technical skills, as well as rules of procedure and ways of operating which enhance their ability to develop legislation and to provide oversight of the executive branch. At the local level, mayors and councils need to be able to work together as well as perform their specific functions such that the local community benefits from democratically elected government.

Objective 10: Promoting Sustainable Local/Regional Organizations Engaged in Election Assistance
USAID aims to strengthen the capacity of indigenous local/regional organizations in developing countries to: 1) conduct elections related activities; and 2) provide technical assistance and training to other local organizations on elections and political processes. The rationale is that strengthened election-oriented organizations in developing countries will: 1) broaden the community of democracy promoters and advocates abroad; 2) demonstrate that USAID assistance leads directly to sustainable change among local organizations, without dependence on intermediary organizations; and 3) promote replication.
The Consortium for Elections and Political Processes Strengthening is a joint venture of the following three organizations: International Foundation for Electoral Systems (IFES), International Republican Institute (IRI), and National Democratic Institute for International Affairs (NDI). IRI is the administrative manager for CEPPS and as such, all communication regarding CEPPS should be sent to the office of CEPPS Director, Ms. Sondra Govatski.

ELECTIONS AND POLITICAL PROCESSES FUND

DRG Contact: Johanna Wilkie, Fund Manager

PURPOSE:
The purpose of the Elections and Political Processes (EPP) Fund is to provide assistance in cases of critical unanticipated need with regards to electoral and political processes. The Fund is global in reach; since the Fund was established in 2006, $111 million of assistance has been provided to 72 countries.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
All USAID Missions may apply for funding. The EPP Fund solicits applications from USAID Missions for competitive funding rounds each fiscal year. In addition, the EPP Fund accepts ad hoc applications if urgent needs arise outside of funding rounds. Applications are assessed by a cross-Agency review committee. To be successful, applications must meet at least two of the following three criteria:

• Proposed program addresses snap elections or other unanticipated needs;
• Proposed program exploits a targeted window of opportunity for EPP Funds and justifies how EPP Funds will fit with existing USG and other donor efforts; and
• Proposed program is determined to be unique and innovative by the EPP Fund review committee.

EPP Fund applications must be submitted through an online application system: http://dg.usaidallnet.gov/dgepp/login.php

EPP Fund projects cover a wide range of activities. Some areas that have been addressed include: Post-conflict peace and constitutional design processes; political violence, electoral violence and political instability; urgent needs created by snap elections; citizen oversight of elections; protection and promotion of democratic governance in backsliding countries; and other electoral and broader political processes in priority countries.

GOVERNANCE

More transparent and accountable government institutions
(Program Area 2.2)

Many citizens of developing countries recognize the intrinsic value of democratic principles and processes (e.g., elections, human rights, and representation). At the same time, they are concerned with a government’s ability to function. In general, governance issues pertain to the ability of government to develop an efficient and effective public management process. Because citizens lose confidence in a government that is unable to meet their basic security and service needs, the degree to which a government is able to carry out its responsibilities at any level is often a key determinant of a country’s ability to sustain democratic reform.

Priority Areas: Legislative strengthening, public policy development and implementation, decentralization and local capacity, anticorruption initiatives, and security sector reform.

AND

RULE OF LAW

Strengthening rule of law (Program Area 2.1)

The rule of law (RoL) sector is viewed through the prism of the DRG analytic framework: The Rule of Law Strategic Framework. Using this framework helps in systematically identifying the problems and weaknesses with rule of law in a country and suggests a range of potential programmatic approaches to problems in the rule of law. The DRG Center helps Missions undertake strategic analyses that link building rule of law with strengthening democracy. It supports efforts to strengthen five elements comprising the rule of law: Order and security; Legitimacy; Checks and balances; Fairness (Equal application of the law; Procedural fairness; Protection of human rights and civil liberties; and Access to justice); and Effective application.

Mechanisms:

ENGAGE IQC
ROL IQC
Rights Consortium
PURPOSE:
The connections between public sector corruption and development run deep. Some of them are clear and direct, for instance when political officials divert aid and investment capital to offshore bank accounts, poor nations become poorer. When political, bureaucratic, and judicial processes are put up for rent, it endangers civil liberties and property rights. Corruption erodes the quality of public services and access to those services. Political and economic benefits flow to a limited number of individuals, while the costs are extracted from society at large — often from the poor and powerless. While the tangible and immediate damage can be significant, other detrimental impacts are intangible, collective, and long-term in nature. Corruption can erode the legitimacy of government and undermine democratic values like trust, tolerance, accountability, and participation. Corruption can increase the time, cost, and uncertainty of doing business and thereby deter investment, or skew investment toward high-return sectors or white elephant projects whose main beneficiaries are contract winners and those who receive kickbacks, not the public as a whole. Corruption can also reduce competition, lower compliance with construction, environmental, or other regulations, increase budgetary pressures on government, and nourish organized crime networks.

The objective of ENGAGE is to provide USAID and its partner countries with the broad range of technical assistance, assessments and other resources necessary to develop and implement appropriate and meaningful strategies to curb corruption in economic, political and social service sectors. USAID defines corruption as “the abuse of entrusted authority for private gain.” Thus, the activities under ENGAGE address unilateral abuses by governmental officials such as embezzlement and nepotism, as well as abuses linking public and private actors such as bribery, extortion, influence peddling, and fraud at both lower and higher levels of government and the public sector (i.e., “administrative” and “grand” corruption). The activities under this IQC address three broad areas: 1) public financial, administrative and regulatory measures that promote transparency, accountability and effective governance; 2) civil society advocacy on behalf of governmental integrity, implementation of anticorruption programs and/or oversight of public functions and authorities; and 3) incorporation of anticorruption promotion into other sectoral/sub-sectoral areas, such as health and education, natural resource management, corporate governance, or into key aspects of democracy promotion, such as rule of law, legislative oversight or local government strengthening.
POSSIBLE WORK AREAS
Activities may be carried out with regard to a given sector (e.g., democracy and governance, health, environment, education, economic growth), or across several sectors. The list of possible activities is indicative, not necessarily exhaustive.

- Public administration reform
- Administrative and legal sanction regimes
- E-Government reform
- Transparent budget making and implementation
- Procurement reform
- Financial management systems
- Audit institutions and internal control regimes
- Government ethics regimes
- Regulatory reform
- Tax and customs administration
- Inspector General/Ombudsmen/Anticorruption Agencies
- Complaint mechanisms and whistle-blower protections
- Legislative oversight
- Anticorruption legislation (e.g. criminalization of bribery, FOIA, etc.) & other relevant legal frameworks
- Justice sector reform
- Decentralization and transparency in local government
- Political finance reform and regulation
- Oversight and transparency regimes for electoral commissions
- Financial disclosure regimes
- Transparent privatization processes
- Procurement reform
- Tax and customs collections
- Corporate governance and codes of ethics
- Extractive industry transparency
- Financial disclosure and conflict of interest regimes
- Civil society advocacy, anticorruption programming and oversight of government (organizational development, advocacy and oversight strategies, coalition building, managing relations with government)
- Open budget processes and budget oversight
- Freedom of information legislation and access to information
- Investigative journalism and other media strengthening
- Public education campaigns
- Corruption surveys, user surveys and report cards and dissemination of results
- Local government transparency
- Participatory budgeting
- Community oversight of service delivery
- The development and dissemination of anticorruption strategies, activities and lessons learned
- Programs to address corruption in public service delivery
- Public-private partnerships to combat corruption
- Survey techniques and corruption measurement
- Measurement and evaluation of anticorruption impact
- Approaches designed specifically to address the challenge of corruption in fragile states and reconstruction settings

HUMAN RIGHTS

Respect for human rights
(Program Area 2.1)

Protecting human rights is closely linked to advancing long-term, sustainable development. Rights are both part of the goal of development and instrumental to attaining other goals such as economic growth or democracy. With the creation of the new DRG Center, “human rights” were elevated as a co-equal pillar alongside democracy and governance. USAID’s human-rights programming is based on protection, promotion and principles of rights.

Priority Areas: Monitoring human-rights violations; supporting human-rights defenders or commissions; preventing mass atrocities; advancing transitional justice; counter-trafficking in persons (C-TIP); and protecting and promoting the rights of vulnerable populations such as the LGBT community.

HUMAN RIGHTS GRANT PROGRAM

DRG Contact: Kevin Sturr, Fund Manager

PURPOSE:
With the creation of the new DRG Center, “human rights” were elevated as a co-equal pillar alongside democracy and governance. In order to promote a field focus on human rights, the DRG Center launched a new Human Rights Grants Program (HRGP) in 2012 (then called the Human Rights Fund). The HRGP supports innovative projects that respond to urgent or unanticipated human rights needs or emerging opportunities.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
• The HRGP also strongly encourages agreements with local and regional human rights organizations. The HRGP will also support media and rule-of-law activities insofar as they address human rights problems.
• The HRGP will enable Missions to integrate human rights objectives into current programs and those under design, regardless of sector.
• DRG is seeking, in particular, to collaborate with Missions on specific learning opportunities—for examples impact evaluations and surveys--and to develop best practices in human rights programming.

VULNERABLE POPULATIONS FUNDS

The Vulnerable Populations portfolio works to reduce risks to vulnerable populations, and to reinforce the capacities of communities, local nongovernmental organizations (NGO), and governments to provide services and protection for vulnerable groups. Programs help vulnerable populations gain access to opportunities that support their full participation in society.

Vulnerable Populations comprises five congressionally-directed programs. The Vulnerable Populations team includes personnel with technical expertise in those programming areas, as well as the USAID’s Disability Coordinator, who works to ensure that Agency fully complies with its own disability policy. The five programs are:

- Displaced Children and Orphans Fund (DCOF),
- Disability Program,
- Victims of Torture Program (VOT),
- Leahy War Victims Fund (LWVF), and
- Wheelchair Program.

Vulnerable Populations has been at the forefront of developing innovative and state-of-the-art programming for children affected by war, in setting orthopedic and rehabilitation standards in developing countries, and in improving treatment and healing options for survivors of torture. It has also lead worldwide policy change on barrier-free accessibility and inclusion of people with disabilities in family and community.

Each fund has its own purpose and strategy, but they share a focus on providing services to poor and vulnerable people and an emphasis on community. Collectively, Vulnerable Populations conducts programs in more than seventy (70) countries around the world.

PURPOSE:
USAID is committed integrating people with disabilities into its programs and activities and to building the capacity of disability organizations that advocate for and offer services on behalf of people with disabilities. This commitment is reinforced by the USAID disability policy and extends from the design and implementation of USAID programming to advocacy for and outreach to people with disabilities.

USAID’s policy on disability is to avoid discrimination against people with disabilities in programs which USAID funds and to stimulate an engagement of host-country counterparts, governments, implementing organizations and other donors in promoting a climate of nondiscrimination against and equal opportunity for people with disabilities. The USAID policy ensures that people with disabilities are included at every level, as administrators, partners, and beneficiaries.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
USAID’s disability funds are used to support programs and activities to address the needs of people with disabilities, including protecting the rights and increasing the independence and full participation of people with disabilities in programs related to health, education, economic growth, political participation, and humanitarian aid. The Funds’ focus is on reducing barriers for people with disabilities in existing USAID programs. The Fund also supports the development and implementation of training for USAID staff and its partners overseas to promote the full inclusion and equal participation of people with disabilities in countries where USAID is present.

This Fund is coordinated and supported by the Office of Democracy and Governance, although most activities are implemented through Mission-managed grants and agreements. The Disability Fund is active in over 30 countries worldwide. As part of its oversight and managerial responsibilities for the Fund, DRG maintains a technical assistance contract with Manila Consulting, Inc. This contract provides technical assistance and support for field Missions that are interested in developing programs under the Fund.

PURPOSE:
Established in 1988, the Displaced Children and Orphans Fund (DCOF) provides care, support, and protection for the special needs of children at risk, including orphans, unaccompanied minors, children affected by armed conflict, and children with disabilities. Programs center on strengthening the capacity of families and communities to address the physical, social, educational, economic, and emotional needs of children in crisis. The program aims to preserve the family structure; promote the growth and development of vulnerable children; and develop community structures to care, support, and protect vulnerable populations.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
Most DCOF activities are implemented through USAID Mission-managed grants and agreements. A major portion of these Congressionally-mandated funds are used to support programs and activities that provide direct assistance to vulnerable children. DCOF funds also support the design, implementation, and monitoring of programs that provide evidence-based guidance and replicable models for future expansion or replication. DCOF is currently active in 23 countries, including Afghanistan, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Bangladesh, Burundi, Cambodia, Colombia, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Egypt, Georgia, Guatemala, Indonesia, Kenya, Liberia, Moldova, Mozambique, Nepal, Philippines, Sri Lanka, Tanzania, Thailand, Uganda, and Zambia.

As part of its oversight and managerial responsibilities for the Fund, DRG maintains the SPANS technical assistance contract with Manila Consulting, Inc. This contract provides technical assistance and support for Field Missions that are interested in developing programs under the Fund.

PURPOSE:
The Victims of Torture Fund primarily supports programs that help heal the psychological and physical trauma caused by torture, recognizing that communities, along with survivors, need to heal and recover.

The Fund works through non-governmental organizations overseas that: (1) provide direct services to survivors, their families, and communities; (2) strengthen the capacity of country-based institutions in their delivery of services to survivors; and (3) increase the level of knowledge and understanding about the needs of torture victims. These programs include advocacy, training, technical assistance, and research. The Fund is coordinated and supported by the Office of Democracy and Governance, although most activities are Mission-managed grants and agreements. The program currently supports activities in 15 countries including Bangladesh, Cambodia, Cameroon, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Guatemala, Iraq, Kenya, Kosovo, Namibia, Nepal, Pakistan, Rwanda, Sierra Leone, Sri Lanka, and Uganda.

As part of its oversight and managerial responsibilities for the Fund, DRG maintains a technical assistance contract with Manila Consulting, Inc. This contract provides technical assistance and support for Field Missions that are interested in developing programs under the Fund.

PURPOSE:
The Leahy War Victims Fund (LWVF) focuses on the needs of civilian victims of conflict in developing countries with the primary objective of expanding access to affordable and appropriate prosthetic/orthotic services. Established in 1989, the program has slowly expanded beyond the provision of essential orthopedic services and related medical, surgical, and rehabilitation assistance to include programs that work to enable amputees and other people with disabilities to regain accessibility to mainstream educational, recreational, and economic opportunities.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
The LWVF is concerned with the provision of orthopedic services and devices to ensure unassisted mobility for civilian war victims and other persons with disabilities in post-conflict countries. Assistance may include training and institutional capacity-strengthening, facilities upgrading, materials provision, and support for national disabilities policy reform and public advocacy. In addition, programs include support for increasing the social and economic opportunities of these survivors.

This fund is coordinated and supported by DRG, although most activities are implemented through Mission-managed grants and agreements. The LWVF is active in Afghanistan, Angola, Cambodia, Colombia, Central America, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Ethiopia, Kenya, Laos, Lebanon, Nepal, Philippines, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Uganda, and Vietnam. As part of its oversight and managerial responsibilities for the Fund, DRG maintains a technical assistance contract with Manila Consulting. This contract provides technical assistance and support for Field Missions that are interested in developing programs under the Fund.

PURPOSE:
The goal of the Wheelchair Fund is to improve the mobility of people with mobility-related disabilities, which can lead to advances in their overall health. Grantees currently work in many facets of wheelchair provision: researching better, more durable chairs; ensuring appropriate cushions and seating; training to prescribe and fit wheelchairs; and testing and developing international standards.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
Funds are used to support programs that improve access to, availability of, and sustainability of, appropriate wheelchair programs in the developing world. At a broad level, programs contribute to the full and equal participation of people with disabilities in social and economic life. At an implementation level programs aim for, but are not limited to: introducing wheelchairs that are suitable and appropriate for use in developing countries and that are adaptable and fitted to the needs and requirements of each individual; develop and/or increase the capacity of national programs to produce and repair wheelchairs; strengthen human resource capacity to prescribe, fit, and train users; and develop and/or introduce new technologies that are appropriate for local conditions.

This fund is coordinated and supported by DRG, although most activities are implemented through Mission-managed grants and agreements. The program supports activities in eleven countries: Albania, Georgia, Indonesia, Iraq, Kenya, Liberia, Morocco, Nepal, Philippines, Romania, Sierra Leone, and Togo.

As part of its oversight and managerial responsibilities for the Fund, DRG maintains a technical assistance contract with Manila Consulting. This contract provides technical assistance and support for Field Missions that are interested in developing programs under the Fund.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
The AmericasBarometer series of surveys are of great interest to host country stakeholders, including civil society, media, government officials and citizens; to USAID and the U.S. Government; and to a broader audience that includes political and social scientists and Latin Americanists. The surveys gather data and analyze citizens’ perceptions of and experiences with a broad range of important democracy issues, including social capital, political tolerance, local government efficacy, corruption, citizen insecurity and crime, courts, the legislature and the executive. They also include a wide range of behavior variables, including citizen participation and electoral behavior, among others. The effort, which began in a limited way in the 1970s, is directed by Dr. Mitchell Seligson, Vanderbilt University Centennial Professor of Political Science and Fellow of Vanderbilt’s Center for the Americas. USAID Missions and other stakeholders can request services such as special survey questions, in-depth country reports, oversamples and dissemination and discussion events.

Public Access to AmericasBarometer Data, Surveys and Reports
All of the AmericasBarometer reports are available to the public on-line in English and Spanish at http://www.vanderbilt.edu/lapop/. The survey data can also be analyzed publicly, at no charge through the same website, with the hopes that students and professionals around the world will conduct additional research and statistical analysis. Several major university libraries serve as data repositories for some or all of the AmericasBarometer data. Published studies have been deposited in libraries throughout the world.

USAID Cooperation with Vanderbilt University
USAID has supported the AmericasBarometer surveys for over 10 years. While the surveys’ primary goal is giving the hemisphere’s citizens a voice on democracy issues, they also help guide USAID programming, alert policymakers throughout the region to potential problem areas, and inform citizens about democratic values and experiences in their countries relative to regional trends. USAID officers use the AmericasBarometer findings to prioritize funding allocation and guide program design. The surveys are also often employed as an evaluation tool, by comparing results in specialized “oversample” areas with national trends. In March 2006, USAID signed a Cooperative Agreement with Vanderbilt University that supports the project until 2014. The Agreement is managed out of USAID’s Bureau for Latin America and the Caribbean (LAC), and contributes about $1 million per year from USAID Missions in the region and the LAC Bureau for survey work, primarily in USAID-presence countries.

PURPOSE:
The Capable Partners Program (CAP) is a USAID Leader with Associates (LWA) Cooperative Agreement managed through the Agency’s Office of Development Partners (ODP). CAP is a non-DRG civil society strengthening LWA that works with Missions to strengthen the organizational and technical capacities and sustainability of non-governmental organizations (NGOs), community-based organizations (CBOs), faith-based organizations (FBOs), networks, and intermediate support organizations (ISOs). The current emphasis of the core component of the award is a Local Capacity Enrichment Learning Agenda that seeks to assess a wide variety of approaches to organizational change and offer a series of recommendations for the IDEA/LS Development Grants Program as well as for a broader USAID and donor audience.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
CAP works with Missions to design and implement interventions that are adapted to local contexts and based on proven approaches. CAP’s Associate Awards mechanism may be used across the full range of technical sectors. New Associate Awards related to any of CAP’s four programmatic objectives may be executed until August 10, 2013. Associate Awards may run until August 10, 2018. Concurrence is more likely for those associate award proposals that emphasize strengthening country and regional support organizations.

- Objective 1: Organizational development (OD), operational and/or technical capacity of local NGOs, networks and ISOs strengthened;
- Objective 2: Linkages among local organizations (NGOs, coops, networks, governments and businesses) strengthened;
- Objective 3: Increased capacity of NGOs, networks and ISOs to engage in advocacy for key policies or programs; and
- Objective 4: Wide dissemination of tested innovations, best practices and lessons learned.

The CAP consortium is led by FHI360 in partnership with Management Systems International (MSI). Other consortium partners are listed below and include several organizations with strong backgrounds in DRG programs:

- The Advocacy Institute
- Aga Khan Foundation, U.S.A.
- The American Red Cross
- Citizens Development Corps
- Freedom from Hunger
- Goodwill Industries International
- The Huairou Commission
- Institute for Multi-Track Diplomacy
- The Kenan Institute

FEDERAL JUDICIAL CENTER
OPDAT
PURPOSE: The Federal Judicial Center’s statutory mission includes a mandate to provide information to help improve the administration of justice in foreign countries and to acquire information about the judicial systems of other nations that will improve the administration of justice in the courts of the United States.

Note: DCHA/DRG has no official relationship with the Federal Judicial Center. Information about the Center listed here is intended to serve as a resource for Missions interested in developing or strengthening Rule of Law programming.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
At the invitation and with the financial support of the U.S. government, foreign judiciaries, or international development organizations, Center staff has visited foreign courts and judicial training centers to participate in conferences and technical assistance projects. This outreach has included judicial and court education programs with the Russian Academy of Justice; a caseload tracking and reporting assessment for the High Court in Lusaka, Zambia; a U.S./Council of Europe judicial reform assessment in Kosovo; and assistance with the implementation of a new case calendaring initiative in Trinidad and Tobago. The International Judicial Relations Office also can identify U.S. Judges, court managers, and public defenders with expertise relevant for a particular international rule of law program or court reform project.

Additionally, each year the Center hosts delegations of judges, attorneys, court officials, and scholars from around the world at its offices in the Thurgood Marshall Federal Judiciary Building in Washington, D.C. These sessions provide information about the United States legal and judicial systems as well as an overview of the Center’s education and research activities.

PURPOSE: The FMCS is an independent federal agency created to promote stable and productive labor-management relationships. In both the U.S. and in developing market economies throughout the world, FMCS delivers innovative approaches to resolving labor-management and workplace conflicts. The Agency’s international work is designed to level the global economic playing field for US companies and workers by advocating core labor standards and conflict resolution systems for all nations. Through programs designed to strengthen the rule of law, labor relations and workers’ rights, the FMCS helps ensure economic growth and competitiveness.

Note: DCHA/DRG has no official relationship with the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. Information about the Agency listed here is intended to serve as a resource for Missions interested in developing or strengthening Rule of Law and/or Civil Society programming.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS: Through mediator presentations and interactive training, both in the U.S. and abroad, FMCS shares best-practices in the full range of labor-management relations, collective bargaining/negotiations, interest-based problem solving, individual grievance mediation, mediation of collective agreements, and arbitration. FMCS also provides in-depth capacity building through labor relations and dispute resolution systems design, including negotiations, alternative dispute resolution, mediation, arbitration, labor inspector training, and train-the-trainer.

Highly skilled and experienced FMCS mediators can deliver programs such as:

- Dispute Resolution Systems Design – creating and implementing workplace conflict resolution systems;
- Education and Mentoring – training labor, management, and government representatives in industrial relations practices, mediation techniques, negotiation skills, and conflict resolution processes;
- Mediation and Facilitation Services – providing interest-based problem solving techniques and consensus-building dialogue to promote economic growth and legal or institutional reform.

FMCS also provides briefings and other programs for foreign leaders, labor attaches, international delegations, and other foreign visitors on U.S. industrial relations practices and conflict resolution systems. Special tutorials can be arranged for small groups with interest in relationship development and training through observation of FMCS field mediators in actual cases.

INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIVE TRAINING ASSISTANCE PROGRAM (ICITAP)

DRG Contact: Eric Beinhart

PURPOSE:
To promote sustainable institutional development in partnership with host country law enforcement and prosecutorial agencies through technical assistance, mentoring, internships and training. ICITAP is committed to working with USAID to achieve improved governance by taking a holistic approach to addressing crime that includes prevention, intervention and enforcement.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
ICITAP has programs in 40 countries, 20 of which are led by U.S. Government Senior Law Enforcement Advisors. All ICITAP programs are supervised by either federal employees in the field or at headquarters in Washington, D.C. ICITAP can assist USAID by conducting assessments that develop realistic and measurable performance indicators, and by designing and implementing law enforcement development programs. ICITAP has extensive experience in designing and implementing programs in the following topical areas that coincide with USAID priorities and needs: community based policing, respect for human rights and human dignity, community justice, anti-corruption, developing internal affairs capacity within police departments, election security development for police and civil society, forensics development, and anti-trafficking-in-persons programs. Like USAID, ICITAP is committed to promoting the concept of sustainable institutional development.

INTERNATIONAL JUDICIAL RELATIONS COMMITTEE

DRG Contact: Jack Dougherty

PURPOSE:
Article III Judges comprise the International Judicial Relations Committee (IJRC), which coordinates the federal judiciary’s relationship with foreign judiciaries and with official and unofficial agencies and organizations interested in international judicial relations, and the establishment and expansion of the rule of law and the administration of justice.

The Committee also facilitates the development and administration of programs designed to assist foreign judges and court managers such as the translation and dissemination of materials about the United States and its judicial system. The IJRC can also identify U.S. Federal Judges with expertise relevant for a particular international rule of law program or court reform project.

The IJRC is staffed by Senior Attorneys at the Administrative Offices of the US Courts. Together with the USAID Liaison (AOR), the AOUSC provides support to the IJRC for the implementation and coordination of judicial exchanges, judicial reform projects and production of substantive materials for rule of law programs.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
Federal Judges have volunteered their time to support USAID ROL programs in several areas, including but not limited to:

- Establishing or strengthening judicial bodies
- Strengthening judicial administration, management and self-governance
- Enhancing judicial professional development
- Improving transparent and efficient administration of justice system components
- Strengthening the implementation of law and procedures
- Establishing and nurturing long-term relationships with foreign judiciaries undergoing reform

PURPOSE:
The purpose of the OPDAT is to develop and administer technical assistance designed to enhance the capabilities of foreign justice sector institutions and their law enforcement personnel, so they can effectively partner with the Department of Justice in combating terrorism, trafficking in persons, organized crime, corruption, and financial crimes.

POSSIBLE WORK AREAS:
OPDAT draws on Department of Justice resources and expertise to strengthen foreign criminal justice sector institutions and enhance the administration of justice abroad. OPDAT supports the United States and the Department's law enforcement objectives and priorities by preparing foreign counterparts to cooperate more fully and effectively with the United States in combating terrorism, trafficking in persons, organized crime, corruption, financial crimes, and other transnational crime. It does so by providing technical assistance for legislative and justice sector reform in countries with inadequate laws; by improving the skills of foreign prosecutors and investigators; and by promoting the rule of law and respect for human rights. Active federal prosecutors provide the vast majority of the technical assistance on OPDAT programs.

The USAID Democracy and Governance Assessment Framework for Strategy Development
The Democracy and Governance Assessment Framework for Strategy Development provides a framework for constructing US government, in particular USAID, democracy and governance strategies. It is designed to help define a country-appropriate program to assist in the transition to and consolidation of democracy, by addressing the core democracy and governance problem(s) and identifying primary actors and institutions. To achieve this, the framework guides a political analysis of the country and incorporates what researchers and practitioners have learned from comparative experience; it also mandates a realistic look at existing constraints. The final product is a report that provides a set of strategic and programmatic recommendations and their likely impacts on democratic reform. The assessments feed directly into the Country Development Cooperation Strategies, Mission Strategic and Resource Plans, and Operational Plans as well as helping the Mission prioritize its DRG investments for a 3-5 year period.

The assessment process entails sending a few experts in country, who work in close coordination with the Mission for approximately three weeks. For more information, contact Brian Hanley at bhanley@usaid.gov.

Civil Society Assessment Tool
Constituencies for Reform: Strategic Approaches for Donor Supported Civic Advocacy Programs
This document provides guidance to donors in the development of civil society programs in support of promoting democracy and good governance. It outlines a five-step strategic logic for assessing the role of civil society and determining investment priorities for this sector. The first step entails an analysis of major obstacles to democratic political development. Step two is the formulation of a reform agenda to advance good governance. The third step involves a survey of civil society organizations which have interests corresponding with the reform agenda and thereby share a common concern in developing a basis for coalition-building. Step four concentrates on assessing what organizational capacities are needed to strengthen the advocacy role of civil society, and step five identifies what must be done to enhance the capacities and openness of host-country institutions and arenas in which civil society can effectively advance the reform process. For more information, contact Maryanne Yerkes at myerkes@usaid.gov.

Enabling Environment Assessment Tool
NGO Sustainability Index
The NGO Sustainability Index is a key analytical tool that measures the progress of non-governmental organizations (NGOs) in the Europe and Eurasia (E&E) region. The NGO Sustainability Index draws on the expertise of NGO leaders in 29 countries and entities in E&E and highlights major developments and trends in the NGO environment. Seven different dimensions of the NGO sector are analyzed in the NGO Sustainability Index: legal environment, organizational capacity, financial viability, advocacy, service provision, NGO infrastructure and public image. In the Index, each of these dimensions is examined with a focus on the following questions: (1) What has been accomplished? (2) What remains a problem? (3) Do local actors recognize the nature of outstanding challenges? (4) Do the local actors have a strategy and the capacity to address these challenges? Scores are measured on a 1 to 7 scale, with 7 indicating a low or poor level of development and 1 indicating a very advanced level of progress. Each country report provides an in-depth analysis of the NGO sector along with comparative information regarding prior years’ dimension scores encapsulated in easy-to-read charts. For more information, contact Eric Picard at epicard@usaid.gov.

Enabling Environment Assessment Tool
ICNL tools and guides
The International Center for Not-for-Profit Law (ICNL) offers several tools helpful to assessing the enabling environment for civil society organizations. “Safeguarding Civil Society in Politically Complex Environments” is an informative 26-page desk study produced by ICNL with USAID funding in 2007 (www.icnl.org/knowledge/ijnl/vol9iss3/special_1.htm). The article seeks to identify available strategies and tools to protect civil society and freedom of association in politically complex environments. This working document discusses use of the following strategies, tools, and mechanisms: (a) protective alliances and networks; (b) raising public awareness; (c) advocacy campaigning; (d) direct public action; (e) international diplomacy; (f) domestic litigation; (g) national and international human rights mechanisms; (h) legal triage; and (i) going underground. ICNL also provides a "Checklist for CSO Laws" on its website (www.icnl.org/knowledge/pubs/NPOChecklist.pdf) that outlines provisions that should be included in legislation governing civil society organizations (CSOs). The list is useful for assessing whether CSO legislation currently on the books or in draft form meets generally accepted international practices. For more information, contact Douglas B. Rutzen at ICNL at drutzen@icnl.org or contact Eric Picard at epicard@usaid.gov.

The Labor Sector and U.S. Foreign Assistance Goals
The new Global Labor Sector Analytic Initiative (GLaSAI) website provides a dynamic knowledge bank about the impact of the labor sector on political, social, and economic development. Recognizing that labor sector issues affect many of the most pressing development needs such as livelihoods, human rights, competitiveness, human trafficking, and HIV/AIDS, among others, the GLaSAI website provides access to the research, tools, experts, and technical assistance needed to design, implement, and evaluate labor sector programming in the context of country-specific or global objectives. Practical findings of the analytic initiative are presented for policy makers, country team leaders, technical officers, implementing partners, and researchers in the short paper “Why Labor Matters.” For more information, go to http://www.glasai.com/.

Media Programming Tool
The Role of Media in Democracy: A Strategic Approach
This guide outlines a menu of implementation options for media programming that can be selected for adaptation to country context and available resources. The guide describes potential actors involved in media programming, weaknesses that may require attention, and strategies for strengthening the independent media sector. Illustrative activities include: journalism training; building country capacity for training media professionals; strengthening business capacities of media or capital infusions to media enterprises; media law reform and advocacy; supporting development of media sector CSOs; and more. For more information, contact Mark Koenig at mkoenig@usaid.gov.

Youth Assessment Tool
Youth and Extremism Assessment Module
This tool is intended to facilitate the collection and analysis of data related to the nexus between youth and extremism. The tool may be used within the context of a country-specific cross-sectoral youth assessment or as a stand-alone data collection instrument. It consists of targeted questions meant to focus attention on key variables and issues, and proceeds in five steps: (1) Lays the basis for a general profile of the at-risk youth population.
(nature, level, and geographical location of the threat); (2) Seeks to understand the motivations that may prompt youth to join, or become loosely affiliated with, radicalized groups and organizations; (3) Develops an understanding of the conditions that shape the ability of organizations to recruit, organize and operate among the youth and how these steps take place; (4) Assesses the main trends that may be affecting the scope and nature of the extremism threats to youth; and (5) Provides guidelines for strategy development, based on the results of the analysis conducted in steps 1 through 4. For more information, contact Maryanne Yerkes at myerkes@usaid.gov.

The media play a vital role in many developing countries. Media outlets enable citizens to communicate with each other, serve as platforms for debate, anchor democratic processes, and facilitate poverty reduction and development through provision of needed information. In states experiencing conflict, violent political upheaval, or complete collapse, the media sector is even more critical.

A Mobile Voice: The Use of Mobile Phones in Citizen Media (2008)
This publication explores the dynamics of the role of mobile phones in enhancing access to and creating information for citizen-produced media.

This paper deals with two broad sets of questions. First, what do we think we should be aiming for at the systemic level, in terms of the relationship between civil society and political parties? Second, in a given setting, what kinds of relationships, at the micro level (among individual organizations), can contribute to democratization?

This paper describes a sample of the existing anti-sweatshop programs, assesses the strengths and weaknesses of each, and provides a set of recommendations for future directions in combating sweatshops.

Approaches to Civic Education: Lessons Learned (2002)
This document reports on lessons learned from a research investigation into USAID's civic education programming.

The Enabling Environment for Free & Independent Media: Contribution to Transparent & Accountable Governance (2002)
This document identifies the main components of the legal environment that enable media to advance democratic goals.

The Role of Media in Democracy: A Strategic Approach (1999)
This strategic approach is intended to help USAID field staff make informed decisions with regard to programming media development activities. It analyzes a history of USAID involvement in this area and outlines lessons learned.

Elections and Political Transitions

The Electoral Security Framework is a diagnostic instrument that profiles electoral conflict for the development of program strategies and activities to prevent, manage or mediate this conflict. It provides USAID Democracy and Governance Officers with an “Assessment—Planning—Programming—Monitoring & Evaluation” methodology for elections and security work. The Handbook is available for hardcopy and electronic distribution. For more information, please contact Tess McEnery at tmcenery@usaid.gov.

The Electoral Security Best Practices Guide is a companion piece to USAID’s Electoral Security Framework which synthesizes information gathered from multiple electoral security assessments conducted since the debut of the Framework in 2010. By providing a global overview of best practices in programming to prevent, manage, and/or mediate electoral conflict and violence, the Guide will enable DRG practitioners and partners to cross-reference the country context in which they are programming, and leverage best practices used in similar environments and phases of the electoral cycle. For more information, please contact Tess McEnery at tmcenery@usaid.gov.

USAID’s Political Party Assistance Policy was created in 2003 and is a mandatory reference to ADS 200. Support for political parties overseas remains a long-term interest of the United States. Assistance in strengthening political parties – both in government and in opposition – is one important way the United States can support democratization in transitional societies. The goals of USAID’s Political Party Assistance are to: 1) development and consolidate representative democracies; 2) develop transparent political environments; 3) establish viable democratic parties; and 4) ensure conduct of free and fair elections. The two guiding principles governing USAID’s assistance policy are: USAID programs support representative multi-party systems and USAID programs do not seek to determine election outcomes. For additional details on policy guidelines, prohibited activities, exceptions and implementation guidance, please contact Catie Lott at clott@usaid.gov.

This publication helps democracy and governance field officers anticipate and effectively deal with the myriad of issues and challenges that arise with election assistance programs in changing environments. The practical manual guides users through defining the problem and assessing contextual factors; identifying stakeholders and their motives; selecting options for assistance; linking those options to the mission strategy; and managing electoral assistance. It is suggestive rather than directive, in recognition that, while a certain “conventional wisdom” based on years of experience exists about elections programming, the multitude of variables precludes a “one size fits all” approach. The approaches suggested in this handbook are based on material gathered through a year-long assessment of electoral assistance activities carried out by USAID Missions and their partners over the past eight years.

USAID Political Party Development Assistance (1999)
The document provides a clearer understanding of the substance and breadth of USAID political party development assistance, the statutory and political constraints on such USAID-supported programming, the methods and approaches to political party assistance programming by key implementing partners, and the limitations and possibilities for future political party development assistance around the world.

This guide is a primer for USG officials so that decisions on elections and political parties are informed by best practices and lessons from roughly two decades of prior experience. The guide should inform strategic-level planning and on-the-ground implementation decisions. Unlike many other guides, it focuses on the election process as well as political parties and voters in pre-election, election-day, and post-election settings. Many of the standard lessons on elections and political processes do not apply, or apply differently, to elections in R&S environments. This guide attempts to capture those differences. It emphasizes how the ensemble of USG resources can best be brought to bear on the election process in R&S operations – which spans from the negotiations over a peace agreement to after the election event. The guide is organized into four sections. The first section presents policy considerations that commonly arise in transitional elections and political processes. The second section presents the elements of strategic planning. The third section highlights best practices in implementation. A final section highlights monitoring and evaluation.

As USAID's first publication on political finance in emerging democracies, its purpose is to increase understanding by USAID field staff, host-country political leaders, civil society organizations, and the media of the sometimes obscure and sensitive topic of political finance. It also creates awareness of the issues and benefits of open finances and suggests some practical technical assistance options that encourage the use of disclosure as a methodology for strengthening national democratic political processes.

USAID commissioned a comprehensive review and assessment of vote count verification (VCV) techniques, including statistically based and comprehensive parallel vote tabulations (PVTs or “quick counts”), exit polls, public opinion surveys, and postelection statistical analyses. The User's Guide reviews the experiences with vote count verification in recent transitional or post-conflict elections and makes recommendations on the advantages and disadvantages of various verification techniques, depending on the project's specific objectives and the nature of the relevant political environment.

The Declaration of Principles for International Election Observation

The Declaration of Principles for International Election Observation and the Code of Conduct for International Election Observers were developed through a multi-year process involving more than 20 intergovernmental and international nongovernmental organizations concerned with election observation around the world. The declaration was commemorated at the UN in 2005, and is now endorsed by 42 intergovernmental and international organizations, which are engaged in the process of improving international election observation.

Declaration of Global Principles for Nonpartisan Election Observation and Monitoring by Citizen Organizations

The Declaration of Global Principles for Nonpartisan Election Observation and Monitoring by Citizen Organizations and Code of Conduct for Non-Partisan Citizen Election Observers and Monitors was drafted by representatives of civil society organizations from Africa, Asia, Central and Eastern Europe, Eurasia, Latin America and the Caribbean, and the Middle East that belong to the Global Network of Domestic Election Monitors. They establish the first voluntary global standards for domestic election observation.

African Election Toolkit
http://cas.state.gov/afelectionstoolkit/
This on-line toolkit, created by the Department of State’s Africa Bureau and the Bureau of Democracy, Human Rights, and Labor and USAID, provides resources, templates and examples for analysis and planning by USAID Mission and Embassies appropriate for each stage of the entire electoral cycle and links to external sources of additional information. Designed for an African context, many of the materials are equally applicable for understanding elections in any location.

Governance

Interagency Security Sector Assessment Framework (ISSAF)
U.S. security is enhanced by democratic security sector governance worldwide. There is a growing awareness among security sector experts that a limited focus on improving law and order is not enough; fundamental reforms may be required. Such reforms may include structural changes in security policies, restructuring security sector organizations to improve their functioning, and ensuring that civilian authorities have the capacity to manage and oversee security organizations. The ISSAF is a tool that enables a USAID or interagency team to assess security and justice concerns in states in every stage of development. It can function as a stand-alone tool, as a complement to other related topical frameworks (e.g., the Rule of Law Strategic Framework), or as a sectoral link to other types of broader assessment tools (e.g., the Interagency Conflict Assessment Framework (ICAF)). The ISSAF is divided into two parts: i) a ten-step framework for analysis; and ii) areas of inquiry with illustrative questions.

Maritime Security Sector Reform (MSSR) Guide
The maritime is vulnerable to a wide array of threats, to include illegal, unreported and unregulated fishing; environmental degradation; smuggling; trafficking in persons; narcotics trafficking; piracy; proliferation of weapons of mass destruction; and aggressive actions, including terrorism. The MSSR Guide is an analytical tool designed to map and assess the maritime sector; to assess existing maritime security sector capabilities and gaps; and/or to enable coordination and collaboration to improve maritime safety and security. It can be used to support a full-scale maritime sector assessment; to obtain a snapshot of one or more aspects of a country’s maritime sector; or to facilitate discussion among national actors with maritime responsibilities. The Guide is designed to be used in conjunction with other tools, particularly when more in depth treatment of a function or capability may be warranted.

Democratic Decentralization Programming Handbook (June 2009)
The Democratic Decentralization Programming Handbook (DDPH) is designed to facilitate the design, development, implementation and evaluation of USAID decentralization and local government support projects. It is a “second generation” technical leadership product that encourages USAID missions to design decentralization and local government support projects tailored to USG and host-country goals and to relevant country circumstances.

USAID Program Brief: Reducing Corruption in the Judiciary (June 2009)
The linkages between poverty reduction, economic growth, and democratic governance are firmly established in current development thinking, backed by persuasive research. Equally well established is the recognition by scholars, policy makers, and development practitioners of the central importance of the rule of law and the control of corruption successfully addressing the related challenges of social, economic and political development. This program brief specifically addresses efforts to reduce corruption in the judiciary. In its references to “judicial corruption” it includes corrupt acts by judges, prosecutors, public defenders, court officials, and lawyers who are intimately involved in the operation of the judicial system. It recognizes, however, that addressing judicial corruption requires attention to the broader context of corruption in the entire justice system, including law enforcement agencies, and in the society as a whole.

Joint Statement on Security Sector Reform (2009)
In early January, USAID, the Department of State, and the Department of Defense issued a joint statement on Security Sector Reform (SSR). This paper responds to a gap in current foreign assistance approaches to security and development. U.S. security assistance programs have sometimes focused too exclusively on providing equipment and training to security forces. However, forces enhanced through traditional assistance can better carry out their responsibilities if the institutional and governance frameworks necessary to sustain them are equally well-developed and equipped. Similarly, development assistance has generally excluded security-related assistance. Yet, development cannot thrive without basic security. The increasingly complex threats facing our partners and our own nation urgently require that we address the linkages among security, governance, development, and conflict in more comprehensive and sustainable ways.

In addition to building professional security forces, SSR supports the establishment of relevant legal and policy frameworks; enhanced civilian management, leadership, oversight, planning and budgeting capacities; and improved coordination and cooperation among security-related and civil institutions.

The paper identifies key principles and recommendations for joint activity. It will be followed by Agency-specific implementation guidelines. For more information, contact Julie Werbel at jwerbel@usaid.gov or see the paper online at http://www.usaid.gov/our_work/democracy_and_governance/publications/pdfs/SSR_JS_Mar2009.pdf

USAID Anticorruption Assessment Handbook (2009)
The Anticorruption Assessment Handbook provides assessment teams with tools for diagnosing the underlying causes of corruption by analyzing both the state of laws and institutions, as well as the political-economic dynamics of a country. The main objective of the assessment approach outlined in this handbook is to assure that assessments start by casting a wide analytical net to capture the breadth of issues that affect corruption and anticorruption prospects in a country and then provide a clearly-justified, strategic rationale for their final programmatic recommendations. This handbook provides step-by-step practical assistance to implement the methodology and produce an assessment report that addresses a wide range of issues and generates recommendations for action. For more information, visit http://www.usaid.gov/our_work/democracy_and_governance/technical_areas/anticorruption_handbook/index.html or contact Christina del Castillo at cdelcastillo@usaid.gov.

Website on Implementing Policy Change
This website contains a series of documents written as part of USAID’s Implementing Policy Change (IPC) program, which provided technical assistance in developing countries around the world to improve policy implementation and democratic governance. These documents include case studies, short technical notes that describe management tools and approaches, working papers, articles and research on efforts to strengthen the ability and capacity of democratically elected governments to pursue critical political, economic, social, and administrative changes and reforms in their country. These documents contain a wealth of knowledge regarding how to manage change in development contexts.

USAID Program Brief: Anticorruption and Policy Integrity (May 2007)
As part of USAID's technical leadership on security sector reform issues, this program brief discusses the issues surrounding police corruption and offers programmatic guidelines and tools for addressing police corruption. The program brief is designed to “unpack” police corruption contextually, and to identify specific concerns that - in light of the societal role and special powers of the police - should be considered when developing programmatic responses.

This program brief on Anticorruption Agencies (ACAs) is intended to assist the field by outlining the critical questions around the establishment and workings of a host country’s ACA. Since the 1990s, more than 30 countries have established some form of anticorruption agency or commission as a key tactic in their efforts to fight corruption. USAID Missions and other international donors are faced with many questions as they provide advice and assistance to host country governments on their efforts to combat corruption. The document also provides substantive input on how the answers to those questions may affect the effectiveness of donor support for an ACA.

USAID Anticorruption Strategy (January 2005)
This document outlines USAID’s strategy and approaches to addressing corruption and increasing transparency in the public sector. The Agency’s work reduces opportunities and incentives for corruption; supports stronger and more independent judiciaries, legislatures, and oversight bodies; and promotes independent media, civil society, and public education. Corruption, defined as the abuse of entrusted authority for private gain, remains a tremendous obstacle to political, social, and economic development, and efforts to reduce it need to be more fully integrated across all sectors. Decreasing corruption is an important U.S. foreign policy objective. USAID’s programs can help target the critical problem of corruption in all its manifestations.

USAID Handbook on Legislative Strengthening (February 2000)
This handbook is designed to assist USAID Missions in developing strategies to help legislatures function more effectively and to perform their functions more democratically. It explains the importance of legislatures in a democracy, describes factors that influence legislative behavior, and enumerates problems legislatures commonly face. It then presents an assessment framework that is designed to help USAID field officers pinpoint the weaknesses and understand the capabilities of their host-country legislatures. The paper identifies a number of assistance activities designed to address weaknesses and to capitalize on strengths discovered in the assessment. It concludes with guidance for implementing legislative programs and a presentation of emerging issues.

Rule of Law

A Field Guide for USAID DRG Officers: Assistance to Civilian Law Enforcement in Developing Countries (January 2011)
This field guide, designed for DRG officers considering police assistance programs in their countries, establishes the importance of public safety as a cornerstone of successful development.
This guide provides a conceptual framework for analyzing challenges to the rule of law, as well as guidelines for conducting a justice sector assessment and for designing and prioritizing program interventions.

This guide introduces administrative law mechanisms and concepts and shows how administrative law can strengthen USAID's DRG programming.
pdf.usaid.gov/pdf_docs/PNADK999.pdf

This guidance elaborates key points and legislative guidance, notification guidance, program guidelines and advice on implementation, and illustrative activities.
pdf.usaid.gov/pdf_docs/PDACG022.pdf

This guide promotes an understanding of judicial independence and assists USAID in the design and implementation of programs that strengthen it.

Case Tracking and Management Guide (2001)
This manual provides practical guidance on successful court case tracking and management (CTM) improvement projects.
pdf.usaid.gov/pdf_docs/PNACM001.pdf

This guide is intended to help practitioners make informed decisions with regard to incorporating alternative dispute resolution (ADR) in rule of law programs and other conflict management initiatives. It is available on line at pdf.usaid.gov/pdf_docs/PNACB895.pdf

Special Programs to Address the Needs of Survivors (SPANS)

All SPANS-related publications and tools can be found on the SPANS website. The website includes descriptions of four of SPANS’ five Congressional directives: 1) Displaced Children and Orphans Fund; 2) War Victims Fund; 3) Victims of Torture Program; and 4) Wheelchair Program. Users can also find a collection of more than 75 country and special-interest reports produced by SPANS programs since their inception. These publications include in-depth analyses of country programs and descriptions of best practices and lessons learned. See www.usaid.gov/our_work/humanitarian_assistance/the_funds/index.html for more information.

Information on SPANS’ fifth Congressional directive, the Disability program, can be found at http://www.usaid.gov/about_usaid/disability/index.html. The website offers links to the following Agency policies regarding people with disabilities:

1. Background on USAID and Inclusive Development
2. Promoting Disability Inclusion in USAID Missions
3. Checklist for Inclusion
4. Disability Assessment Tool/Guide
5. Disability Inclusion Plan Table
Highlights of SPANS reports include:

Fifth Report on the Implementation of USAID Disability Policy. This report describes USAID Missions’ redoubled efforts to integrate people with disabilities into their programs and to develop more specific programs that promote equality for and empowerment of people with disabilities. The report further shows that the Agency remains committed to serving as an international leader in the area of inclusive development and to working proactively to remove barriers that may limit the full participation of people with disabilities in family, community, and society. The full report can be accessed at: http://pdf.usaid.gov/pdf_docs/PDACM100.pdf.

Learning Team

A prestigious U.S. academic team examined democratic patterns in 165 countries throughout the world from 1990 to 2004, finding that USAID democracy, human rights and governance (DRG) assistance had a significant positive impact on democratic development. Specifically, the studies conclude that, in any given year, $10 million of USAID DRG funding produces about a five-fold increase in the amount of democratic change over what the average country would otherwise be expected to achieve.

Link to more information, including the database and an earlier study: www.pitt.edu/~politics/democracy/democracy.html.

Improving Democracy Assistance: Building Knowledge Through Evaluations and Research (2008)

Through a contract awarded in 2006 to the National Academy of Sciences (NAS), an expert commission was convened and a report was produced with recommendations for improving USAID evaluations of DRG programs. The report includes a range of specific practical and policy recommendations that can be implemented by USAID.

DEMOCRACY, HUMAN RIGHTS AND GOVERNANCE NICHE ORGANIZATIONS IN THE DC REGION

USAID/KSC Contact: Michael Ardovino, Ph.D.

Below is a list of mostly non-profit (501) organizations and think-tanks in the Washington DC area that focus on issues related to the democracy, human rights and governance sector and subsectors of rule of law, governance, civil society, and elections, including human rights and natural resources management. Organization websites are provided.
